M'CALL ENTERS SERVICE BOARD

Chairman Willcox Courteously Receives His Successor, Who Pays Him a Great Compliment.

HOPES TO DESERVE AS WELL

DECISION COMING MONDAY

Presiding Justice Refuses to Certify to Court of Appeals—McAneny Tribute to Retiring Commissioner.

Ex-Justice Edward E. McCall took the oath of office as Chairman of the Public Service Commission yesterday afternoon before Justice Davis and went at once to the offices of the Commission. There ex-Chairman Willcox was waiting to receive him and after a few minutes, conference called in the other Commissioners and the heads of departments and introduced them to their new chief. In words that showed how deeply he felt the severance of the ties of the last five years the retiring Chairman commended his subordinates to his successor and emphasized the fact that he knew them only as honest, faithful workers, and not at all belonging to this or that political body.

Chairman McCall in a brief reply paid the highest tribute to the work which Chairman Willcox had accomplished and expressed the hope that he would merit the same gratitude for his achievements as Mr. Willcox had earned.

It is understood that in the study of the operating contracts of the dual subway system he will have the assistance of the retiring Chairman. Many of the clauses are the result of compromises and it will be of great service to Chairman McCall in deciding how to cast his vote to know the circumstances of the bargain.

Counsel for the Public Service Commission were hopeful that it would not be long before the new Chairman would be called upon to express his opinion of the dual system. The Appellate Division reserved its decision on the application of Mr. Shearn as counsel for John J. Hopper for a temporary injunction against the signing and execution of the contracts by the commission. But those who were present at the hearing yesterday afternoon were confident that the court was not favorably impressed by the arguments of Mr. Shearn, and that it will probably hand down on Monday a decision denying the application. It was noted that the c[illegible] refused absolutely to grant Mr. Shea[illegible]n's request for leave to take the case to the Court of Appeals in event of a decision averse to him.

Legal Freedom Next Week.

Consequently, it is hoped that, as far as the courts are concerned, the commission will be free to act in the beginning of next week. Chairman McCall has said that he did not think that it should take him as long as two weeks to read the contracts and make up his mind about them, and it seems that the opponents of the dual system can now depend on nothing except the chance of his disapproval. It is realized that an attempt may be made to interpose further injunctions, but it is doubted whether the courts can be induced to believe that any new facts can be adduced.

It is understood that the new Chairman has been under pressure from Gov. Sulzer to step as quickly as possible into his new office, and that he has felt that the insistence from Albany was becoming unreasonable. He considered that he was sufficiently acquainted with all that was going on to decide for himself the proper time to enter on his new duties, and that he ha[illegible] the right to ask some consideratio[illegible] for his own convenience, when by staying at the court to clean up his judicial work he was not shirking any of his responsibilities as a Public Service Commissioner.

Gov. Sulzer admitted at Albany yesterday that he had been urging Mr. McCall to take the oath of office. When he was asked if he had heard from him he said yesterday:

"I asked Judge McCall to file his oath of office and qualify as Public Service Commissioner to-day, and he did."

"Do you know what action Commissioner McCall will take on the contracts?" the Governor was also asked.

"I don't know what his attitude will be," was his reply. The Governor also stated that he might see the new Chairman to-night, if he happened to attend the Lotos Club dinner.

The Exchange of Courtesies.

In giving up his office Mr. Willcox made no direct reference to the effect on his old assistants of a possible departure from his employment schedule, but those in close communication with him lately know that the risk that the organization he has built up so carefully might be disrupted, has been one of his chief sources of regret in laying down his office.

"It gives me great pleasure," he said, addressing his successor, "to welcome you and to induct you in office as Chairman of the Public Service Commission for the First District. Your reputation in the community is such that it is an earnest of the good work that is most confidently expected from you. You will find this work laborious and difficult, but I hope you will find it not without its satisfactions.

"I want to commend you to my colleagues, and my colleagues to you. No man was ever surrounded by harder working or more earnest men. I particularly want to speak of the excellence of the staff that has been built up during the past five years and a half. They are all painstaking and hard-working men. The only standard we have in appointments from the competitive and non-competitive classes is faithfulness and efficiency. Even now I don't know the politics or religion of a vast majority of them.

"If I can be of any assistance to you by reason of my experience here I hope you will command me at any time."

Chairman McCall in replying impressed

MARCONI MAY END CONTRACT.

Managing Director Says It Has a Right to Cancel if England Insists.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—Notwithstanding the Government's decision to hold the Marconi Company to its contract to build an all-red wireless system, the company is still anxious to terminate it, and Godfrey Isaacs, the managing Director, has written to the Postmaster General asking the Government to reconsider the decision. He says that to carry out the undertaking the company has been obliged to carry a reserve for nearly a year of £300,000, which was a serious matter, and, if continued, would tend to hamper the company's commercial programme generally. He goes on:

"Apart altogether from our moral position, we thought it well to take the opinion of Sir Robert Finlay as to our legal rights. He has advised that we are now entitled to intimate that unless the Postmaster General is in a position to confirm definitely this contract by March 1 we will treat such contract as at an end. In these circumstances we would venture to ask that our letter of the 15th ultimo be further considered, and we trust that as a consequence we may not be put under obligation, through no fault of our own, of rescinding a contract entered into with His Majesty's Government."

BIG CUBAN SUGAR DEAL.

Charles P. Taft Said to be Interested in $1,500,000 Land Purchase.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Feb. 7.—The sum of $1,500,000 is involved in a sugar land deal in which Charles P. Taft is reported to be heavily interested, as well as New York and Philadelphia capitalists.

The land—40,000 acres—is at Sancti Spiritus. It is proposed to build a modern sugar mill on it. Cresson & Morris of Philadelphia are also said to be interested.

DOUBTS HE BRINGS SERUM.

Dr. Arthur C. H. Friedmann, a brother of Dr. F. F. Friedmann, discoverer of a serum for tuberculosis, is inclined to doubt that his brother supplied to Dr. Austin B. Held of Pittsburgh, who returned on Thursday on the Potsdam from Rotterdam, a sample of his serum. Dr. Friedmann said yesterday:

"This morning's newspapers contained the announcement of Dr. Austin B. Held of Pittsburgh that he had brought with him from Europe some of the Friedmann treatment for tuberculosis. Previous correspondence with my brother makes me very doubtful whether this statement is in accordance with the facts, and I am inclined to believe that the Pittsburgh man has obtained some of the spurious Piorkowsky bacilli, which my brother declares are in no way identical with his, and which he asserts are either without any effect or harmful.

"The only way to decide this question, which seems to me a very important one, is to ask Dr. F. Friedmann whether or not he has furnished Dr. Held with some of his treatment, so that the doctor is in a position to administer it in this country. I am cabling him to-day to that effect, and will make known his answer."

Dr. Held, when questioned at Quarantine on behalf of this Government by Dr. Milton H. Foster of the Public Health Service, said that Dr. Friedmann had given him enough of the serum to treat a patient in Pittsburgh who was suffering from tuberculosis of the bone.

ASKS DOCTOR FOR NEW BRAIN

Woman Also Appeals to Rockefeller Institute for a New Character.

A woman who said she was Miss Emily Jane, a school teacher, 55 years old, called at the Rockefeller Institute, Sixty-sixth Street and the East River, yesterday afternoon, and informed Dr. Swift that she wished to have a new brain to replace her own. She said also that she desired a new character, a most superior one. She explained that she had just arrived from Boston, having selected the Rockefeller Institute for her needs because of its reputation for remarkable surgical feats.

Dr. Swift asked her to wait, and then got Dr. McRoberts from Bellevue Hospital. The latter took the woman there, where she was placed in the psychopathic ward. At the hospital she said her name was Emily Jane Clarke, and that she had lived at 47 Bellevue Street, Boston.

Her nearest relative, she said, was her sister, Mrs. J. Berlingett, of 923 Bedgate Avenue, Norfolk, Va.

PREPARE TO FIGHT BIG STRIKE

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 7.—Advices received at the Pennsylvania Railroad offices to-day were to the effect that the count of the firemen's strike ballot showed that 30,000 men had voted to go out, and that the employes on the fifty-four Eastern railroads have decided to reject the offer of the companies to arbitrate through a commission.

In view of this information it was announced that the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore & Ohio, and the Philadelphia & Reading Railroads, as well as all other lines that will be affected by a strike, will make preparations to operate trains under "strike conditions." That will mean, an official explained, that it will be impossible to maintain a schedule or give any assurance that passengers can be taken to their destinations in any given time.

BIRTH OF ATOM STIRS SCIENTISTS

NEW LINE IN NATURE'S BOOK

LODGE ASKS MORE EVIDENCE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, Feb. 8.—The keenest interest has been aroused in the scientific world by the reports of the birth of the atom, which were made Thursday night before the Chemical Society by Sir William Ramsay and Profs. Collie and Patterson, as cabled to THE NEW YORK TIMES. If further experiments confirm this possible creation of matter, the spontaneous birth of an element like helium or neon, it is fundamentally more important than the spontaneous birth of life.

Prof. Smithell's statement that the papers were momentous and possessed a greater interest than any hitherto brought before the Chemical Society, is regarded as especially significant, because he is a chemist and a cautious one, and it was among the chemists that the largest amount of skepticism over Sir William Ramsay's previous experiments had been shown.

"For several years I have used half a gramme of radium bromide, lent me by the Royal Academy of Vienna. With that I thought I succeeded in transmuting copper into lithium, silicon, titanium and zirconium, and thorium into carbon. More recently I obtained neon from water. Two years ago the radium bromide was recalled by the academy.

Next Tries X-Ray Bulbs.

"Now, radium contains an enormous amount of energy in a concentrated form. In order to see whether some other source of energy could not be found to achieve the same results I investigated the contents of used X-ray bulbs, given me by a medical friend. These bulbs were found to contain traces of gas helium, the existence of which could not be explained.

"Prof. Collie was simultaneously experimenting with home-made X-ray bulbs, in which cathode rays were employed as the source of energy.

"Prof. Patterson pursued a similar course of investigation, but quite independently and without knowing of Collie's work.

"Prof. Collie was very skeptical at first, but ultimately they both came to the conclusion that if cathode rays are passed through pure hydrogen gas in a certain manner there are present in the hydrogen tube considerable quantities of neon, one of the rarer elements of atmosphere, and by some change of conditions the element helium is substituted for neon.

"Inasmuch as there is certainly no helium or neon in the bulbs and as the possibility of their entrance from the outside air, which contains them, was excluded by carefully devised experiments, the only conclusion which can be drawn is that these elements are the product of some action, going on in the bulb.

Three Possibilities.

"First—Either transmutation of the aluminium cathode, or of one of the numerous elements present in the glass into neon and helium.

"Second—Or that hydrogen is thus converted into both of these gases.

"Third—Or that electricity itself in the form of electrons gives rise to the birth of these elements; in short, either the transmutation of one element into another or the creation of an element from electricity.

"This points the way for the change of one form of matter, supposed to be incapable of it, into another."

"Does it mean, for instance, that you will be able to turn lead into gold?" Sir William was asked.

"I do not know," was the reply. "It might, though probably the cost would be too great to make it worth while.

"The importance of the discovery," he went on, "is that we have deciphered another line in the book of nature and opened the door to further discoveries. There may be commercial consequences, there probably will be, but those are not the concern of the scientific investigator. We are on the threshold of an entirely new departure in scientific investigation.

"One advantage of the discovery is that it is now within reach of any one, who can command a battery and a coil, to repeat the experiment. Formerly only those who had large stores of radium could attempt anything of the kind."

Can Transmute Any Element.

Prof. J. Norman Collie said to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent:

"Yes, we have finally achieved the transmutation of elements and have also accomplished it artificially. We have now reached a stage whence, I am able to say, it will be possible to transmute any element, provided we are able to generate sufficient energy.

"It is very likely now that the future will see the dream of the ancient alchemists fulfilled. The invention of the atomic theory killed their specula-

GERMANY ACCEPTS BRITISH FLEET RATIO

TEN TO 16 THE FORMULA

Statement of German Programme in Terms of British Naval Strength a Triumph for Churchill.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Feb. 7.—Speaking yesterday before the Budget Committee, which is discussing naval estimates for 1913, Admiral von Tirpitz, the Naval Secretary, informed his hearers, according to the semi-official Lokalanzeiger, that a "sensible agreement" between Great Britain and Germany with reference to the strength of their respective navies would be "something to be welcomed."

If he is accurately reported, his declaration is the first official admission from a responsible quarter that Germany regards an agreement of any kind with Great Britain within the range of practical politics.

Von Tirpitz's statement to-day before the Budget Committee regarding German and British naval strengths is equally remarkable. Referring to the statement made in March last by Winston Churchill, the First Lord of the British Admiralty, that a proportion of sixteen British to ten German dreadnoughts had been adopted by Great Britain, the Naval Secretary said he was convinced that from the standpoint of the German Admiralty there need be no misgivings regarding the maintenance of such a standard of naval power between the two countries.

Herr von Jagow, the new Foreign Minister, gave the Budget Committee a résumé of the international situation in general and of Anglo-German relations in particular, but what he said in detail was not made public.

The Vossische Zeitung treats von Tirpitz's statement as a formal announcement that an Anglo-German naval agreement has actually been reached.

The Neueste Nachrichten, the organ of the German Navy League, states that Germany is on the verge of "a decisive change in her entire naval policy." It urges Parliament to weigh well whether it would not be better to retain "freedom of action."

To-day's deliberations of the Budget Committee were surrounded by extraordinary secrecy. On entering the committee room, the members were confronted with a peremptory notice reminding them that they were about to participate in a highly confidential discussion, of which not a syllable must leak out. They even agreed to take no notes. The communiqué, given to the press, is understood to have come from Herr von Jagow personally.

NATIONS NEAR UNDERSTANDING.

London Applauds the Notable Advance Toward Friendly Relations.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, Feb. 8.—Reports which reach here concerning the speech before the Reichstag Budget Committee by Admiral von Tirpitz are being welcomed as tangible evidence of the improvement in the relations between Germany and England, which, as has been pointed out, had come about since the two countries began to work together in the interests of European peace menaced by the Balkan troubles.

The Daily News says:

"Von Tirpitz's statement implies first a renewal of Germany's assertion that she does not desire to contest British supremacy on the sea; and, secondly, an entirely new declaration that a ratio of 10 to 16 between the German and English fleets secures that object of self-defense which Germany has in view. The statement, therefore, brings England and Germany very much nearer to an actual, though not a formal, understanding as to naval armaments. So long as the German Government took the line that the German programme was drawn up independently of what any other country might be doing it was impossible to expect

FIND ROCKEFELLER TOO ILL TO ANSWER

Private Inquiry Abandoned by Pujo and Untermyer After Four Questions Are Asked.

SPASMS SEIZE FINANCIER

Dr. Chappell Warns Investigators That Death May Come Suddenly if They Go On.

THROAT CANCER ADMITTED

Special to The New York Times.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Feb. 7.—Twelve minutes after William Rockefeller had appeared privately as a witness in the Pujo Money Trust inquiry to-day his examination was ended by a fit of coughing and trembling which brought sharp warning from his physician that the ordeal must cease or the consequence might be his sudden death. Only four questions had been asked, and they were answered with great difficulty in whispers. Not a word of information had been gleaned after the six months' chase and final running down of the financier The only result was a demonstration that the National House of Representatives could reach out its long arm and compel the obedience of any citizen.

Whatever may have been their feeling while Mr. Rockefeller was eluding their process servers, the representatives of the money trust inquiry, Chairman Arsene P. Pujo and Counsel Samuel Untermyer, came away full of sympathy for Mr. Rockefeller. They described his condition as pitiable, and regretted that it had been necessary to force him to undergo the ordeal.

Cancer of the Throat Admitted.

Mr. Rockefeller to-night is suffering greatly as a result of the experience. Dr. Walter F. Chappell has been in constant attendance, and says that his condition is serious. While his ailment is technically described as oedema of the throat and complications, it was learned to-day that he is in reality a victim of a form of throat cancer, with palsy complications. Dr. Chappell explained to-night that a new growth of a malignant nature had recently formed in his throat and that serious developments were to be expected at any time.

The examination took place in an apartment of the Jekyl Island Club on the semi-tropical island off the coast of Georgia that is owned by 100 wealthy men. It was to this place that Mr. Rockefeller came after his return from Nassau and examination at Miami by the physician of the Pujo Committee. Chairman Pujo, Mr. Untermyer and an escort of stenographers and newspaper men went there to carry out the mandate of the committee that Mr. Rockefeller should at least attempt to give information on his financial dealings that was considered necessary to round out certain features of the investigation.

The hearing began at 3:45 P. M. and ended at 3:57 o'clock.

Rockefeller Walks Unassisted.

When the representatives of the National House of Representatives were ushered into the reception room of the Rockefeller apartment in the Sans Souci, Mr. Rockefeller was in his bedroom with Dr. Chappell. The room they entered is a spacious, unostentatious chamber, at one end of which stood a plain square table covered with green baize. Chairs had been arranged for the party, and a large rocker, for use by Mr. Rockefeller, was immediately behind the table. To its right was a small stand on which were Dr. Chappell's instruments and a small box of pills used by Mr. Rockefeller to soothe his throat when threatened with spasms. In the room, besides the stenographers and secretaries, were Chairman Pujo and Mr. Untermyer, representing the Federal inquirers, and Messrs. John A. Garver of New York and A. J. Cravatt, counsel for the financier.

Dr. Chappell came in from the other room for a conference. He and the lawyer soon convinced the visitors that Mr. Rockefeller was ready for a bona fide examination if physically able to undergo the ordeal. Then Dr. Chappell entered the adjoining chamber, where Mr. Rockefeller had been waiting with his daughter, Mrs. D. H. McAlpin, who arrived at the island last night from New York with Dr. Chappell and Mr. Garver.

Dr. Chappell soon returned from the bedchamber with Mr. Rockefeller walking close by his side unassisted. It looked as though he would be able to stand an examination of an hour's stretch. He walked slowly and somewhat unsteadily, but except for a stooping of his broad shoulders he seemed to bear well his seventy-one years. Mr. Rockefeller would stand almost 6 feet tall if erect. His hair is plentiful, but snowy white. His white mustache was closely cropped. He wore a business suit of gray, with sack coat, a wine-colored bow tie, and slippers. He bore no evidence of emaciation, and when in repose his face indicated no strain, although touched with a striking pallor. When Chairman Pujo and Mr. Untermyer were introduced, Mr. Rockefeller nodded and pointed toward his lawyers, Messrs. Garver and Cravatt.

Wrote Statement to Save Speaking.

Mr. Rockefeller seated himself in the rocking chair. Frank R. Hanna, the Pujo Committee stenographer, sat to his right. It was to Mr. Hanna that the witness whispered what he had to say, at one point touching the stenographer's ear with his lips. Dr. Chappell sat to the left of Mr. Rockefeller with Mr. Garver within easy reach. Behind him was a petite young woman from Brunswick, Miss Edith Ferguson, under instructions to record Mr. Rockefeller's testimony. Although she sat immediately behind the witness, she was unable to hear his words until they had been repeated by Mr. Hanna.

Sitting next to the stenographer at the table were A. Mareschale McDermott of Washington and Harry Hoffman of New York, private secretaries of Chairman Pujo and Mr. Untermyer. The two inquirers sat across the small table from Mr. Rockefeller. Mr. Cravatt was to the right of Mr. Rockefeller, almost touching elbows with the stenographer.

Mr. Pujo began the proceedings by swearing the witness, advising him that he might take the oath sitting. Mr. Rockefeller's right hand trembled badly with palsy when raised.

This formality over Mr. Rockefeller handed to the stenographer a page of handwriting. It was a statement laboriously written by him to avoid the strain of speaking five sentences. In it he said:

I am urgently advised and warned by my physician that this examination is attended with very serious danger, on account of the precarious condition of my throat. I desire, however, to make the effort, as I have not now and never have had any disposition to avoid testifying before your committee, except as I have been cautioned by my physicians that doing so would endanger my life.

DUKE WINS AT MONTE CARLO.

Westminster, Rushing for a Train, Said He Was $5,000 Ahead.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The Duke of Westminster has made something toward polo expenses at Monte Carlo. He had to leave his rooms in a hurry to catch a train, and cried to a friend as he ran out:

"It's a jolly good thing I have to catch the train. I am over £1,000 ($5,000) to the good."

MRS. R. BELMONT SUES.

Ethel Lorraine Belmont, who was formerly a member of the chorus at the Winter Garden, filed suit in the County Clerk's office yesterday for separation from her husband, Raymond Belmont, the son of August Belmont. In her complaint Mrs. Belmont charges her husband with desertion and non-support.

They were married in Jersey City on Nov. 21, 1912. The young bride alleges that with the single exception of $50 given to her on their honeymoon trip she has received nothing for her support from either Raymond Belmont or any of his family. He left her on Nov. 29 after they had lived a short while at 236 West Fifty-fifth Street, and she says that she has not seen him nor received any communication from him since. He is now at Garhot, S. C., on a hunting trip. Yesterday Supreme Court Justice Hendrick signed an order permitting service on him in the suit at that place by publication.

Gov. Sulzer came to this city from Albany last night and went to the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. He is here to attend the Lotos Club dinner this evening.

MUST SPECIFY COMPLAINTS.

Appellate Division Rules That Vague Charges Won't Hold in Divorce Suits.

Complaints in divorce actions must be specific, the Appellate Division ruled yesterday in sustaining the appeal of Mrs. Charles Furthman from a Supreme Court order denying her a bill of particulars of the charges against her. Furthman, who is a Park Row saloonkeeper with a house in Riverside Drive, accused her of misconduct with "divers" men, at "divers" places and times.

The Appellate Division ruled that an accused person must be acquainted with the charges to be met on a trial and that such a complaint, liberally sprinkled with "divers," gave her no information. Under such a blanket allegation, the court observed, it would be possible to charge her at the trial with wrongdoing with any man and at any time in a period of two years.

NEEDN'T ENDURE RATS.

Appellate Division Rules They Afford Sufficient Ground for Breaking Lease.

The Appellate Division added another cause yesterday to the list of justifiable reasons for breaking an apartment house lease. This new cause was rats. Carl Bonwit carried the fight for a tenant's right to be free from rats from the Municipal Court through the Appellate Term to the Appellate Division. The Barnard Realty Company sought to enforce his lease. The Appellate Division wiped out the old decisions with this ruling:

"Very large numbers of people live in tenement houses, apartment houses and apartment hotels in this city. Such tenants have and can have control only of the inside of their limited premises. Conditions unknown to the ancient common law are thus created. This requires elasticity in the application of the principles thereof. This tenant could not pull down the walls and ceilings. He and his family ought not to be compelled to pay rent for an apartment in which they could not live."

KILLED IN ELEVATOR SHAFT.

Henry Schwitzer Falls Backward Through an Open Door.

Henry Schwitzer, chief examiner of the agency department of the German-American Fire Insurance Company, alighted from the elevator yesterday afternoon at the sixth floor of the building at 1 Liberty Street, in which his office was located. The elevator immediately shot upward and persons in it caught a glimpse of Mr. Schwitzer as he stumbled and toppled backward into the shaft, the doors of which set in motion by the elevator man were slowly closing.

Women in the car screamed, and their cries aroused other tenants of the building. Employes ran to the basement, where Mr. Schwitzer was found lying senseless at the bottom of the shaft. Dr. Friedman came from the Volunteer Hospital and found Mr. Schwitzer still alive. His skull had been fractured and his right leg and left arm broken, however, and he died before he could be carried to the hospital.

Mr. Schwitzer was 45 years old and lived with his wife and five children at 70 East Seventh Street, Brooklyn.

PRUSSIAN AVIATORS LOST.

Two of Naval Service Fall Into Sea and Are Drowned.

DANZIG, Prussia, Feb. 7.—Two naval aviators, Lieut. Commander Walter Janetzki and his machinist, Dieckmann, were drowned to-day in the Gulf of Danzig through the collapse of the aeroplane in which they were flying.

The aviators were 150 yards above the sea, between Zoppot and Aldershorst, when the right wing of their machine broke and the aeroplane fell into the water. Boats were rushed to the spot as speedily as possible, but neither of the men could be found. This is the first fatality to occur among the members of the recently established marine station at Putzig.

DIDN'T USE DOG'S BRAIN.

Physicians Say Only Dura Was Put Into Patient's Head.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 7.—W. A. Smith of Kalamazoo, for a part of whose brain the dura of a dog's brain was substituted on Wednesday, will probably recover, according to physicians in the University Hospital, where the operation was performed.

Smith had an abcess on the brain, and when the diseased portion was removed the dura, which is the outer membrane of the brain of the dog, was substituted.

The physicians say Smith will not suffer any inconvenience from the substitution if he recovers from the shock incident to the operation.

GRAFT NET READY TO TAKE SWEENEY

WALDO CALLS OFF INQUIRY

DILLON SENT TO BROOKLYN

Ex-Gambler Tells Curran Committee That He Paid $50,000 to Police —Mrs. Walsh Aids Whitman.

The friction between the office of District Attorney Whitman and Police Headquarters reached an acute stage yesterday afternoon because of the independent investigation into police graft Commissioner Waldo had instigated. Earlier in the day Mrs. Thomas W. Walsh, wife of the police Captain who confessed to taking graft, and John Hartigan, for many years a detective under Inspector Sweeney, were examined before Justice Goff, and out of this examination came enough links in a chain of evidence, it was said, to insure the indictment of at least one Inspector. By nightfall plans were nearly completed for the presentation before the Extraordinary Grand Jury on Monday of four witnesses, whose testimony, it was confidently predicted, would result in the indictment of Capt. Walsh. These were the big features of the day in the fight against graft in the Police Department.

Despite the astounding revelations that have been made already, Mr. Whitman says that he has covered only a small part of the field of graft. Its area is so great, and its roots so deep, that only constant and connected work for many weeks will give even the faintest idea of its extent. Frequent statements that the "System" had wrung $5,000,000 a year from all sources of graft, natural and artificial, were at first thought to be greatly exaggerated. Mr. Whitman himself thought there was small truth in the assertions. But he changed his mind.

Graft Toll an Enormous Total.

He became convinced that the total amount of graft taken yearly from crooks and from others who had only the fear of police disfavor to influence them came to a sum so big that the mere mention of it would seem to read like a story from "The Arabian Nights." Already, Mr. Whitman's work has led him twice into the very centre of Police Headquarters, and almost close enough to two big police officials to make him believe that some day in the near future he would be in a position to have these two men firmly within the toils of the law. Efforts have been made for the last few days to lead Mr. Whitman into other paths.

Red herrings have been dragged across the scent, but he has kept right on after one man. This one man is Inspector Sweeney, whose name was mentioned in the confessions of Capt. Walsh and Fox. It was mentioned several times yesterday during the examination before Justice Goff.

The most stirring event of the day was the friction between the District Attorney and Police Headquarters. While Mr. Whitman was busy in the Criminal Court Building trying to beat out of the cloud of rumors, random stories, and disconnected statements enough facts to catch some bigger police officials than a Captain in his graft net, Deputy Commissioner Newburger was presiding over a hastily arranged court in the big police building, and was seeking to learn just how much truth there was in the many stories connecting certain policemen with having been part of the system of graft.

Mr. Newburger is a very able lawyer. He was concerned in a number of prosecutions of notorious criminals, in investigating gambling for a neighborhood society, and in helping to prepare important cases for some of the most eminent lawyers and influential citizens in the city. So Mr. Waldo directed him to begin at Headquarters an inquiry into the charges made against various policemen. Neither Mr. Waldo, Mr. Newburger, nor any other police official had procured any information for themselves. Whatever investigation they might make would be based upon the labors of Mr. Whitman.

Waldo Move Worries Whitman.

The news that this official police proceeding was going on worried Mr. Whitman. He was too busy to look up the law to learn just what effect this independent examination would have upon the heavy work he was doing or whether it might not be possible for persons testifying under oath before Deputy Commissioner Newburger to become exempt from any criminal prosecution. He was also afraid that if the suspicion became general throughout the department that any crooked policeman could get immunity by testifying at Headquarters his work would become doubly difficult.

Mr. Whitman was also too busy to interfere in the matter in any other way than to make known his dissatisfaction in no uncertain tones. News came to Mr. Whitman that Mr. Newburger intended to examine Inspector Sweeney and Capts. Hussey and Thompson, who were in charge of the Sixth Inspection District at various times while Capt Walsh was collecting graft there, and that all of the detectives who worked under these commanders would be subjected to interrogations. He also learned that Inspector Sweeney appeared before Commissioner Waldo and denied every statement reflecting upon him made by Walsh and Fox, and that Mr. Waldo ordered that charges against the Inspector be prepared.

Waldo Promises to Hold Off.

News of Mr. Whitman's dissatisfaction with the way his graft trail was being crossed by the work at Headquarters got to Mr. Waldo. He wrote this letter and sent his special messenger with it to Mr. Whitman:

Feb. 7, 1913.

Hon. Charles S. Whitman, District Attorney, County of New York, New York City:

Sir: Deputy Commissioner Newburger informs me that you desired him to refrain from cross-examining Capt. Walsh, as it might interfere with your prosecution of this case. I have directed him to comply with your wishes in this matter, as well as in any other cases of similar nature which may hereafter arise.

It is my desire that the two departments work in absolute harmony, for the conviction of any wrongdoers who may be in the department. Very respectfully,

R. WALDO, Police Commissioner.

Mr. Whitman returned this reply:

Feb. 7, 1913.

Hon. Rhinelander Waldo, Police Commissioner, Grand and Centre Streets, New York City:

Dear Sir: I write to acknowledge your communication of even date just received, and to thank you for your proffer of assistance and co-operation on the part of the Police Department.

Assuring you of my desire to avail myself of such assistance and co-operation, I am very truly yours,

CHARLES S WHITMAN, District Attorney.

Mr. Whitman was asked whether he understood that Mr. Waldo promised in his letter to refrain from interfering in any way with the investigation into police graft until the District Attorney's office was through with the work. He replied that he intended to accept Mr. Waldo's letter as sincere in every respect.

The action of the police in the case of Fox was referred to. Mr. Whitman replied that he remembered that matter very well, and that he hoped that nothing of the kind would occur again.

After Mr. Waldo wrote Mr. Whitman the Police Headquarters examination adjourned.

Mrs. Walsh Answers Frankly.

Justice Goff was sitting in court when he was told that Mr. Whitman had two witnesses that he would like to have him examine. The Justice immediately left the bench and went to chambers, where Mr. Whitman joined him. After a short talk the wife of Capt. Walsh was shown in. She was very nervous and excited. Many days of watching over her invalid husband, the scandal that had broken upon her family, and the many calls of worried and anxious friends at her home had greatly upset her. But the moment she began to answer questions she won the confidence and the respect of both Justice Goff and Mr. Whitman.

She answered question after question in the most direct and honest manner. Several times she thought she saw where some additional information would help and she volunteered it. Before many minutes had passed the examination became like a conference where all those present were seeking the same end. After a long session Mrs. Walsh was temporarily excused, and John Hartigan, a detective for many years for Inspector Sweeney, was called. It was the same clear-eyed and self-possessed man that had been questioned by Mr. Whitman on Wednesday. Then he said that while he had carried many messages for Inspector Sweeney and for Capt. Walsh they were all sealed, and he had no knowledge of what the envelopes contained.

But Mr. Whitman was better fortified with facts yesterday. From Mrs. Walsh he had learned that Inspector Sweeney had called upon her husband on the day or night before Fox was released from the Tombs. Mrs. Walsh was not certain about dates, but her mind was keen concerning incidents. The Inspector and her husband had talked for a time together, she said, and it was arranged that the Inspector was to send some money in an envelope around to the Captain's house the next day, the Captain was to add some money to it, and the whole was to be sealed in the envelope and sent to Fox in the Tombs Court.

Partly from Mrs Walsh and partly from other sources Mr. Whitman learned that this envelope contained $300 when it arrived at the Captain's house by the hand of Hartigan. The Captain slipped the additional $150 in it and it was then given to Hartigan, who carried it to court. Arriving there he met Fox who asked him if he had anything for him and Hartigan replied that he had an envelope. Fox asked him to keep it until they got outside. Then Fox was discharged and the two men went to a nearby café where the envelope changed hands. Hartigan was questioned along this line and he admitted that it was all true. Then he was asked if he did not know that the envelope contained money. Hartigan looked around the room. He caught the cold blue eyes of Justice Goff upon him and then he saw the stony impassive face of Mr. Whitman and he replied that he did know that there was no money in it.

It came out during the examination of Hartigan and Mrs. Walsh and in the various statements made by Capt. Walsh and Fox that the $950 contributed by Inspector Sweeney and the captain had been increased to $1,200. Of this money $200 went to a lawyer for fees, $300 was held out by another lawyer and the remaining $700 was given to George A. Sipp to induce him to remain out of the State. Mrs. Walsh also told something about telephone messages that passed between her husband and the Inspector.

Hartigan was under examination for about an hour, and when he had left Justice Goff's chambers Mr. Whitman was sure that the case against the Inspector was fairly complete. He also learned during the day that Hartigan acted for Capt. Walsh in several delicate transactions, that he and Fox had been friends for many years, and that between them they knew as much about the grafting system that was carried on by big police officials as any two small policemen in the city. When Hartigan went away Mrs. Walsh was recalled and she was told everything that Hartigan had admitted. This brightened her memory a good deal and she added some missing links to the story.

When the Grand Jury meets on Monday George A. Sipp, Thomas J. Dorien, one of the managers of the Hotel Avenel; Howard Sipp, and Fox will be examined. These witnesses will supply the evidence to procure the indictment of Capt. Walsh. It was Mr. Whitman's first intention not to call the Captain before the Grand Jury to testify against other persons until a week from Monday. But he said yesterday that the Captain would be called as soon as he appeared strong enough to stand the wracking of a stiff examination. While Mr. Whitman would not admit it the fact was that he was greatly worried about the Captain's health. The death at this time of any person who can furnish an important link in the chain of evidence would be a sad blow to him. He has taken precautions to see that the Captain is not annoyed in any way. Dr. Upton, the Captain's physician, is aiding Mr. Whitman in this work

Whitman Using Caution.

Mr. Whitman was asked if he had any information connecting Hussey and Thompson with the graft collected in the Sixth Inspection District. He replied that he had no corroboration of any such evidence. He declared that stories linking the names of these Captains with quick and certain action by the Grand Jury were not founded upon fact. Asked if it was not true that he had not found a plain trail leading into Police Headquarters, he declined to answer. He said that it would not be wise for him to tell just what he had learned until he was ready to take some decisive action. He explained that to find an indictment it must be shown just when and where money had been paid, together with many other definite facts that would show a reasonable certainty that the same evidence would be accepted in court in a criminal prosecution.

Some evidence, it was said, had also been procured against another detective who had worked under Inspector Sweeney, and known to have had intimate relations with the Inspector for many years. Around all this mass of evidence hung the $5,000 cash bail that was obtained for the release of Fox. It was said yesterday that five different persons had chipped in to make up this sum.

Fourth Deputy Commissioner Dillon was transferred to Brooklyn yesterday and placed in command of his old inspection district. He was promoted from the rank of Inspector and made a Deputy Commissioner on June 6, 1911, after a talk with Mayor Gaynor. He was considered one of the ablest Deputy Commissioners, and was assigned to try the charges against policemen hailing from Brooklyn.

Commissioner Waldo said late in the afternoon that while he was anxious to get at the bottom of all the alleged grafting in the department, he would do nothing to interfere with the work Mr. Whitman was doing. He also said that when specific charges were made against any policeman he would suspend the policeman at once.

Statement from Newburger.

Mr. Newburger made this statement:

"I went to Capt. Walsh's home to obtain a statement. I had already begun the taking of Capt. Walsh's statement, and had gone as far as asking the full name, address, and the number of years Walsh had been in the Department, and was about to question him regarding the taking of graft when District Attorney Whitman insisted on entering the room where we were. When Mr. Whitman learned that Walsh was making a statement, he said:

"'I must forbid you to make any statement, Capt. Walsh.'

"Capt. Walsh said: 'I will do anything you say, Mr. District Attorney.'

"'Well,' added Mr. Whitman, 'I would advise you to make no statement.'

"I called Mr. Whitman's attention to the fact I was there as a representative of the Police Department, and that I was endeavoring to obtain a statement from Capt. Walsh when he interfered."

A high police official, who was present when Mr. Newburger told the newspapermen of his trip to the home of Capt. Walsh, interrupted at this point:

"I want it understood," he said, "that there is no friction between the Police Department and the office of the District Attorney."

Mr. Newburger continued:

"I told Mr. Whitman I was there only to get the facts, but the District Attorney declined to allow Capt. Walsh to make any further statements."

Inspector Patrick J. Harkins of the Eighth District, Brooklyn, who testified before the Aldermanic Investigating Committee regarding the absence of vice in that borough, and Inspector John T. Murtha of the Tenth District, Brooklyn, were summoned to Headquarters by Mr. Waldo. They conferred with the Commissioner for an hour and a half. Both declined to be interviewed by reporters.

At the home of Capt. Walsh, at 1,968 Madison Avenue, the trained nurse yesterday morning said that the Captain was still very ill, but apparently no weaker than Thursday night. She added that Capt. Walsh seemed cheerful, and that he had shown no signs of despondency.

PURCELL PAID POLICE $50,000.

Ex-Gambler Tells Curran Inquiry How He Bought Protection.

James Purcell, who made a living in this city for fifteen years by gambling, came before the Curran Investigating Committee yesterday and testified that during the ten years up to the Fall of 1911 he had paid about $50,000 for protection. Practically all of this money, he said, went to the police in this borough and in Queens. During his testimony Purcell referred to many well-known police officials, to whom he said he paid protection money. He told of the efforts he had made to run his business without paying graft and how poorly he fared.

Purcell told of one occasion where Lieut. Becker had shaken him down to procure the release of some of his men who had been arrested, and among the other names he mentioned were those of Capt. Henry, Tammany Leader Cruise, and John Murphy, the brother of Charles F. Murphy. Purcell is now an employe of the Society for the Prevention of Crime, and in the course of his examination he mentioned the names of former employes of another similar society for the enforcement of the law. The tale told by Purcell was a long narrative of the hunted life of a small gambler who tried to live by his wits and had to pay dearly for it.

The meeting of the committee was especially called to examine Purcell. Mr. Whitman had talked with him first, but nothing could be gathered from his story that served to clear the way for the strengthening of any of the attacks on police graft. Mr. Whitman is making. So Purcell was turned over to Emory R. Buckner, counsel for the committee, while Assistant District Attorney Moss conducted the examination. Many accusations made by Purcell against policemen were more than five years old, so that they had passed the barrier of the Statute of Limitations. But the story as a whole was a fair one of the way the police fatten on graft.

Started Gambling in 1896.

"I was in the gambling business since 1896. First I was with an athletic club at Third Avenue between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth Streets. I met a man named Oliver Jackson, who introduced me to Frank Abrahall, who said he was looking for a man to join him in running a pool room. One was opened in the same building with the athletic club. About six weeks later I went to work for the Joe Gleason syndicate at 128th Street and Fifth Avenue. This was when I first came into contact with the police."

Purcell had several large sheets of notes which he was anxious to read from, but Mr. Moss did not want him to testify in his own way. He told Purcell to look at him and to answer questions and not to bother with his notes. Then, in reply to many questions, Purcell said:

"I was working in the Bohemian Club pool room where I frequently met Capt. Thomas, who was in command of that precinct. The pool room was at the corner of Eighty-first Street and Amsterdam Avenue. That was in 1897. Capt. Thomas used to come into the pool room every day and bet from $25 to $250 on a race. The Captain used to talk to Joe Gleason and say he wanted to get some advance information about the races. Sometimes Abrahall talked him out of wanting it and sometimes he did not succeed in doing it.

"One day the Inspector of the district, I think his name was Harley, came to the door and the Captain and proprietor rushed to the fire escape and dropped down fifty feet to the cellar.

"The next place we had was at Sixth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, between Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth Streets. It was over a saloon. Jack Robinson, a man we knew, told us that Policeman Murphy, the Inspector's man, knew we were there and Robinson said we had better give him $10. The money was handed to Robinson and he gave it to Murphy."

Purcell said he moved again to 206 East Thirty-fourth Street. Capt. John Delaney, he said, was in command of the precinct. Then Purcell said:

"Policeman Dick Cahill came around and we fixed up the payments to be made. During the first six weeks we paid $60 a week, $50 for the Captain and $10 for Cahill. Business wasn't very good here and I borrowed $1,000 from Thomas F. Woods, and, with Murphy, I opened other places in the precinct that was commanded by Capt. Martens. Abrahall paid money to Cahill, but Cahill was transferred, and he introduced me to Dick Walsh, the nephew of Inspector Walsh. Cahill said Walsh would collect the money. A man named Quinlan was Walsh's partner. There was a good deal of trouble and we were often told to shift. Dick Walsh would come around and tell us to close or move, and we finally went to a place in Thirty-third Street. Business was quiet there, too.

"There was an investigation going on and as there were six or seven poolrooms in the precinct, there was not enough business to go around. Dick Cook had a place at 206 East Thirty-fourth Street, Pat Curley had another one at Twenty-seventh Street and Fourth Avenue, and there were the Featherstone and the Sherman House and other places."

Purcell told of a shooting that occurred in the Sherman House, and then said:

"After this shooting Quinlan came to us and said for us to see Britton of the Britton Society. We paid Britton $50 a month for a couple of months. Then we moved and made a handbook at Twenty-second Street and Third Avenue, and one day we got a note telling us to call and see Britton at 112 Fulton Street. I called and the man there said that Britton wasn't in, but that his name was Ike, and I left $25 with him. Then I opened a place in Long Island City.

"One of the men who dealt for me in a stuss game," he said, "was arrested, and then we had to begin paying money there.

"A man named Pickett came and asked us if we wanted to open, and it was arranged that we should get an old car barn which was fitted up. While we were getting ready Dick Darling, who worked in a pool room near by, got dissatisfied and he came in with me. He got permission for us to go ahead. This was in 1909. Sheriff Harvey was the leader. We were there about three months, and we lost $300 on the book and won about $4,000 on the crap game.

"Jim Burns came around and said Sheriff Harvey was going to close us up and said it would be right for us to go and see him at Flushing. I saw him the next day and he asked me if I did not think I ought to see some one before I broke in there. After some talk it was agreed that I should pay him $50 a week and the District Attorney $100, because Harvey said the District Attorney would have to be seen, too. The next day I gave him $400 to cover the three weeks I had already been running.

"Purcell said that he came back to the Twenty-first Precinct in Manhattan and went into the handbook business with Abrahall. While we were in Thirty-third Street we learned that McClintock wanted $50 a month and we knew that we had to give it. Jim McCoy collected for a couple of months and told us we would have to give it regularly or that Mr. McClintock wouldn't take it at all."

Purcell said that while he was in Long Island City a ward man named Herbert Graham used to collect for the Captain. He got $100 a week as well as $50 a month for Britton. He said that prior to the election he had to give up $300 for election expenses to help Cassidy. He said that when he came back to this city he opened a place at 235 East Thirty-third Street. Mr. Moss asked Purcell whether he had ever paid Capt. Gannon any money.

"No," replied Purcell.

Then Purcell said:

"There was a wardman named Carroll who collected money in that precinct. We paid him $60 a week. We often had to shift because many persons wrote complaining letters. Most of these letters were written by other gamblers and were for blackmailing purposes. For a time I ran a place at Thirty-sixth Street and Sixth Avenue. It had been owned by Pat McCall, whom I joined. 'Paddy the Pig' also used to run it. We paid no protection there because we were fighting the coppers. Jack McAuliffe, the lightweight champion, would often come in and get $10 to give to the cops on the door. Inspector Walsh would not do business with anybody. We ran about four months and were doing well, but we couldn't stand McAuliffe."

Purcell next told about a political contest on in the Twenty-first Precinct when he was there between Byrnes and Larney for the leadership.

"That was before Mike Cruise's time," said the witness. "From what I understand, Charley Murphy, Mike Cruise, and another man were sitting up in the Anawanda Club one night, and Charley Murphy deplored the fact that there wasn't a good leader in that district. 'I wish you were up there, Mike,' said Murphy, and Cruise took the hint. He moved up there, and the following year he won out in the club contests. But he would never come near me, and I wanted protection for a poolroom I was running back of my saloon there."

The witness told of one year during the administration of District Attorney Jerome when he was operating in East Thirty-sixth Street. He said that public speeches made by the District Attorney to the effect that he admired a gambler for his nerve in not giving up money to the police were taken by the gamblers to mean that they could operate if they could get away with it, so far as the police were concerned.

In telling of how he finally got established he said:

"When I got ready to open up the house I went to see Cruise. I told him I wanted to open up, and he said, 'How much do I get out of it?'

"'How much do you want?' I asked him.

"We talked the matter over and discussed whether it would be better to work on a percentage basis or for so much a week. He agreed to work at so much a week, and Cruise said, 'All right, you tell Murtha when you are ready.'

"When I got ready I saw Murtha and he asked me what I was going to give up. I said I thought about $120 a week. Fifty for the leader, fifty for the Inspector, and $10 apiece for Stevens and Lee, the ward men. Stevens, who was Paddy Cray's ward man, said it would be $125 or nothing, and it was $125. After I had opened a short time, Lee was changed to another precinct and I kicked against paying so much. It didn't do any good. Five weeks later I got a 'phone message telling me to close up. Murtha said the word came from Stevens and I closed up."

Then Purcell told of the time he was raided by Lieut. Becker and how he had to pay Detective White $350 through a lawyer to get the men turned out. Purcell told also about asking Ray to fix it so he could open a pool room, and was told he had to see Capt. Cray, a brother-in-law of Charles F. Murphy. Then Purcell said he talked with Cruise, but satisfactory arrangements never were made.

The witness also asserted that he had found that he could bribe any squad at Police Headquarters which was sent out to raid his place with the exception of Lieut. Costigan.

MAKE A POOLROOM RAID.

Police Find Dust-Covered Furniture —Eight Men Arrested.

Lieut. Costigan of the "Strong Arm" squad, at the head of Detectives Jessup, Hixon, and others, drove up to a four-story brick building at 1,319 Third Avenue last night, battered down a door leading from a cigar store on the ground floor to the floors above and entered a room which, it is charged, was used as a racing pool room. Eight men, for whom warrants were issued yesterday afternoon by Chief Magistrate McAdoo, were previously arrested in the cigar store and in front of it and locked up in the East Sixty-seventh Street Station charged with being common gamblers.

No one was found in the second floor room, and everything was covered with dust. There were blackboards and stools in the room, but no telegraph instruments or visible wiring. According to the police a raid was made on the same place last July.

The prisoners will be arraigned in Harlem Court to-day. A patrolman was left in charge of the rooms.

HARVEY MAKES A DENIAL.

Purcell Didn't Pay Graft to Him, Says ex-Sheriff.

Herbert S. Harvey, ex-Sheriff of Queens, accused by Purcell in his testimony before the Curran Committee of having accepted graft from him while conducting a gambling resort in Long Island City, made an indignant denial last night. Ex-Sheriff Harvey said:

"The man's crazy. If not, he has mistaken me for some one else. He never offered me $400 nor paid me any other sum."

that Government to state the ratio of German needs for security in terms of the British fleet.

"That stage has been passed, and for the first time we have German naval needs expressed in terms of the British fleet. What is more, we have a formula, put forward by the British First Lord, accepted. If these be the fruits of Mr. Churchill's very candid statement last year, he can justly claim the credit for a notable performance."

The Times, commenting on Von Tirpitz's statement, says:

"Should it happily prove to be the case that Germany is now willing to accept the kind of understanding on which Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, was ready to enter last year, this country will heartily welcome her decision. The growth of friendly relations between us, which the cordial co-operation of the two Governments within the last few months has done so much to foster, should enable both countries to discuss a naval policy without the bitterness and suspicion of the past. Our policy is known and fixed. We mean to maintain at all costs our supremacy at sea, which is vital to us, and our Dominions mean to help us to maintain it."

The Daily Chronicle says:

"The news has been well received in Austria, and The Neue Freie Presse hails it as signaling the removal of one of the most dangerous features from the European situation. Anglo-German rivalry has had bad effects everywhere. The budgets of all the great powers have felt it. With its disappearance relief will be general and welcome, and in the new era, which we hope is heralded, the forces working for world peace will receive still more powerful support and reinforcement."

If I find that the strain is too great for me to take further risk I shall have to ask your indulgence in not pressing the examination further. As I have lost my voice, I would esteem it a privilege if you would permit me to whisper my answers to the official stenographer, who sits beside me and who will read them aloud. It is impossible for me to write them.

Reassured by Mr. Untermyer.

Mr. Rockefeller was plainly nervous and Mr. Untermyer, after hearing the statement, hastened to reassure him.

"Mr. Rockefeller," he said, "the Chairman will expect you and your physicians to advise if you feel at any time your condition becomes such as to render further examination inadvisable. It must be clearly understood that neither the Chairman nor counsel care to, or are willing to assume any responsibility whatever on such a subject. You and your physicians are the best judges of the situation, and we shall have to rely upon you, under the circumstances disclosed by the testimony before the committee as to your physical condition. On that understanding we will proceed with the examination."

Mr. Untermyer then put the formal question:

"What is your residence?"

Mr. Rockefeller whispered to Mr. Hanna: "689 Fifth Avenue, New York City."

Referring to widely published stories that the financier had been playing golf at Jekyll Island, Mr. Untermyer next asked:

"Referring to the statement just made by you, it is currently reported that your health is such that you are able to play golf and indulge in sports of that sort. What is the fact as to that?"

Mr. Rockefeller here showed a desire to be emphatic, although trembling and compelled to whisper.

"I have never played a game of golf in my life," he said. "I try to take open air exercise every day. That is the extent of my amusement—taking outdoor exercise."

Even this slight effort, however, seemed to tax him, and his increased nervousness was evident to all present.

Mr. Untermyer paused to let the witness fully recover, then, in order to make the most of the short examination plunged into the manipulation of copper stocks.

"Do you recall the occasion of the organization of the Amalgamated Copper Company in 1898?" he asked.

Mr. Rockefeller leaned over to Mr. Hanna, clutching the table and controlling himself with difficulty.

"I do," he responded. These two words were uttered with difficulty and followed by renewed tremoling.

Again Mr. Untermyer waited for a time. His voice was gentle when he asked the next question:

"Was it in 1898?"

Dr. Chappell Saves His Patient.

Here came what Dr. Chappell had predicted if Mr. Rockefeller was put under a strain. It was a violent spasm of the throat. The witness's head had been swaying ominously and the palsy spread over his whole nervous system. He fell back into his chair, coughing. The trembling of his hands and the waggling of his head became more violent and the muscles of his face and neck contracted and expanded spasmodically. Dr. Chappell was at his side in an instant, administering a pill and treatment. Mr. Rockefeller became more quiet, but the physician was determined that the ordeal should go no further. He turned to Mr. Pujo.

"Mr. Chairman," he said. "I would like to take the liberty of drawing your attention to Mr. Rockefeller's condition at the present moment. He is showing some symptoms which precede spasms of the larynx, and I strongly urge you not to proceed, as in doing so you are certainly endangering his life at the present moment. Since my appearance before the committee in Washington, a new and more serious development has occurred in Mr. Rockefeller's throat. You can see his general shaking now. He is on the verge of a spasm of the larynx which might choke him."

Messrs. Pujo and Untermyer were plainly concerned over the serious turn the situation had taken and conferred in whispers. They decided to put Dr. Chappell on oath, and he was sworn.

"Do you solemnly swear," asked Chairman Pujo, "that the statement you have made with reference to the present condition of Mr. Rockefeller is true and correct according to your knowledge as a physician and your judgment as an expert?"

"I do," answered Dr. Chappell emphatically.

Mr. Untermyer turned to Mr. Rockefeller.

"You have heard Dr. Chappell's statement," he said soothingly. "Do you feel in such a condition that you think it unsafe to proceed further?"

Mr. Rockefeller was leaning back in his chair fatigued. Mr. Hanna leaned over so that the financier's lips almost touched his ear and repeated the answer: "I do."

The lawyer held another consultation with Mr. Pujo and then the Chairman arose.

"The chair states," he said, "that in view of the declaration by Dr. Chappell under oath and also that of witness, Mr. Rockefeller, besides what is manifest from the appearance and condition of the witness, no further proceedings will be had at this time."

Mr. Untermyer also had a few words to say.

"I should be unwilling," he explained, "to go further with the examination at this time from what I have just heard and observed as to Mr. Rockefeller's condition."

Mr. Pujo then formally ended the examination. Mr. Rockefeller showed much nervousness for the short interval that he remained in the room. After being assured that he would not again be troubled by the committee he shook hands with his visitors and was escorted back to his bedchamber. He immediately lay down and was under Dr. Chappell's care from that time on.

When Messrs. Pujo and Untermyer returned with Mr. Cravatt to the parlors of the Jekyl Island Club, where the newspaper correspondents were waiting, all three were visibly agitated. Mr. Pujo had felt the experience keenly. After hearing the opinions of the physicians concerned, he had voted in the Money Trust Committee against the attempt to take Mr. Rockefeller's testimony. He had consented to act only because the committee as a whole had taken the position that Mr. Rockefeller's avoidance of the process of the committee had practically made an issue between the Government and a rich man, and the Government could not confess itself powerless in such a case. He was now convinced that, however unwise Mr. Rockefeller's course may have been, the medical men had been justified in their attitude. He issued this statement to the public.

Mr. Rockefeller's condition is simply pitiable. He not only shakes like a leaf all over his body, but after the first question he began to cough convulsively, and it was evident that he was laboring under great excitement and on the verge of collapse. He had to whisper slowly the few words he spoke into the ear of the stenographer who sat beside him. This he did with the greatest difficulty, shaking like a leaf all the while.

Such a thing as an examination would be impossible. As soon as Dr. Chappell intervened and requested that the hearing proceed no further on the ground stated by him, Mr. Untermyer and I felt that it would be dangerous and inhuman to go further, and I thereupon ordered a suspension of the examination.

Even if Dr. Chappell had not intervened and prevented further examination, I would have refused to proceed on my own accord. Nothing would have induced me to assume such a responsibility, in view of what we know of the character of the disease from the committee's physician, Dr. Richardson, as well as from Drs. Lambert and Chappell.

If anything had happened to Mr. Rockefeller during that spasm of coughing I never would have forgiven myself. If we had believed his condition to be so manifestly critical we would not have dreamed of making the attempt.

Mr. Pujo was closely questioned by the newspaper men on the return journey from the island to Brunswick as to every aspect of the attempt to examine Mr. Rockefeller. He was even asked by one passenger on the little steamer whether he thought "a job" had been put up on the committee. Mr. Pujo resented the suggestion and exclaimed with emphasis:

"There was certainly no job about this. Judging by my experience as a lawyer in the observance of every manner of the witness, I want it distinctly understood that I don't think there was the slightest taint of malingering in what occurred to-day."

Contrary to widely published predictions that the inquirers and newspaper men would meet with a chilly reception at Jekyl Island, the club officials extended every courtesy. When the Pujo party arrived at Brunswick at 12:30, New York time, they were greeted by A. L. Crovatt, local attorney for Mr. Rockefeller and counsel for the Club. He had been waiting for them an hour because of delay of the train. At a dock at the foot of the main street, the club's steamer, with colors flying, was ready to receive them.

The newspaper men, who had been warned that they might be barred, were invited aboard the craft and told that the freedom of the island would be accorded them as the guests of the "islanders." The run of eight miles down Oglethorpe Bay into the tortuous channel of Jekyl Creek was covered in forty minutes, and the party stepped out amid the green foliage and among orange trees loaded with golden fruit.

John A. Garver of New York, attorney for Mr. Rockefeller, was at the Jekyl Island wharf to meet Messrs. Pujo and Untermyer, and escorted them at once to the Sans Souci, the club apartment house, three stories high, containing two apartments on each floor. Mr. Rockefeller occupies the north apartment, second floor, overlooking Oglethorpe Bay. The other five belong to J. Pierpont Morgan, James A. Scrymser, Commodore Frederick G. Bourne, James J. Hill, and Robert C. Pruyn of Albany.

Facilities for sending out the news of the examination were provided for the newspaper men, telegraph instruments having been connected with the club's telephone wires. The correspondents had the freedom of the island, but were told they would not be permitted to attend the examination until it was made evident that Mr. Rockefeller could stand the excitement.

After the examination the party remained an hour on Jekyl Island and then sailed back to Brunswick. Mr. Pujo left late this afternoon for Washington, and Mr. Untermyer departed with his secretary for Palm Beach, where he will spend several weeks outlining the preliminary report of the Pujo committee.

What the Committee Wanted.

From Mr. Untermyer it was learned that it was the desire of the committee to ascertain from Mr. Rockefeller the facts regarding the Amalgamated Copper Company transactions about the time of the failure of the Globe Bank in Boston in 1901 and corroborative particulars concerning the claim that Messrs. Rogers and Rockefeller "rigged the market" for Amalgamated Copper stock speculation in 1907, when vast quantities of copper metal were being hoarded by the Amalgamated's selling Company.

His first questions to-day were intended to lead directly into the increase of the capital of the Amalgamated from $75,000,000 to $155,000,000 in 1901 in connection with the acquisition of the mines of the Butte and Boston and the Boston and Montana Copper Companies. He wished to ask what interest Thomas W. Lawson of Boston may have had about that year in Butte and Boston stock; whether Lawson, Rogers, and Rockefeller were acquiring such stock on joint account, and whether Mr. Lawson conducted a publicity campaign to bear the market in such stocks and so brought profits of millions to himself and his associates.

Some details of Mr. Rockefeller's movements while he was being sought by the Pujo Committee were revealed to-day. He was at Jekyll Island during part of the time deputies of the House Sergeant-at-Arms were seeking him in New York City. According to the story told here, he arrived at Jekyll Island Dec. 19 and remained until Jan. 2, when he went to Fernandina, Fla., on the club's steamer, and afterward to Nassau.

ROCKEFELLER LONG AILING.

Physicians, However, Only Recently Found He Had Cancer.

Admission at Jekyll Island that William Rockefeller has cancer of the throat, or cardinome of the larynx, confirms reports that had been circulated in New York for several weeks. The disease is incurable and very distressing. It was this ailment that kept the financier in retirement for the last six months, which sent him to Bermuda, to Florida, and finally to Jekyll Island, while process servers from the House of Representatives sought him as a witness for the Pujo Committee. It sent him abroad two years ago to consult specialists. A small growth in his throat had sent him to Europe in search of treatment as long ago as eighteen years.

The nature of Mr. Rockefeller's illness had been suspected for some time past by intimate friends and by a few physicians. It was only last Fall, however, in September it is believed, that the verdict of five of the most eminent throat specialists of this city, established beyond doubt that his ailment was really cancer.

The test by which Mr. Rockefeller's specialists determined the unfortunate nature of his trouble, was a delicate one, and it is said that before submitting to it Mr. Rockefeller donned a mask which concealed his features from those who examined his throat. This story reached THE TIMES as well as other newspapers at the time of the examination, but it was impossible then to obtain an admission or a denial of its truth.

A laryngoscope—a device of mirrors lighted by an electric bulb—was employed in the examination. Working by the view afforded by this instrument, the physicians cut away bits of tissue from the growth in Mr. Rockefeller's throat, sliced these bits to extreme thinness by a microtome, and then, having stained them, the better to define their structure, placed them on glass slides beneath a microscope. From the appearance of the cells the specialists reached the conclusion that Mr. Rockefeller had cancer.

It is understood that the examination was made in the office of Dr. Walter F. Chappell, who since has been in constant attendance on Mr. Rockefeller and among the men said to have taken part in it, and in the consultation which followed, the names of Dr. Cornelius G. Coakley and Dr. Harmon Smith were mentioned.

One of Mr. Rockefeller's friends who sees a great deal of him and is familiar with the various stages of his illness said yesterday:

"It was eighteen years ago that Mr. Rockefeller developed throat trouble. A growth the size of a pea was found in his throat. He went abroad then and spent nine months under the care and observation of the best specialists in Europe. They are said to have assured him that the growth was not malignant. Sometimes the growth would disappear altogether. At other times it would develop with suffocating suddenness.

"It caused Mr. Rockefeller much discomfort—even distress—and two years ago he went abroad and again submitted to an examination by specialists. They confirmed their first diagnosis. It had not developed in size, but its position was such as to arouse serious doubts to the advisability of an operation for its removal.

"At times it became necessary to insert a tube in Mr. Rockefeller's throat to prevent strangulation. Not so very long ago he was informed by his physician that there was danger of his choking to death unless there was some one constantly near him to insert the tube to keep the throat open when he was seized with the choking sensation due to the movement of the growth."

In the case of Mr. Rockefeller the disease is especially dangerous because of his advanced age—he is 71 years old. Though no remedy is known, it is customary to treat carcinoma of the larynx with local applications to allay pain and with efforts to build up the constitution of the patient by tonics and careful living. Because of his age the danger to Mr. Rockefeller of unusual exertion of the throat or great excitement is extreme.

HARPER'S BOOKS

The Mystery of the Barranca
By Herman Whitaker

All the torrid passion of the tropic South is in this tale of Northern pluck and Southern love (and hatred) in Mexico. Two young American engineers attempt to develop a mine, but encounter all kinds of opposition. The heroine—niece of the two rich Mexican landholders who are opposing the gringos—because of her mixed Spanish and Irish ancestry, is an unusual joy and delight.

The Necessary Evil
By Charles Rann Kennedy

This new play by the author of "The Servant in the House" is more stirring than any novel. Mr. Kennedy has the knack of telling the truth in a way that startles and shocks, but never repels. This play expresses just what the author thinks—what every one thinks in his heart—about the social evil—and expresses it with extraordinary directness, cleanness, and poetic elevation.

Lyric Diction
By Dora Duty Jones

To cultivate melodious speech tones and to maintain verbal purity in singing without interfering with approved methods of vocal instruction is the aim of the writer. It will be particularly helpful to all actors, singers and public speakers. There is a preface contributed by Madame Melba.

The Dragoman
By George K. Stiles

It is a love story. The heroine is an American girl. The hero is a young Englishman. The scene is Egypt—not the Egypt of hotels and tourists, but the grim hinterland of the upper Nile, where strange things happen and few white men ever venture. The East and its mystery, the mighty power of Mohammedanism, are all elements which make the story one of extraordinary and fascinating interest.

BEACH ACQUITTED; CHARGES CONSPIRACY

Absolutely No Case Against Him, Says the Foreman of the Jury.

WIFE'S STORY ATTACKED

Special to The New York Times.

AIKEN, S. C., Feb. 7.—Frederick O. Beach was acquitted this afternoon in the Aiken County Court of the charge of assaulting his wife. The jury was out exactly one hour and forty-five minutes.

"I have never for a moment doubted that when twelve men heard the testimony upon which the prosecution based this ridiculous charge they would quickly render a verdict of not guilty. It was a cruel conspiracy, and I knew a jury would quickly detect it."

This was the statement made by Mr. Beach this afternoon, a few minutes after the verdict was rendered.

The case was given to the jury at 1:14 o'clock and many of those in the courtroom crowd expected a verdict to be rendered before 1:30, the time set for recess. It was exactly one minute before 3 o'clock when the members of the jury filed out of their room and took their seats in the box. Neither Mr. Beach nor his wife was present, and the court waited until 3:05, when Mr. Beach, not having arrived, John W. Dunbar, the clerk of the court, read the verdict: "We, the jury, find the defendant not guilty."

Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin was the only member of the cottage colony present. Mr. Beach came in a moment afterward, and when one of his lawyers told him of the finding of the jury, he smiled his satisfaction. He shook hands with each of his lawyers, and with the four jurors seated on the front row, waving his hand to include the rest; then shook hands with Judge Spain. Mr. Beach received from the court stenographer his gold-handled diamond-studded pocket knife, and then went to the foreman of the jury, shook hands with him and slapped him on the back. Mrs. Beach did not return to the court room after the recess.

When the foreman of the jury, A. H. McCarrell, was asked why it took the jury so long to reach a verdict, he turned upon the newspaper men with the question: "Have you ever been up against human nature in the rough? Well, everything in God's world except this case has been argued since we went into that room. Some of them wanted to bring up old crimes, but there was absolutely nothing in the case." He added smilingly: "There was too much Watso and not enough Sherlocko."

"There was absolutely no case against you," he said to Mr. Beach.

From the Court House Mr. Beach went directly to convey the intelligence to Mrs. Beach. He then went to the Aiken Club, where his friends showered him with congratulations.

Summing up his argument this morning, Mr. Gunter outlined the theory of the prosecution. Discounting the assumption that a negro cut Mrs. Beach's throat, he asserted that the prosecution had eliminated every one upon whom the defense had endeavored to lay the crime. He expected to show, he said, that the man who hit Pearl Hampton, the negro servant who was also attacked, was the one who assaulted Mrs. Beach.

"Mr. Beach's lawyers have asked for a theory, for a motive," cried the prosecutor. "If they want it, I will give it to you." The crowd in the courtroom bent forward. For the last three days it had been waiting for the case to reach this stage, just as it had waited in anticipation of Mrs. Beach taking the witness stand.

"I tell you," thundered Mr. Gunter, "the green-eyed monster, jealousy, will cause men to do things that may seem unaccountable." With this introduction he plunged into a recital which, as he went on, brought the color into Mrs. Beach's face.

"The afternoon of Feb. 28," he said, "Mr. Beach had an engagement to play golf, but somebody came to his home and he broke it. Later he went to the Aiken Club, where he says he took a drink. He might have taken more than one before he returned home. That night his wife went out, leaving him in the house, and stayed longer than he thought she should, and he went out hunting for her. From the point on Newberry Street where the paling was torn off the fence Mr. Beach had a direct view in the moonlight across his back lot to the laundry. It has been established in the testimony of Mayor Gyles and others that there was a passageway through the board fence from the Beach yard into the laundry inclosure. He heard voices out there by the laundry, and perhaps he recognized them."

"Who said all that?" demanded Col. Henderson. "It wasn't brought out in the testimony."

"I say it," replied Mr. Gunter. "Mr. Beach wasn't after Mrs. Beach when he tore that paling off the fence and ran around the sidewalk; he was after the man that Miss Wyman saw run out of the gate of the laundry inclosure and down Hood's Lane, after he (Beach) had run into that gate and encountered Pearl Hampton, knocking her down with the paling, and she had screamed, giving the alarm. Wasn't it testified on the stand that the voice heard speaking to Pearl Hampton said almost the same thing the voice Miss Hollins heard speaking to Mrs. Beach said?"

The prosecutor said he regretted that Miss Hollins had been brought into the case. He believed she was perfectly honest in everything she had told on the stand, but added that, according to Miss Hollins's testimony, when she looked out of her window she could not see what was going on down below, as the fight was over, and Mrs. Beach had gone around the corner of the house and away from the spot where the scuffle took place, which she could have seen from her window had she been looking out at the time. "And I believe, gentlemen, that if it had not been for Miss Hollins being in the house that night and asking from her room above 'What it is?' Mrs. Beach would have been a dead woman."

Mr. Gunter ridiculed Mrs. Beach's story, characterizing it as a mere fabrication, made up by Mr. Beach and adhered to by his wife for his protection.

"The testimony shows," the prosecutor added, "and shows conclusively, that Beach was out of the house that night when Mrs. Beach was cut. Across the street his neighbors heard him, a moment after Mrs. Beach went screaming through the front door and slammed it after her, banging on the door and crying out: 'This is Beach: let me in,' and Mr. Berrie, the witness who claims to have found and measured shoe tracks, makes his man run out of one gate while Mr. Beach says the man who cut Mrs. Beach ran out of another. Beach's knife had blood on it. Beach was out of the house, and if he did not himself cut Mrs. Beach's throat he knows who did it."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Beach paid the closest attention to the speakers as they argued the case before the jury. Congressman Byrnes made the first argument for the defense. He characterized Baughn, the detective who worked up the case, as a "scoundrel" bent upon securing a $3,000 reward, and asserted that the prosecution, instead of making out a case against Mr. Beach, had done nothing more than try to disprove his story. He appealed to the jury not to "crucify Mr. Beach and his wife on a cross of slander."

"We usually argue the evidence," said W. Q. Davis in his argument. "Here we must argue the lack of it," and he complimented the defense upon the fight Mr. Gunter had made "without evidence."

Col. Henderson, who closed for the defense, charged Baughn with breaking the missing blade of Mr. Beach's knife, and used harsher terms in referring to him than Mr. Byrnes had employed.

"Did you ever hear of a case of assault and battery," he asked the jury, "in which the person who was assaulted was not put on the witness stand by the prosecution?"

When Mr. Beach left the Court House after the trial he walked with a brisk step to his hotel and looked as though a great weight had been lifted from his shoulders. Many of the townspeople shook hands with him, offering a word of congratulation, and the Winter colony, through several of its members, expressed satisfaction at the outcome of the trial. "The law has been vindicated," was the statement made by Mayor Gyles. "The town has preserved its honor; Mr. Beach had to be tried."

Sheriff Howard said he was glad it was over. "And I am glad," he added, "that they didn't convict him on that evidence."

Thomas S. Fuller of Mr. Beach's counsel made the following statement this afternoon:

"We confidently expected the complete vindication that the verdict carried. We have had to wait nearly twelve long months for our opportunity to disprove this fabric of absurd falsehood woven out of gossip and slander. If the detective who wove it had dared take the stand light on his motive would have been wrung from him and the people of Aiken would have seen how he had attempted to use their court to his profit. Had we had our day in court last Summer, when Mr. and Mrs. Beach hastened home as soon as they heard of the charge it would have saved much useless suffering."

M'CALL ENTERS SERVICE BOARD

every one present with the generosity of his attitude. He said:

"I am at a loss to properly and fully express myself on my induction into office. These gracious words of the retiring Chairman add greatly to my embarrassment. If I can attain to anything like the record that has been yours, I shall feel myself deserving of the commendation and respect of the well-thinking community that constitutes our city. No one man is entitled to higher regard and greater respect for his devotion to work and for the unselfish labor than you, Mr. Chairman. I wish I could in more emphatic utterance express to you the gratitude I feel as a citizen for the unceasing and untiring labor you have rendered as a public officer.

"If I can attain to one small part of the record you have made I shall feel perfectly satisfied. The community can without the slightest ungrudging thought thank you for your work, and what you have attained.

"I wish you could have continued in office, not only for the present, but for another term and then for still another, if you so desired. While I was reluctant to take this office, and was desirous to continue in my former field of endeavor, the call came and there was no alternative.

"I take office in the light of a great embarrassment in view of the record you have obtained."

Then followed a general reception, all the principal members of the Commission's staff being presented to the new Chairman. George S. Coleman, Leroy T. Harkness and other members of the legal department came down from the hearing at the Appellate Division and had a talk with Mr. McCall, who while chatting received a large horseshoe of flowers from old friends, inscribed "Success."

Mr. Willcox will spend this morning clearing his personal belongings from the commission's office, and will then resume the practice of law at his old office which he has never given up at 165 Broadway.

In the argument in the Appellate Division Mr. Shearn began by saying that the present case differed from the injunction suit brought last Spring by Mr. Hopper in that the Public Service act had been amended since then. Moreover, he wished to sustain the allegation that the contracts involved a gift of public money.

He laid great stress on the fact that from the $6,335,000 preferential allowed the Interborough should be deducted $500,000 for depreciation, and urged that the city should have allowed the company only 5 per cent. on its new bonds.

"Have you the affidavits from any bankers," interrupted Presiding Justice Ingraham, "that they will loan the money at 5 per cent.?"

Mr. Shearn said he had none, but he would be willing himself to lend a few dollars at that figure.

"Well, how would you build the subway?" asked Justice Clarke.

Mr. Shearn replied that he thought the city should build and operate its own subway.

"How are you going to raise the money when you have reached the debt limit?" asked Justice Laughlin.

"Money raised the way I would have it raised on subway bonds would not touch the debt limit," answered Mr. Shearn.

The subject was dropped with the remark from Justice Laughlin that the court was not asked to pass on the advisability of either plan.

In opening for the city George S. Coleman, counsel for the Public Service Commission, went into the difference between the old and the proposed contracts.

"Have you ever figured out the profit to the city," asked Justice Scott, "if the present Subway had been operated under the proposed contracts?"

"It would be an enormous one," replied Mr. Coleman.

Ex-Chief Justice Morgan J. O'Brien followed Mr Coleman, saying the present attack on the contracts was not really against them, but against the entire principle of private operation and urged the court to remember that the contracts were in the nature of a bargain. Consequently it was unfair, he contended, for Mr. Shearn to pick out a few points on which the city had got the worst of it, and not to speak of the matters in which it had done well.

George D. Yeomans, James L. Quackenbush, and Corporation Counsel Watson followed for the companies, and the city, respectively, and then Mr. Shearn made his reply.

In it he suggested that as the commission was divided on the contracts there ought to be another public hearing.

"Well, if you wait till every one is agreed," remarked Justice Scott, "you will never get anywhere."

Mr. Shearn complained that he had not had the time to look over all the changes in the new contracts, but Justice Scott pointed out that changes made showed that the commission was mindful of what had been brought before it, and an end must be made at some time.

Counsel replied that as Mr. McCall had now qualified there was no need of haste in the matter, and went on to ask the court to read the opinion of Chief Justice Cullen of the Court of Appeals in the former Hopper suit.

"Don't you suppose we have read that three months ago. There is no use in taking up our time with the history of the charnel house."

Mr. Shearn then asked time to submit a brief to-day.

"We will take briefs from any one at any time," replied Justice Ingraham.

"I also ask that this court will not decide this case hurriedly," said Mr. Shearn.

"It will be considered in the ordinary course of business," replied the Presiding Justice.

"I would also like to ask that in case this injunction is vacated, that you certify it to the Court of Appeals."

"It will not be certified," said Justice Ingraham. "We do not certify temporary injunction cases to the Court of Appeals. There will be no exception in this case."

Borough President McAneny had this to say last night on the retirement of Chairman Willcox and his successor's entry on office:

"I regret, of course, that Mr. Willcox is not to sign the contracts, for he richly deserves that honor. The fact, however, that the final action of the Public Service Commission has not been taken while Mr. Willcox remained at its head is not the fault of Judge McCall.

"I believe that Mr. Willcox, as he leaves office, deserves the grateful praise of the whole city. Although, through accidental circumstance his name is not actually signed to the contracts, it will be in the memory of the people."

HARBURGER PICKS FIGHTING DEPUTIES

READY FOR ANYTHING NOW

But Bomb Throwers and Anarchists Are the Evil-Doers for Whom the Sheriff Is Looking.

Sheriff Julius Harburger added Mike Donovan, athletic instructor at the New York Athletic Club; Norman Selby, (Kid McCoy,) and Jack Goodman, a former pugilist, to his staff of special Deputies yesterday. After appointing them, Sheriff Harburger said:

"In the case of riots, or of calling out men at the coming primaries, or in quelling anarchistic bomb throwers and other midnight assassins, I am more than pleased to have such experts as these men on my force. They are quick, aggressive, scientific, able, and brave to overcome any enemy that might come along. In fact, they are gladiators who can cope with the rabble, and these three men alone, if I send them among disturbers of the peace, can readily handle fifty men.

"I think I have destroyed up to the present time a spirit of anarchism which has been prevalent, and if these evil-doers, bomb throwers especially, who are still continuing their cowardly acts, know that I have such an efficient force at hand as I am now appointing, without the police's aid, the shrievalty force, with its all-powerful influence, and without adding any tax to the community, will perform all these good acts.

"If I were the Police Commissioner of this community you wouldn't have any graft among the force, as I would eradicate it, see to it that proper compensation was given to them for the work which they perform, and I would make it the best, the most efficient, and the most honest department in the world."

The Sheriff answered a question as to whether he would accept the Police Commissionership, should it be offered to him:

"I wouldn't take it. The Police Commissioner is my subordinate. I do not wish to attack my subordinates, but as chief peace officer of the county, under Section 111 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the police are occasionally under my supervision, in case of riots and so forth."

Deputy Sheriff Jacob Bier tried to snap the trigger of an unloaded revolver at Mike Donovan in a little scene staged by the Sheriff to show the prowess of his new Deputies in dealing with gunmen. Mike got the gun and pinioned Bier before the trigger was snapped.

CARNEGIE SEES ELLIS ISLAND.

Pats the Children on the Head and Gives One Little Boy $2.

Andrew Carnegie visited Ellis Island yesterday and watched the inspection of 800 immigrants. When the inspection was over he singled out Patrick Rooney, 3 years old, and handed him a two-dollar bill. Mr. Carnegie arrived at the island at noon and was escorted through the Immigration Buildings by Commissioner William Williams. Mr. Carnegie spoke to the mothers, patted their bairns on the head, and asked which came from Scotland.

He had lunch on the island, and was anxious to know if the immigrants got their porridge regularly each morning. Mr. Carnegie attended a session of the Special Board of Inquiry and heard a case tried. It was that of an English boy, 15 years old, who did not know where he was going or where he came from.

"Right Shape" Shoes

"Equal rights for every toe."

Every toe in a "Right Shape" Shoe has full room for normal, natural development. The results are a springy, graceful step, erect carriage, absence of fatigue after continued walking, and no corns or bunions.

"Right Shape" Shoes fit snugly at toe, instep and heel, and so do not chafe the foot or wear out the hose. Owing to the construction of the Shoe and the comfort felt by the wearer, the Shoe meets the ground fairly and squarely, and, by thus equalizing the wear, doubles or trebles its life.

We carry Six Popular Styles in "Right Shape" Shoes—all that are now in demand. In each style there are three fittings for breadth. Both Shoes and Slippers are in stock at prices ranging from $1.19 for Infants, to $3.49 for Misses' size.

COMPULSION

In referring to our reputation for speed we wish to point out that speed with us is more a matter of necessity than choice, though it imposes no hardship on us, because we are used to it.

The fact is, every Owner wants his building in a hurry, and being familiar with the celerity of our methods, he naturally enough drives a hard bargain as to the time for completion.

It is one of the penalties of reputation that one must forever live up to it!

BOLD AVIATOR FLIES OVER DARDANELLES

DROPS BOMBS ON ARSENAL

Fighting Continues Where Troops Are in Touch — London Rumor of New Peace Negotiations.

ROME, Feb. 7.—A special dispatch from Lemnos says the Greek aviator, Muturis, accompanied by the Greek Captain, Maraitmis, made a daring flight last night over the Dardanelles in a hydro-aeroplane, which covered 180 kilometers.

The dispatch says that a thorough reconnaissance of the Turkish fleet was made, and that the aviator then flew over Maidos, near the southern point of the Gallipoli peninsula, and overlooking the Dardanelles, and dropped four bombs on the arsenal there.

The aviator reports that as his machine passed over the fleet he saw flashes from the vessels' guns as they fired at him. The hydro-aeroplane was not hit.

Capt. Maraitmis says he was able to make observations during the flight that were far more valuable than he had expected.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 7.—There was fresh fighting to-day in the region of Gallipoli, and an aeroplane made a flight over the Dardanelles and dropped three bombs. These were aimed at the Turkish war ships. Two fell into the water and the third exploded on the shore without doing any damage.

An official dispatch issued to-night says:

"The enemy continues his movements along the Tchatalja lines. Several encounters have occurred in the course of these operations, all ending in the retirement of the enemy. An engagement near Palala developed into a somewhat severe battle. The war ship Idjlalies bombarded the enemy from Biyuk Chekmedje, on the Sea of Marmora."

LONDON, Feb. 7.—Fighting continues between the Turks and the allies in Southeastern Europe, but the accounts from official sources are conflicting.

A dispatch to an agency from Constantinople describes the wild panic and flight of civilians from Gallipoli, owing to the advance of the Bulgarian troops. Many persons, the dispatch says, sought refuge on the military transports sent there, and numerous overloaded boats were overturned and hundreds of persons drowned.

The dispatch asserts that on Sunday and Monday 15,000 Kurdish raiders landed at Midia from 18 transports. They were well armed but without provisions. The raiders were ordered to scatter in bands of about 400 each throughout Thrace and maintain themselves on the population.

Military experts here doubt whether the allies, even if they obtain a firm foothold on the shores of the Sea of Marmora, possess sufficient strength in siege guns to overcome the powerful defenses along the Dardanelles Straits on the European side.

Rumors continue to circulate of the approaching renewal of the peace negotiations. Nothing definite is known, but Bulgaria and Rumania are about to resume at Sofia their negotiations on the frontier question, which were recently interrupted in London.

TAKES PILOT TO AMERICA.

Baltic Unable to Drop Him on Leaving Queenstown.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

QUEENSTOWN, Feb. 7.—The South Irish Coast was the scene of another terrific southwesterly storm to-day, the wind increasing to a hurricane.

The White Star liner Baltic left for New York at 3 o'clock, carrying off the pilot, who, although he got a rope about his waist and tried to get down the vessel's side, found it impossible.

Very heavy weather is reported on the Atlantic.

tions, but now we shall be obliged to discard the atomic theory.

"The discoveries of Patterson and myself arose out of isolated experiments of mine last Summer, when I found that fluor spar from Iceland gave off helium. As a result of this I experimented by passing an electric discharge through hydrogen and found that helium and neon, gases only found in the hottest stars, were produced.

"My object during many months has been to prove that helium and neon could not be present, through any extraneous means. That is now proved beyond a doubt, showing that either hydrogen is transmuted into helium and neon or that those gases are created by electricity from immaterial ether, thus evolving matter from energy.

"The great point of the discovery is that it has been attained by artificial means, while Sir William Ramsay's results are describable as coming from the natural action of radium.

"We owe the greatest debt to Sir William, both on account of his discoveries and of the apparatus he invented, all our work being consequent on his.

"What our next steps will be or what direction our researches will now take it is impossible for me to say. We are just on the fringe of the subject. Where it will lead nobody is able to guess."

Lodge Not Quite Convinced.

Sir Oliver Lodge, who has an interview in The Morning Post, which alone of the London papers yesterday reported the papers read by Ramsay, Collie, and Patterson, said:

"Though it is very enticing to suppose that atoms can be manufactured out of ether or that complex atoms can be built up out of simple ones, a great deal of proof will be required before it can be accepted.

"The chief difficulty is the extraordinary store of material which can exist in the pores of a metal, so that a quantity of occluded gas can be given off by the medal under the stimulus of an electronic bombardment in a vacuum tube, and the appearance of such a gas, manifesting itself for months in the laboratory, does undoubtedly suggest that it is being manufactured.

"The most conservative view, however, would be that it was being ejected out of some molecular storehouse and was not really a new production.

"What conclusion may ultimately be arrived at in explanation of these interesting researches, which are being conducted in one form or another in many laboratories, I do not presume to anticipate. I am ready to accept the manufacture of atoms when the evidence is conclusive, but at present I confess that I incline to be more conservative and take a commonplace view.

"The recent experiments of Sir J. J. Thompson have shown the extraordinary occluding powers of metals for some of the inert gases, one of which, indeed, appears to be possibly new to science, though that, too, is a matter which requires further examination."

CHEMISTS KEENLY INTERESTED.

Prof. Chandler One Who Accepts Ramsay's Word.

The announcement of the notable chemical discoveries of Sir William Ramsay and Profs. Collie and Patterson, as contained in a cable dispatch from London to yesterday's TIMES, created much interest at Columbia University, New York University, and the City College.

At each of these institutions the practicability of undertaking experiments to duplicate the feats of the British investigators were discussed. Except for the single dissenting view of Prof. Charles Baskerville of the Chemistry Department of the City College, the chemists were unanimous in accepting the announcement of Sir William and his associates as authoritative and of extreme importance.

"Astonishing and extremely interesting," was the comment of Prof. Charles F. Chandler of Columbia University, for over forty years head of the Department of Chemistry, and now Professor Emeritus.

Prof. Chandler was engaged in the research laboratory which bears his name, when he was asked to express his view of the new discovery.

"The discovery of the element of neon in hydrogen," said Prof. Chandler, "is especially remarkable, because the combining weight of neon is 20, while the combining weight of hydrogen is 1. It shows a building up of complex bodies from more simple ones. The researches of Ramsay and others with radium have already shown us that complete bodies of considerable atomic weight could be broken down into quite a series of bodies with a lower weight.

"In this manner, for instance, they produced helium with a weight four times that of hydrogen.

"It would appear, therefore, that the distinguished chemists have succeeded in accomplishing the transmutation of elements in both directions—from the complex to the simple and from the simple to the complex. This is a most astonishing achievement toward solving the age-old puzzle of the mystery of matter. The fact that Sir William Ramsey has permitted the announcement to be made is sufficient guarantee that scientists will universally accept it.

"The field is the most fascinating that chemistry has to offer. I am tempted to experiment in it myself. I have no doubt that every research laboratory will seek to duplicate the results obtained and every chemist, who can afford the necessary apparatus, will go to work to see what he can make of the tempting possibilities.

"With regard to the effect upon our old theory of molecules and atoms it may be said that these conceptions are not to be eliminated from chemical science. We are going to keep our notions of atoms and molecules, but we are going to be obliged to modify our conception of the atom. We can no longer regard it as an indivisible, unalterable entity. We are getting nearer than we have been before to its true inwardness.

"The discovery now announced does not involve the question of new elements which are constantly being added to our list. I refer, for example, to the discovery of rare elements in the atmosphere, such as helium, neon, argon, krypton, and zenon, due to the previous labors of Ramsay and Rayley. It practically means that either new atoms have been created out of ether or the atoms of one element have been transformd into the atoms of another element."

Prof. Chandler said he felt that the congratulations of scientists were due to THE TIMES for the technical accuracy and comprehensiveness of its Marconi dispatch from London, describing the discoveries.

Prof. Baskerville laughed when asked for his views by a TIMES reporter. It turned out that his laughter was at the idea of discussing a profound question of chemistry with a layman, or basing the discussion upon a "popular" report of the discovery in chemistry such as he thought THE TIMES dispatch to be. He said that he would wait to see the scientifically prepared reports of the experiments before stating any conclusions about them.

Sir William Ramsay is known among fellow scientists as a man of brilliant imagination and daring conceptions toward which to work out his demonstrations. Prof. Collie, on the other hand, is regarded as one of the most careful and conservative of experimenters. The contemporaneous tests of Sir William and Prof. Collie are for that reason regarded as particularly fortunate.

It was in 1907 that Sir William's announcements concerning radium set the electricians and chemists of the British Association at each other.

Their quarrel lasted through the annual meeting of the association at Leicester, Sir William's statements having easily proved the sensation of the session.

Sir William received his early education in chemistry at the University of Glasgow, but soon branched out beyond the zone of what was known, and as a first contribution to the world's knowledge discovered several new elements derived from the air.

Prof. J. Norman Collie has been since 1902 Professor of Organic Chemistry at the University College of London and director of the chemical laboratory there since 1912. Besides his achievements in chemical anayisis, Prof. Collie is known as a persistent mountain climber.

Twenty Lost in Schooner Wreck.

GREAT EARTH SLIDE IS BLOCKING CANAL

Three Million Cubic Yards, Moving Into the Culebra Cut, May Delay Opening.

ENGINEERS ARE HELPLESS

It Will Take Until November, Says One Estimate, to Remove the Huge Mass of Debris.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Feb. 7.—Col. George W. Goethals and the other canal engineers are helplessly watching a great slide of earth, which is moving slowly into the cut at Culebra.

The movement extends back for a quarter of a mile, and will carry 3,000,000 cubic yards into the cut, completely filling a large section.

The slide began on Saturday and has not yet gone into the cut, despite reports to the contrary, but apparently no power can stop it. Railroad tracks and machinery are being moved to places of safety. It is estimated that it will take until November to remove the material which is coming down with the slide.

The movement of the great mass of earth is slow, but fully perceptible to the crowds that are daily watching.

It seems certain that the slide will delay the opening of the canal.

Cologne Councillor Is Missing, but His Property Will Pay Losses.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 7.—Herr Leyendecker, a judicial councillor of Cologne and one of the most prominent and wealthy lawyers of the Rhineland, has vanished and the State Attorney has sent out notice of the issuance of a warrant for his arrest on the charge of misappropriating trust funds.

No amount is named, but one report alleges that it is 6,000,000 marks ($1,428,000.)

TAFT RUSHES SHIPS TO LATIN REPUBLICS

EXPECT NEW POLICY HERE

Annapolis, Denver, Nashville, and Des Moines Receive Hurry Orders to Protect United States Citizens.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—To forestall an outbreak in Central America believed to be impending, President Taft to-day ordered war vessels dispatched to effective points as a precaution against violence. The gunboat Annapolis, at San Diego, was ordered to proceed immediately to Amapala. The cruiser Denver, at Acapulco, was sent to Acajutla. The gunboat Nashville, at New Orleans, was ordered to Puerto Cortez or Puerto Barrios. The cruiser Des Moines, engaged in target practice, will go to Bluefields.

There has been fear for several months that the various unsuccessful elements of recent revolutions in Central America would begin insurgent operations soon after the new Democratic Administration should be installed. According to the advices of Government secret agents, there has been great activity among the Zelayistas, and the recent attack on the life of President Araujo of Salvador has given sharp accent to the growing apprehension of trouble soon to come.

The Central American Junta in New Orleans is said to be fitting out a filibustering expedition. Orders were sent today from the Department of Justice to seize any vessel or any property clearly intended for use to promote disturbance in any Central American Republic. The feeling in official circles for months has been that the malcontents of the several republics, with the exception of Costa Rica, were looking forward to a change in the Latin-American policy of the United States with the inauguration of President-elect Wilson and the probable appointment of William J. Bryan as Secretary of State.

A general revolutionary circular has been sent to the deposed leaders, and the plot is to bring on a revolution in every Central American country, with a view to the domination of some one leader, and the creation of a federation strong enough to resent interference from the United States and to inaugurate an era of self-rule under the iron hand of the man who can make himself master of the proposed coalition.

A resolution calling on Mr. Taft for a statement of the reasons why American marines invaded Nicaragua last Summer, "took forcible occupation of the territory of a friendly nation, and entered into armed combat with its citizens," was introduced in the Senate to-day by Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan, Chairman of the committee investigating conditions along the Mexican border. The United States Government's action has been condemned sharply and defended warmly in debates.

TO AIR HAMMERSTEIN DEAL.

Mrs. Andriveau Displeased with Terms Arranged by Lawyers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—A legal deadlock has arisen over the settlement of the terms arranged in the action of Mme. Andriveau against Oscar Hammerstein concerning the London Opera House contracts, and the parties have concluded to fight the matter in the courts.

Mme. Andriveau, who was on the Continent when the legal advisers arranged the settlement, was not satisfied with the terms.

The action to-day was put back on the list for a hearing at the beginning of next week in the King's Bench Division of the high courts. The plaintiff alleges that Mr. Hammerstein committed a breach of the agreement.

The point which the court is asked to decide is really as to the construction of the contract. Mr. Hammerstein says the contemplated season of opera at the London Opera House was for twenty weeks, but if he found the receipts did not warrant him in continuing he could close at the end of sixteen weeks. This he did. Mme. Andriveau puts an entirely different construction on the contracts. She will personally give her version of the arrangement in court.

AMERICAN WOMEN AT COURT.

Four Presented at First Diplomatic Function in London.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—Four American women were presented at the first diplomatic Court to-night, Countess Benckendorff, wife of the Russian Ambassador and doyenne of the Diplomatic Corps, making the presentations on account of the absence of Mrs. J. B. Laughlin, wife of the American Chargé d'Affaires, due to indisposition.

Mrs. Robert A. Gardiner of Bayshore, L. I., wore a draped gown of the richest English woven white satin brocade, with an underbodice of diamante lace, trimmed with handsome diamond embroidery caught up by diamond and pearl bows. Her train of rose-colored velvet was lined with rose chiffon embroidered with silver, and was attached with silver cord and tassels. Her ornaments were diamonds and a bouquet of odontoglossums.

Mrs. Henry Adams of Texas wore a pale yellow chiffon gown. Her skirt was draped with beautiful Venetian lace. Her corsage was embroidered with diamonds veiled with chiffon, and her train was of Nattier blue chiffon brocaded with gold. Her hair was caught up with strands of pearls terminating in diamond tassels. Her ornaments were a diamond necklace and a bouquet of yellow orchids tied with Nattier blue ribbon.

Miss Gertrude Edwards of Texas, the débutane niece of Mrs. Adams, wore a draped gown with white chiffon, with bands of embroidery in silver and pearls showing through. Her train was of white chiffon brocaded with silver and lined with silver gauze. She carried lilies of the valley and wore no jewels.

Miss Polly Jacob of New York, niece of Consul General Griffiths, wore a white satin underskirt, the top being white, with diamante trimming. Her draped skirt was of white and gold brocade with pannier effect on one side. The train was of white satin chiffon with diamante trimmings.

Apparently the narrow skirt is gradually going out of fashion. Most of those worn at to-night's function were considerably fuller than those seen at last season's Court.

TREVANION WITNESSES COY.

Inquest Adjourned to Force Their Attendance Next Week.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The second inquest into the death of Hugh Trevanion, who was killed by a dose of veranol and left most of his property to a friend, was further delayed to-day by the refusal of two important witnesses to attend the court, which adjourned until Friday in order to compel their attendance.

To-day Dr. Baines and Mrs. Joiner, wife of Trevanion's butler, gave evidence, rebutting the statements of the nurse, Miss Rice.

WILL CHECK CRUELTY IN RUBBER REGIONS

President of Peru Promises to Stamp Out Peonage and Bring Murderers to Justice,

OUR INVESTIGATOR REPORTS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—At the same time that President Taft's message on the Putumayo atrocities in Peru was being read in Congress this afternoon Federico Pezet, the Peruvian Minister to the United States, presented to the Secretary of State a communication from his Government announcing the strict policy of Peru's new executive, President Billinghurst, to stamp out peonage in the rubber regions, and bring the murderers of Indian slaves to justice.

Two years ago the British Government sent Sir Roger Casement to investigate the reported outrages on the Indians, with the result that the world was informed of a series of wholesale murders, and a condition of barbarism unparalleled by any similar history of human greed.

Last April the United States Government ordered Stuart J. Fuller, Consul at Goteborg, ..Norway, to go to Iquitos, Peru, as Consul, and to investigate the operations of the Peruvian Amazon Company in the Putumayo region. Mr. Fuller's report was the basis of the President's message sent to Congress to-day.

The report confirms in the main the appalling accounts given by Sir Roger Casement, but states that the American investigator found that many of the white witnesses from Barbados had been sent out of the country, that the rubber company was apparently conducting its business in a more humane way, and that wherever Mr. Fuller went he was dogged by agents of the company and prevented from securing evidence. The agents of the company were afraid to tell anything lest they should incriminate themselves or their comrades, and the Indians were sufficiently terrorized to keep them from telling anything comparable to the accounts secured by Sir Roger Casement.

Mr. Fuller got evidence that the firm of Arana Brothers, which became the Peruvian Amazon Company in 1904, brought 200 men from Barbados to serve them in the upper waters of the Amazon on the Carapana and Middle Igaraparana Rivers in the Putumayo rubber region. These white men were armed with Winchesters and were set at the task of enslaving Indians and compelling them to gather rubber. The Indians were an unresisting people, and fell easy prey to the white men. They were forced to submit by flogging, imprisonment in stocks in the hot sun without food for days, by threats of shooting, and by the sight of their kin being shot.

The white men seized the wives of the Indians and some of the overseers maintained large harems of Indian women. Old men who were so weak they could not gather rubber were hung up by the thumbs.

Most of the Indians were kept continually in debt for the cheap cotton goods sold to them and the little food they were able to buy.

The statement presented by Minister Pezet to-day represents that President Billinghurst has followed the investigations by Great Britain and the United States, and has decided to put a stop to the outrages. He has sent army officers to arrest the men guilty of murder, and where they have fled the country he intends to demand their extradition.

Wireless telegraphy has been established between Lima and Iquitos, and a flotilla of gunboats and launches will patrol the rivers and see that no return to the former practices against the Indians is attempted.

President Billinghurst has decided to erect at Iquitos a bishopric and five mission stations, at different points, to look after the spiritual needs of the Indians and give them instruction. Army officers have been placed in charge of the administration of the Government region, and it is confidently believed that the means employed will be effective to prevent any further outrages.

The communication concludes my saying:

"This indignation is not alone because these events have occurred in our territory, but on account of the harm which they have done to Peru by giving us an undeserved notoriety for deep-rooted cruelty which is not a trait of our national character."

BOOK CAUSED LIBEL SUIT.

Dilatory Borrower Was Offended by Postcard from Lender.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 7.—Failure to return a borrowed book forms the basis of a libel action which will soon come before the Bavarian courts. A Bamberg professor lent a volume of Heine's poems to a friend, but, as the book was not returned at the end of eight weeks, despite frequent warnings, the professor sent him a post card on which was pasted the following clipping from a newspaper: "A German buys no books; he borrows them and never gives them back."

The borrower felt himself libeled, and, though he had not yet returned the volume, instituted proceedings. It appears that the borrower lent the volume to a woman, who in turn lent it to someone else.

New York's Most Distinctive Office Building

THERE is in every city, one building which, because of exceptional location, great intrinsic beauty, class of tenantry or other cause, stands out, apart from its host of fellows.

As in the case of the "Fine Arts Building" on South Michigan Avenue in Chicago, such a building usually has a waiting list of prospective tenants, longer or shorter depending on the strength of its distinctive appeal.

Hitherto, New York City has lacked such a building. Not that the great Metropolis of the Western World is deficient in its commercial structures. Actually no city on the globe is richer in fine buildings. But, due to the physical topography of our city, its constantly shifting commercial centre and other causes, no building has yet established its undoubted right to pre-eminence as a business home par excellence for the critical.

Such a building is now available, however, in which every element essential to the ideal, is emphasized. This building is the

New Aeolian Hall

29-31-33 West 42nd St., opp. Bryant Park and the great new Public Library

Not because it is absolutely fireproof, with cement floors and even doors and window casements of steel; not because of the unparalleled brightness and airiness of its high-ceilinged offices, with the Park opposite and no tall buildings near; not because its floor to floor transit is as nearly perfect as modern science can make it, with a surplus of the finest elevators made, under direction of closely supervised and competent attendants, is the new Aeolian Hall unique. The best of other modern buildings closely equal it in most of these respects.

But in its wonderful location, in the superb and simple beauty of its interior and exterior design, and the atmosphere of high, distinctive quality with which it is instinct Aeolian Hall stands in a class quite alone among other New York office structures.

The new Aeolian Hall is destined within a very short time to have a waiting list. Short and long term leases for single offices and a few floors, may still be made. Despite its unequalled advantages, rents are exceedingly moderate.

MRS. FISH INSPECTS GIRL STRIKER'S HOME

DENOUNCES SMALL WAGES

No Girl Should Be Paid Less Than $7 a Week for Working in a Factory, She Asserts.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, accompanied by Miss Gertrude Barnum, organizer of the Ladies' International Garment Workers' Union, visited the east side halls yesterday afternoon, where the girls who walked out in the wrapper and kimono industry gather, to hear of the progress of the strike. After Mrs. Fish had heard the stories of the girls and had seen the conditions under which several of them lived, she told Miss Barnum that she would do all in her power to help the strikers in their fight for higher wages and better working conditions. According to Miss Barnum, Mrs. Fish said she would start a fund immediately to aid the girls.

A trip of inspection was made in Mrs. Fish's automobile. The motor passed through Canal, Delancey, Grand, and Clinton Streets, and stopped at 67 St. Mark's Place, the headquarters of the wrapper and kimono workers' union. Mrs. Fish found that some of the girls were sewing, others were crocheting, and others were dancing.

Dora Rosencrantz, 16 years old, of 636 East Eleventh Street, was the first girl introduced to Mrs. Fish. She spoke English fluently, and Mrs. Fish asked her about her life and work. This was her story:

"I began work when I was 13 years old. I sewed tickets on garments, and made $3 a week. Next I became a lace cutter in an underwear factory, and I earned $3.50 a week. Then I worked in a children's leather belt factory at $5 a week. For the last two years I have been earning $7 a week in a wrapper factory. With this $7 I support my mother. After I pay 60 cents for my car fare there is $6.40 left, and I give my mother half of this. So I live on $3.20."

Mrs. Fish was anxious to know how the girl could live on so small an income, and Miss Barnum suggested that they go to the girl's home. Mrs. Fish, however, before leaving the hall, wanted to interview more girls and to give the strikers encouragement. One of the girls she met was Pauline Phillips, 16 years old, of 293 East Third Street. Miss Phillips had come to this country from Austria without her parents. That was four years ago, and she had learned to speak English.

"A friend persuaded my father to let me come to New York," she told Mrs. Fish. "He assured my father that he would go with me. They wouldn't let him enter the country, and so I came in by myself, without a friend in New York. I have worked in a kimono factory ever since, and I now earn $4.50 a week. Out of this I pay $2.50 for my breakfasts, suppers, and bed. I have to buy my dinners extra. No, I never keep company with any one, and I am too tired to go to moving-picture shows. Several times I have fainted from the gas which escaped from my pressing iron."

The little girl hesitated for a moment, and then told Mrs. Fish with tears in her eyes that she owed her "missus" $12 for back board and lodging.

"But I'd rather die than become a scab," she added.

Mrs. Fish made a short speech to the girls in which she told them that they ought not to receive less than $7 a week for working in a factory. She promised to help them and promised that they would be cared for no matter how long the strike continued. It was unfortunate, she said, that capital and labor had drifted so far apart.

When Mrs. Fish took Pauline Phillips and Dora Rosencrantz by the arms and led them to her automobile for their first ride in an auto the other girls in the hall looked on with envious eyes. They cheered Mrs. Fish, though, and several of the girls ran to embrace Miss Barnum.

The trip to the home of Dora Rosencrantz interested Mrs. Fish. There she saw three dark but neatly kept rooms which contained framed mementos of the life and death of the little wrapper maker's father. She was much touched when she met the girl's mother, who was the housekeeper and who said that she was too weak to work.

"It is a shame that the child of such parents should be battling for a living in a large city," said Mrs. Fish to Miss Barnum on her departure.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—Mrs. Ford Madox Hueffer, wife of the novelist, won a remarkable libel action to-day against the weekly illustrated paper, The Throne.

Hueffer tried to induce his wife to obtain a divorce. She refused and he has since lived with the novelist, Miss Violet Hunt.

The Throne, in publishing a notice of a forthcoming book by Miss Hunt and her mother, referred to the former as Mrs. Ford Madox Hueffer.

The writer of the item gave evidence that he had read an announcement that Hueffer and Miss Hunt were recently married in Germany. It never occurred to him that it might be incorrect.

Mrs. Hueffer brought the action in order to assert her right to the title of being the lawful wife of her husband. The jury awarded her $1,500 damages.

Afterward the counsel for Miss Hunt announced that she believed herself to be Mrs. Ford Madox Hueffer and intended to call herself such.

CZAREVITCH TO GO TO EGYPT.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 7.—At St. Petersburg dispatch to The Tageblatt says that a medical council assembled at Tzarskoe Selo has recommended that the Czarevitch undergo a cure at Helouan, near Cairo. The council is of the opinion that a prolonged sojourn in Egypt will afford the boy considerable relief and perhaps lead to a complete cure. It is added, however, that it is not yet decided whether the Czar will act on the doctors' advice, because the Czarina is prevented "by certain symptoms of her own condition" from accompanying her son.

Early this week the German press announced that Prof. Eugen Enderlein, an eminent surgeon of the University of Wurzburg, with his assistant, Dr. Hotz, had gone to St. Petersburg at the request of the Czar and the Czarina to attend the Czarevitch. Later in the week St. Petersburg dispatches to a Berlin newspaper contained a curious account of a remarkably successful operation by Dr. Enderlein upon "a Russian actress," whose life he saved by transfusing transfusion of blood from veins of her husband. The actress is said to be the opera singer Mme. Anastasia Vielzeva, whose husband is M. Birkupski.

"All of these poems have a pure lyrical quality that is most alluring, and the variety in the verses is remarkable. . . . The sonnets are especially good, showing the author's skill in handling this limited and intricate form of versification, but the thought back of the construction is at all times worthy its musical setting."—Buffalo Express.

PEACE CENTENARY MAKING HEADWAY

Sub-Committee, at Luncheon, Decides on Chief Features of the 1915 Celebration.

FINANCE COMMITTEE FORMING

Cornelius Vanderbilt to be Chairman and J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., on It—Ghent Plans Approved.

The sub-executive committee of the Peace Centenary Celebration Committee met yesterday for luncheon at the Lawyers Club, 115 Broadway, and made progress on the plans for commemorating 100 years of peace among English speaking peoples. Cornelius Vanderbilt agreed to accept election as chairman of the Finance Committee. J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., sent word that he would serve on the same committee.

The committee received and approved the plans of the Municipality of Ghent, where the last peace treaty between the United States and Great Britain was signed, for exercises to initiate the celebration which is to continue for more than a year. On Christmas Eve, 1914, the hundredth anniversary of the negotiation of the treaty, there will be held an exact counterpart of the church services which marked the celebration on the same night one hundred years before. On Jan. 8, 1915, the anniversary of the date the treaty was ratified, the city officials of Ghent will give to members of the British and American celebration committees a dinner to be the exact counterpart of the dinner given by their predecessors on Jan. 8, 1815, to the British and American members of the High Commission which negotiated the treaty. This dinner will be held in the same room as the historic dinner, with the same pictures on the wall and the same menu. The toasts responded to on the previous occasion will again be proposed.

The Committee on Historical Records, of which President Nicholas Murray Butler was chairman, reported that Prof. William A. Dunning, who holds the Lieber Chair of History at Columbia University, had consented to write a monumental work, reviewing the century of peace among English speaking peoples. This work, Mr. John A. Stewart of the committee said yesterday, would rank with Bryce's American Commonwealth. Prof. Dunning recently succeeded Col. Roosevelt as chairman of the American Historical Association. Ambassador James Bryce sent word to the committee that he would write a foreword and introduction to Prof. Dunning's book as his contribution to the celebration.

The committee invited Mrs. Joseph H. Choate to become chairman of a Woman's National Committee to erect in this country a statue of Queen Victoria, as a companion act to the English committee's plan to erect a statute of George Washington in Westminster Abbey or Westminster Hall, and to dedicate Belgrave Manor as a gift to the American people because of its association with Gen. Washington's ancestral history. The committee also approved the joint action of British Columbia and the State of Washington to erect a monument on their borders and approved the project to erect busts of Burke and Chatham, as English statesmen who were friends of the colonies.

Senator Elihu Root's suggestion that a feature of the celebration be a cessation of all sorts of human activity for five minutes on the 24th of December, 1914, was indorsed by the committee. Senator Root has prepared a number of State and National bills to arrange for this cessation. It is proposed to stop every wheel, including those of the fast mail trains. Extensive legislation is needed to make this feasible. Mr. Stewart in announcing the committee's approval of this plan for a cessation of work in all English-speaking lands, dilated on its impressiveness, which he said was borne upon him by the two-minute hush observed when President McKinley was lowered into his grave in 1901.

WIFE RUINED HIM, HE SAYS.

J. R. Carman Sues Julius Redelsheimer for $100,000 for Alienation.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Feb. 7.—Jason R. Carman, head of the Pacific Broom Manufacturing Company, to-day filed a suit for $100,000, alleging alienation of his wife's affections, against Julius Redelsheimer, a wealthy resident of this city. Mrs. Nellie W. Carman, the wife, much younger than Carman, is now at the Hotel McAlpin in New York City.

Mr. Carman, formerly of Chicago and St. Louis, charges in his suit that he removed with his family to Seattle some seven years ago, and that ever since that time Mr. Redelsheimer has persisted in his attempts to break up his home, finally succeeding last July. He charges that Redelsheimer purports to employ Mrs. Carman in one of his establishments and pays her a large salary.

From the suit it has developed that Mr. Carman has pending against his wife and daughter, Miss Lorena Grace Carman, now attending Barnard College, a suit in which he seeks to regain control of 1,200 acres of land near Arcadia, a popular Summer resort below St. Louis, and 400 acres of valuable land in the State of Washington. The property is valued at $200,000. Mr. Carman charges that his wife has ruined him financially and induced him to deed the property to her on the plea of making up their differences, she promising to make a will providing for the equal division of the property between their daughters. He says his wife, however, deeded the property to her daughter, turned her against him, left his home, taking up quarters in a hotel, which, he charges, was visited by Mr. Redelsheimer.

Mrs. Carman and her daughter are guests at the Hotel McAlpin. They were not in in the early part of the evening and when they returned Mrs. Carman refused to grant an interview.

Sun Alumni to Dine.

The Sun Alumni Association is to hold its annual dinner next Tuesday evening at the Hotel McAlpin. Talcott Williams, director of the Columbia University School of Journalism; District Attorney Whitman, Oscar S. Straus, who was a reporter in the late sixties, and Brainard G. Smith are to speak on subjects interesting to the alumni.

D. A. Sullivan in Sing Sing.

David A. Sullivan, former President of the defunct Mechanics and Traders Bank of Brooklyn, who was recently convicted of grand larceny, was taken yesterday from the Raymond Street Jail, Brooklyn, to Sing Sing Prison. He is under an indeterminate sentence of from two years to four years and three months

TO HELP THE BOY WHO ROBBED HIM

Judge Accepts the Offer of James C. Bayles and Gives Youth a Suspended Sentence.

WILL GET HIM A GOOD JOB

Writes That He Is Willing to Take the Responsibility for the Uplift of Humanity.

Judge O'Sullivan, in General Sessions, suspended sentence yesterday on Frank Allweine of Lancaster, Penn., who pleaded guilty to stealing a suitcase containing $100 worth of clothing from James C. Bayles, ex-President of the Board of Health. Besides the suspended sentence the defendant received a personal letter from Mr. Bayles recommending him for a job.

Allweine was arrested on Jan. 2. It appeared that he had hired a room in Mr. Bayles's house and becoming poverty stricken had stolen the suitcase and clothing in order to get some money. In a letter written to Judge O'Sullivan Mr. Bayles said:

> If it is consistent with your Honor's pleasure and sense of official duty to suspend sentence on this unhappy youth I will do all in my power to start him in life and will, as far as possible, look after him. If wise counsel, good advice, and assistance, with lucrative employment, can take the warp out of his moral nature I will give him all these gladly. I have two sons; neither has ever done wrong; but if either did I would bless the man who would take him by the hand and say: "My boy, don't do it again." It may be a risk, but I have no responsibilities, and, being in my seventieth year, would like to do what little I can for the uplift of humanity.

While Judge O'Sullivan was reading the letter Allweine began to cry and said that he would never do anything wrong again.

"There are some things which make a Judge's duty very pleasant," said Judge O'Sullivan, "for, while we do meet men who are steeped in crime, thank God we do occasionally meet men who have some good in them. I am glad to receive a letter of this kind and to know that there are men in this community who will interest themselves in some boy who has done wrong. I think, young man, that there is something waiting for you and a guiding hand leading you for the sake of your own good name and it brought you into this man's company. You seldom find a benefit of this character arising from such a transaction as you are charged with. You will have your chance to show that you are worthy of this, for I will suspend sentence on you and parole you in the custody of Mr. Bayles."

Dodds Coming Here to Aid Sickles.

Sheriff Harburger received a letter yesterday from Ethan I. Dodds of Pittsburgh, who has offered to indorse a note of Gen. Daniel E. Sickles to cover the shortage of the veteran in the funds of the State Monument Commission. The writer tells the Sheriff that he will make a personal visit to New York next week to see what can be done. Mr. Dodds, who for the last two years has been developing patents, was formerly Assistant Superintendent of the Erie Railroad.

SMALLPOX IN THE TOMBS.

Prisoners Vaccinated After Negro Woman Develops the Disease.

Excitement was caused in the Tombs yesterday when the prisoners learned that a clear case of smallpox had developed in the women's prison, and that the sufferer, Sarah Brown, a colored woman, who was charged with grand larceny, had been removed to Bellevue Hospital.

The Brown woman was taken to the Tombs on Feb. 3, and soon after her arrival there complained of severe pains in her side. She was then transferred to Bellevue, the doctors thinking that she was still suffering from the effects of an operation for appendicitis. Yesterday it was reported that she was suffering from smallpox and a doctor from the Board of Health was sent to the Tombs by Dr. Bensel. All of the sixty women prisoners were vaccinated. Many of them objected and attempted to hide from the physicians, but they were brought out and forced to undergo inoculation.

Warden Fallon then gave orders to have all of the cells thoroughly washed and fumigated, and the cell occupied by the prisoner was washed with a carbolic solution. There are 661 men prisoners in the Tombs awaiting trial in General Sessions and 17 awaiting trial in the Federal courts. Dr. Frank A. McGuire, the Tombs physician, said yesterday that there was but little chance that the other prisoners had caught the disease.

MUST WASH MILK BOTTLES.

Driver Convicted in Special Sessions Loses His Appeal.

The Appellate Division upheld the constitutionality yesterday of the statute punishing the possessor of unwashed milk bottles. The court dismissed the appeal of Fred Frudenberg, a milk wagon driver, from his conviction in Special Sessions. Frudenberg's employer backed him in his appeal, contending that the statute was unreasonable and drastic. The milk company, it appeared, had equipped a sterilizing plant, but Frudenberg had taken the dirty bottles to a shipping point. The company pleaded on Frudenberg's behalf that he had no facilities to cleanse the bottles himself, and received them unwashed through the carelessness of customers. The court dismissed all of these pleas and upheld the statute in these words:

"The danger to be apprehended from the use of unclean receptacles for milk intended for human food is so well known that drastic measures to prevent the possibility of such use are reasonable and justifiable."

LE COMPTE CASE DISMISSED.

Magistrate Refuses to Believe He Used Bottles as Weapons.

Edward Le Compte, an electrical engineer, who charged Alfred V. Knudsen with having assaulted him with a revolver and a blackjack at his home in 100 Woolsey Street, Astoria, on the afternoon of Jan. 25 last, and Knudsen, who said Le Compte attacked him with a silver toilet bottle in one hand and a cut-glass bottle in the other, appeared before Magistrate Conway in the Long Island City Police Court yesterday.

Magistrate Conway dismissed the charge against Le Compte and reduced the one against Knudsen to disorderly conduct and then suspended sentence. Le Compte's wife, who is suing him for separation, was in court and supported Knudsen, who she said was in her house to protect her against Le Compte, who is now under bail pending trial before the Court of Special Sessions in Jamaica, charged with having assaulted his wife.

MISS SULLIVAN DISSATISFIED.

Reported That "Big Tim's" Adopted Daughter Will Sue Committee.

William B. Ellison, who represented Patrick H. Sullivan, brother of "Big Tim" Sullivan, and Lawrence Mulligan, his half brother, in the proceedings to have the Bowery leader declared insane, refused yesterday to discuss a report that suit had been threatened against the committee of Sullivan's person and estate by Aida V. Sullivan, described as "Big Tim's" adopted daughter. Mr. Ellison said he might be willing to discuss the matter in a few days.

Miss Sullivan's threatened suit is based on a contention that she was adopted from the New York Foundling Hospital in 1892. She is aggrieved, it was said yesterday, because Mr. Ellison omitted her from the list of those entitled to share in the former State Senator's property. James L. Dowsey, mentioned as attorney for Miss Sullivan, would not deny that action was contemplated.

THEATRE MEN OUT IN TICKET EXCHANGE

Auditors Going Over Books of Clearing House of Klaw & Erlanger, Belasco, and Others.

CHECKS BACK PROTESTED

Offices Shut Down Last Saturday, but It Is Predicted That Affairs Will Be Straightened Out.

It was learned yesterday that the Long Acre Exchange, a corporation formed to provide a central distributing agency for tickets intended by managers of certain theatres for hotel and agency sale, had been shut down, and that all this week expert accountants had been going over the books of the concern. It is known that several managers have lost through participation in the scheme fairly large sums of money. In one case a producing manager is about $2,000 behind, and another is out about $600.

The formation of the Long Acre Exchange escaped general attention, and there were few who knew of its existence. The managers associated in it were Klaw & Erlanger and the group which has affiliations with them, including Charles Frohman, David Belasco, Cohan & Harris, and several others.

The exchange is a product of the present theatrical season, having been started early last Fall, and has a large office on the top floor of the Commercial Trust Company Building, at Broadway and Forty-first Street. Besides the theatrical managers, William M. Erb of the Tyson Ticket Agency was one of the leading figures of the organization. Thomas Norton is its secretary and treasurer.

All the tickets which the associated managers intended for the hotels and agencies were sent direct to the Long Acre Exchange. They were kept there and distributed as the call came from the various selling places. If one of the Tyson agents, for instance, wanted seats in a certain row for a certain attraction for a patron, he was saved the necessity of calling up the other agencies and skirmishing until he could find at random what he wanted. The exchange kept in touch with the demand at all points.

Before the formation of the exchange there had been some difficulty attending the distribution of these tickets, from the managers' viewpoint, and Marc Klaw is said to have been the man who hit upon the idea of establishing the central bureau to which all the tickets should go. The exchange had no connection, of course, with the cut-rate agencies or the speculators.

There has, however, been no little trouble in the operation of the exchange. It has been run by a resident manager. Of late financial difficulty has arisen, and finally some checks issued by the exchange to managers in payment for tickets came back protested.

The concern was shut down last Saturday. Messrs. Erb and Norton immediately engaged a firm of expert accountants to go over the books and audit them. All this week the accountants have been the only ones in the offices.

CONVICT 2 OF TONG MURDERS

Eng Hing and Lee Duck Shot a Rival Clansman in Chinatown.

Eng Hing and Lee Duck, members of the Hip Sing Tong, were convicted before Judge Crain in General Sessions yesterday of murder in the first degree and were remanded one week for sentence. This is the first time in the history of the State that two Chinamen have been convicted of murder in the first degree at the same time, and is the second time that any Chinaman has been convicted of first degree murder in this county.

Both defendants were charged with shooting and killing Lee Kay at 18 Mott Street on Feb. 22, 1911. It was shown that on the day of the murder, the defendants and several other members of the Hip Sing Tong went to the address in Mott Street, and, without any warning, began to fire their revolvers into the place. Lee Kay was wounded and died in the Hudson Street Hospital several months later. After Kay's murder the On Leong Tongs offered a reward for the man who would kill the prime mover of the Kay murder, and Jung Hing, a member of the Four Brothers, Killed Yee Toy. Jung was convicted, his conviction being the first ever obtained in this county.

Assistant District Attorney Wasservogel brought forward several witnesses to the shooting, who positively identified the defendants. Two of these witnesses were Grace Mack and Florence Long, two Philadelphia girls who ran away from home and have lived in Chinatown ever since. The defendants were tried once before, the jury standing eight to four for acquittal.

REFUTES SHARKS' EXCUSES.

Chattel Loan Society Demonstrates That Losses Are Few.

The reason advanced by loan sharks for charging excessive interest, that it was necessary in order to cover losses, has been refuted by the Chattel Loan Society, which began business on Feb. 19, 1912, and whose first annual report shows that of $99,500 loaned only $237.80 was charged off to losses. The society was organized to meet the requirements of those who otherwise might patronize loan sharks, and to put the business of lending money on a fair basis. The Directors feel that they have accomplished their purpose.

The report covers what might be termed the experimental period of the society, and better results are expected this year. The business was a new one to all of the Directors, and the policy adopted was one of slow development with a view of obtaining experience rather than any financial results in the first year. The society is now ready to increase its volume of business among those whose needs it can meet by loans on a sufficient margin of security.

Wake Up the Bookkeepers
Principles of Double-Entry Bookkeeping
By
CHARLES M. VAN CLEVE.

There are plenty of books which describe double-entry bookkeeping; this one explains it. And because it does explain it, it demonstrates the absurdity of the bookkeepers' practice of making statements in a form showing assets and liabilities equal, and shows how such statements should be made in order to conform to correct principles of accounting and to the dictates of common sense. To appreciate the difference between true theory and current practice one needs only to compare the statement of a railroad company as given in this treatise with the form in which it is customary to make it.

FINDS 15,000 PUPILS ARE FEEBLE MINDED

Dr. H. H. Goddard Classes the Public School Defectives as High as 2 Per Cent.

SYSTEM MUST BE CHANGED

Extension of Ungraded Classes and Special Training for Teachers Needed.

Fifteen thousand boys and girls, or 2 per cent. of all the school children in New York City, are feeble minded, according to Dr. Henry H. Goddard, Director of the Department of Psychological Research of the New Jersey Training School for Feeble-Minded Boys and Girls, at Vineland, one of the eleven educational experts employed under Prof. Paul H. Hanus of Harvard to investigate the public school system. His report was made public yesterday by the Committee on School Inquiry of the Board of Estimate.

He says the city has no adequate facilities for handling this tremendous number of feeble-minded children; that its institution on Randall's Island is looked upon by parents generally with distrust; that the feeble-minded and normal children are as a result often herded together in the same classes in the public schools, and that the feeble-minded are drilled in the abstract and to them utterly incomprehensible three R's, when they should be taught only manual and vocational subjects in home schools specially provided for the feeble minded.

Of the 15,000 feeble-minded children in the public schools of the city, the report states, only 2,000 are in the ungraded classes at present provided. The presence of such children in the normal classes, Dr. Goddard says, handicaps both the feeble-minded and normal pupils and the teachers of those classes as well. There is no adequate method at present, he reports, for discovering the feeble-minded and segregating and caring for them.

He recommends a new system of supervision, more effective medical examination, better equipment of the classes, organization of special schools, and a thorough method of statistically "following up" of the feeble-minded pupils after they leave school. At present, he says, some of the feeble-minded children get into high school because, as one teacher explained, "they are not allowed to stay more than two years in any one grade, and so are promoted whether they are fit or not."

Dr. Goddard mentions two solutions that have been proposed with regard to feeble-minded children—permanent segregation and surgical sterilization.

"Having accumulated the facts," he says in his report, "and having sufficient knowledge of the problem, we should work toward institutions or colonies for the segregation of these people.

"It is most unfortunate that the one institution which the city supports for that purpose should have such a reputation as to make this solution difficult and often impossible. Until we come to the point where we decide to take these children forcibly away from their parents, whether they are willing or not, everything depends upon winning the parents' consent; and this can be done if the institutions are conducted in the right way, and if entrance to them has been made simple and pleasant.

"The City of New York has an institution for the feeble-minded at Randall's Island. As to the character of that institution, I am not expressing an opinion; but it is unfortunately true that in the popular mind its reputation is not good.

"In the present condition of society neither of the two proposed solutions is applicable to any considerable proportion of these 15,000 children. They can not be placed in institutions or in colonies for the reason that their parents will not consent. They can not be sterilized for the same reason.

"We need a great deal more knowledge concerning the effect of the methods of sterilization, so that we may speak with assurance when it comes to the question, 'Shall this person be sterilized?' and so that we can predict exactly what will be the consequences."

It is clear, Dr. Goddard says, that feeble minded children are at all events not proper candidates for such education as the public school is now able to give and do not belong in the system. He recommends that there be established separate schools for the feeble-minded under principals who are expert in that work; that these schools be developed into home schools, keeping the children as many hours as possible and many of them even over night; and that ultimately they be made city institutions for defectives. These institutions, he thinks, could be made so attractive that parents would be eager to have their children there, and wherever the children become trainable to such an extent that they are earning something it might even pay the city or State to make some return to the parents if their plea should be that they want to take the children home because of what the children can earn toward the family support.

Dr. Goddard suggests that in order to procure efficient and well-trained teachers for the special schools for defectives, the new model Letchworth Village in Rockland County, for which the State Legislature appropriated $457,000 for new buildings for defectives at its last session, be made also a training school for such teachers, and that other institutions be established along similar lines.

GRAIN MEN FACE CHARGES.

F. M. Bunch and M. Bates Accused of Misconduct on Chicago Trade Board.

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—Charges involving their business methods and their seats on the Board of Trade have been filed against Frank M. Bunch, former president of the organization, and Mark Bates. The accuser is John Hill, Jr. Officials of the board refused to-day to reveal the charges further than to admit that they involved irregular dealings. The filing of the charges caused a sensation in the grain trade because of the prominence of the men involved.

Mr. Bunch and Mr. Bates gave out a signed statement in which they stated they would welcome an investigation.

Last night, she said, she induced her husband to take her to a moving picture show. On the way home she asked him to take a short cut up an alley. In the alley she said Lynn fired the shot that killed her husband.

Gillmore staggered and said: "My God, honey, I'm killed."

After shooting Gillmore, she said, Lynn took the gun and beat him over the head.

Grange Urges Free Choice of Public Service Commissioners.

BUFFALO, Feb. 7.—The State Grange in the final session of its fortieth annual convention to-day adopted resolutions commending the State Conservation Commission for conserving the water powers of the State; praised Gov. Sulzer for his plan to keep the Health Department out of politics, and recommended to him that the "non-partisan principle of choice of Public Service Commissioners be followed."

The Grange also recommended a legal reserve life insurance company organized under the laws of the State; uniform textbooks, provided the books are supplied to the pupils; more effective enforcement of the Pure Food Law, and that the money deposited in the postal savings banks by the common people be let out in mortgages on real estate at low rates of interest."

FIRE IN BLIND WORKSHOP.

Employes of New York Association March Out When Blaze Is Discovered.

Fifty blind men, working in the upper floors of the workshop of the New York Association for the Blind, at 338 to 340 East Thirty-fifth Street, marched calmly from the building late yesterday afternoon when fire was discovered in some rubbish in the cellar.

The men, who manufacture brooms, brushes, and baskets in the shop, which is a five-story brick building, were at work when the sprinkler system installed there was turned on. Supt. Marvin marshalled the men in line, and they marched from the building as the fire apparatus drove up. The blaze was quickly extinguished and did little damage.

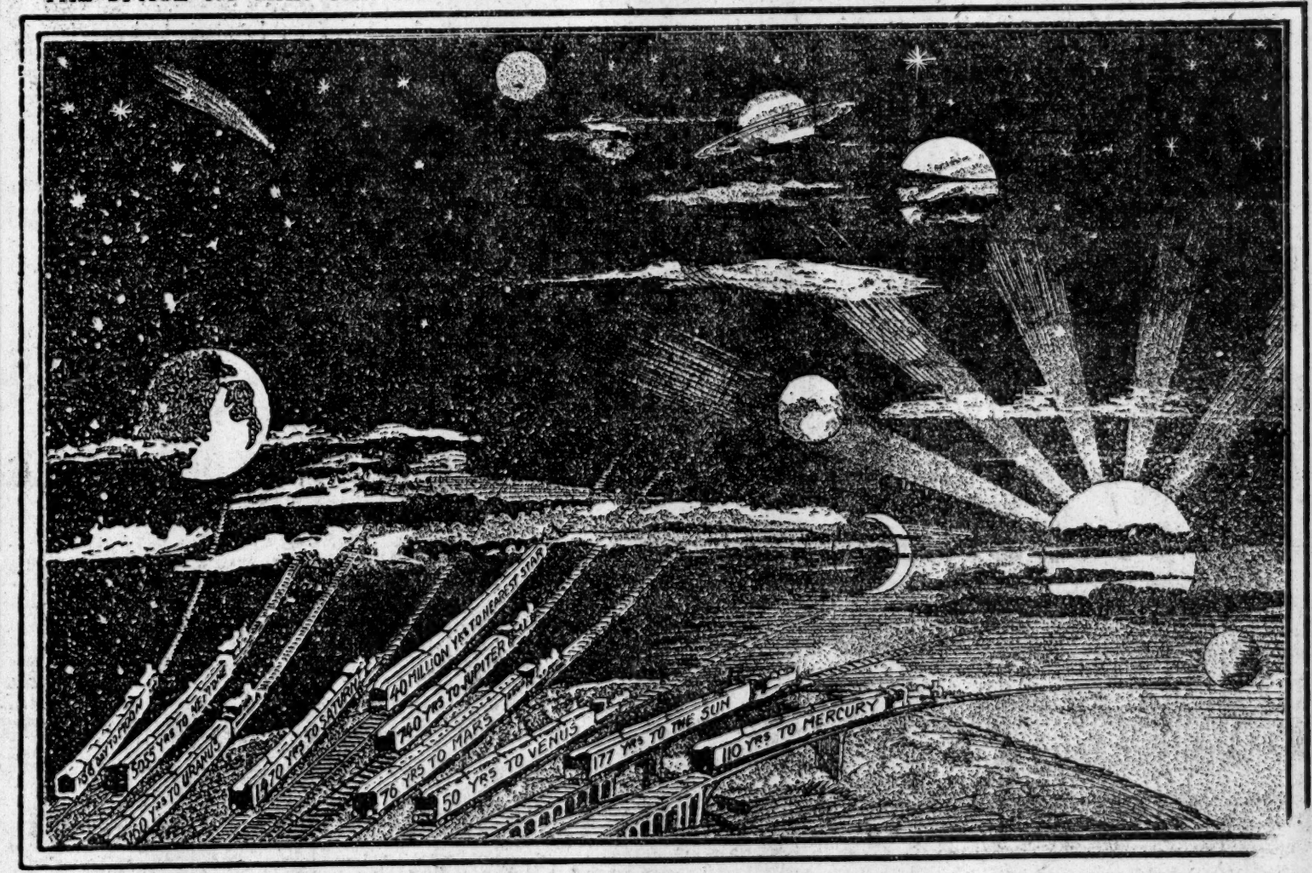
One of Ten Thousand Educational Pictures WHICH THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE DESCRIBES

THE SPACE NO MAN CAN MEASURE! FLYING FORTY MILLION YEARS TO THE NEAREST STAR



30 YRS TO NEPTUNE
805 YRS TO URANUS
1420 YRS TO SATURN
40 MILLION YRS TO NEAREST STAR
740 YRS TO JUPITER
76 YRS TO MARS
50 YRS TO VENUS
177 YRS TO THE SUN
110 YRS TO MERCURY

This picture helps us realize what our minds can hardly understand—the wonderful size of the universe. Such trains as these, which dash past us almost before we can see them, would take 177 years to travel from the earth to the sun, if there were a railway on which they could travel a mile a minute and never stop; and a train starting from the earth for the nearest star would not arrive for forty million years! The figures on these trains give the time it would take the trains, travelling all the time at sixty miles an hour, to reach the planets.

IMPORTANT! ACCEPT NO IMITATION OF THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE

President John H. Finley, of The College of the City of New York, says:

"Suppose a boy of ten were to spend fifteen minutes a day reading these volumes . . . he would at thirteen know more about the earth and life on it than the wisest men knew a few generations ago."

After looking over the books for half an hour, I immediately ordered a set.—Editor Bok, Ladies' Home Journal.

No parent and no library can get along without them.—Francis E. Clark, Pres. Christian Endeavor Society.

An inexhaustible mine to be searched.—Thos. Shallcross, Board of Pub. Education, Philadelphia.

Such books would have been of priceless value to me when I was a lad.—Dan Beard, Camp Fire Club.

China's Most Treasured Book
By C. H. A. BJERREGAARD
Librarian, New York Public Library
Author of
A Sufi interpretation of Omar Khayyam and Fitzgerald. Jesus, A Poet,, Prophet, Mystic and Man of Freedom.

In this book are set forth in a popular and interesting manner the teachings of China's Greatest Sage, Laotzse. These teachings carry an ethical message for the multitude, a message that will do great good.

Here are some examples of Laotzse's philosophy:

"The weakest thing in the world will override the strongest by non-action, there is nothing which cannot be effected. To remain gentle, is to be unconquerable. A woman conquers a man by continual quietness. Nothing on earth is so weak and yielding as water; yet for breaking down the strong it has no equal. It can get into the most inaccessible places, and that without striving—it is therefore like 'Tao.'"

Mr. Bjerregaard's book will do more to bring Laotzse's philosophy before the American public than any other work on the subject.

WITCHING HILL

BY

E. W. HORNUNG

Has a quality, wanting in the Raffles Books, which gives a singular atmosphere—the scene is the former estate near London of a celebrated and wicked Lord; and the actions of violence, often criminal, which form the chain of episodes in this volume, are due, in a mysterious way, to the wild and vicious character of the long dead owner of the land.

"Some cry up Gunnersbury,
For Sion some declare,
And some say that with Chiswick House
No villa can compare;
But ask the beaux of Middlesex,
Who know the country well,
If Witching Hill—if Witching Hill—
Don't bear away the bell."

Three Novels by the Author of "CHRISTOPHER"

RICHARD PRYCE

"A writer with a gift for satire, a sense of humor, and a smooth mastery of the technique of the modern novel, a capital analyst, also, of character, and, last but not least, an Englishman as thoroughly at home in the English country house and among its denizens as Mr. Galsworthy himself."—New York Tribune.

"Mr. Pryce's work recalls the style of Octave Feuillet by its clearness, conciseness, and brilliancy of touch. He is realistic in the true sense, and has steeped himself in the subtle charm of London, which he reproduces rather than describes."
—London Athenaeum.

JEZEBEL is a glorious compelling character, a young English girl, whose name leads her into unusual situations, but who finally takes her place in the circle to which she was born.

ELEMENTARY JANE is a charming idyll against a vivid and effective background of music-hall and lodging-house life in the poorer quarters of London. (Ready February 15th)

THE BURDEN OF A WOMAN is a powerful story in which a woman of strength and gentleness, bravely enduring her own trouble, teaches fine moral distinctions to the man who loves her. A happy ending closes the years of pain and questioning.

The first book on the War in the Balkans

The Balkan War

Adventures of War With Cross and Crescent

By PHILIP GIBBS, Special Correspondent of the London Graphic with the Bulgarian Army, and BERNARD GRANT, Special Correspondent of the London Daily Mirror with the Turkish Army. Illustrated. $1.20 net; by mail, $1.35.

This is the first, as well as one of the most important, of the books of the great "War of the Five Nations" of 1912. It covers both sides of the tides of the titanic struggle with the vividness that comes only from first-hand knowledge. Its authors have skilfully depicted the thrilling episodes of the astonishing campaigns that have so rapidly brought Turkish power in Europe to its downfall, and by covering both sides have given us a book which for completeness alone, apart from its brilliant narrative and descriptive features, must stand as a unique contribution to the history of the war. Both authors are well-known writers; Mr. Gibbs, especially, has already achieved a solid reputation as a novelist and historian.

HANDS OFF.

In the reports concerning the arduous task of District Attorney WHITMAN in digging out the evidence that may enable him to bring to justice the real chiefs of corruption in the police force there is one extremely important and somewhat disquieting feature. It is stated that one of the most promising witnesses relied on by Mr. WHITMAN, Capt. WALSH, was visited by a Deputy Police Commissioner and solicited to disclose the testimony that he intended to give to the prosecution. The inference is drawn, and seems to be justified by the District Attorney's office, that this testimony might be used in the Police Department to embarrass, possibly to defeat, the investigation into the guilt of those "higher up." So much of WALSH'S and FOX'S confessions as has been made public has led to the expectation that the trail would lead to a civilian official connected with the office of the Commission, and, probably, through him to some of the politicians without whose co-operation the "System" could not be carried on for any length of time. Commissioner WALDO'S announcement that no further attempts of this kind will be made is gratifying. Obviously any attempt in the Police Department to shield the guilty would be a monstrous obstruction of justice. Undoubtedly these tactics, abhorrent as they are, have succeeded in the past. BECKER, the procurer of murder, relied confidently upon them. Within prison walls he is a striking proof that they are no longer to be relied on. A very great change has come over the temper of the people of New York. They do not hate crime in the police more, but they fear it less. They are no longer hopeless and they are very determined. Every man of influence in the department would do well to give heed to the change.

THE BALKAN MUDDLE.

It is a curious comment on the general belief that everything happening in the world is known to every one through the daily newspapers that none, not even the best informed, knows certainly what is going on in the Balkan Peninsula. Still less does any one know surely what is to be the immediate and the ultimate outcome. This is true not only of the military situation, but of the political international situation.

When the peace conference broke up and the armistice was ended it was the confident boast of the Allies that Adrianople would fall within a week. The strong Servian reinforcements, with their heavy siege artillery, were to enable the Allies to smash in the defenses held by the starving and enfeebled Turks. Then the besiegers of Adrianople were to advance on the doomed lines of Tchatalja; an army of Bulgars and Greeks was to take the Gallipoli forts; the Sea of Marmora was to be entered by the Greek fleet, and the terms of peace were "to be written in Constantinople." Under the crushing burden of defeat the Young Turks would be unable to repress disorder, and even the Asiatic provinces were to fall away under the stress of civic conflict.

Nothing of all this has yet happened. Adrianople holds out, with apparently little disturbance from the bombardment. The movement on the Gallipoli route has been begun, but little progress has been made, and the Greek fleet seems no nearer to a passage of the Dardanelles than ever, while Constantinople rests secure behind the fortifications on either side of the Marmora Sea. The only movement on the Tchatalja lines is a defensive withdrawal of the Bulgars toward the east to guard against an expected flanking by the Turks. These are, for the most part, negative facts, but they are all that the world gets from a field of operations swept clean, on both sides, of newspaper correspondents.

Meanwhile private dispatches report that the head of the Moslem hierarchy in Constantinople has declared a "holy war." That is a device that in its day has carried terror through Europe, but in these days it is not likely seriously to change the situation. The Moslem world is not necessarily concerned with the fate of the Sultan of Turkey. It has, with emotion, perhaps, but without lifting a finger to prevent, seen his dominion shorn of one slice after another. Within the past year it has seen him bereft of his possessions in Tripoli and beaten back from the Bulgarian frontier to the narrow strip behind the Tchatalja hills. In Tripoli the spiritual sway of the Sultan was safeguarded, as it will be, probably, in the Balkans, and that is all the Mohammedans scattered through the Orient really care for very much. The most that the Turkish Government could expect from such a plan is to arouse the bloodthirstiness of the Moslems of Turkey and the Peninsula toward their Christian neighbors. But that is a fearfully risky game to open. The so-called Christians are but too well versed in it.

THE KOPENICKIAD.

It turns out that Strasburg was so easily deceived by the false announcement of the approach of the Kaiser because that august ruler, back in 1893, played a trick on Strasburg by arriving there unannounced and then raising a huge rumpus. So WILHELM himself is primarily responsible for the Kopenickiad, as they call the enormous military hoax of this week. Strasburg is an ancient city, renowned for its goose-liver pies, its cathedral, and its apostolic clock; a city of treasured memories, and remembrance of the young Kaiser's sudden apparition naturally survived and became vital when WOLTER'S bogus telegram was received. So that the joke does not fall so heavily on Strasburg, after all.

In regard to the Kaiser Strasburg was prepared for the worst. The outpouring of troops, whose perfection in the goose step is attributable to their constant study of the paté de foie gras on the hoof, was a splendid demonstration of loyalty to the empire in the very heart of Alsace. Any German city would have been proud of the chance to submit to such a test.

It is hard, of course, for a German, especially an Alsatian German whose ancestors fought for NAPOLEON, to be a butt of French ridicule, and France laughs rather too heartily at the Kopenickiad for courtesy. But, after all, France is laughing at the Kaiser, not at Strasburg. Let HANS SCHMIDT, boulanger, be consoled.

LAWS FOR OTHER PEOPLE.

Washington dispatches report the introduction of a bill by Representative BYRNES of Tennessee exempting farmers and laborers from the Sherman anti-trust law. It is hard to say how often this exemption has been attempted, but it is sure that it will be necessary to oppose it as often as it is brought forward. The proposal to exempt anybody from any law is an unfailing sign either that the law or the exemption is wrong. Any law which cannot be applied universally is unworthy the name of law.

Specifically, it would be interesting to know why farmers and laborers should be allowed to conspire in restraint of trade any more than anybody else. So long as their conspiracies are for benevolent, fraternal objects there is no danger of the law being applied under the light of reason. But when night riders, boycotters, dynamiters, restrainers of the production of produce, and rings to raise the price of agricultural products have the assurance to ask Congress to legalize their injurious acts the time has come to call a halt and to ask them to obey the laws they make for others.

We have gone too far along a bad road when proposals to make laws of partial application are made without shame and are logrolled through Legislatures. Farmers and laborers have not been so moderate in their exactions from consumers of what they sell that those who suffer from the cost of living can afford further indulgence. The way to live cheaply is not to pay more than a fair price, and legislation for the promotion of extortion is obnoxious to the general interest, even to the true interest of those asking exemption from the law.

THE DODGE CLUB.

Walking in town used to be both pleasant and profitable exercise, but now that one must keep his mind alert, his eyes wide open, and his ears strained at every street crossing between Bowling Green and Spuyten Duyvil Creek, lest he be run down by a motor car, there is no wonder that men walk less than they did. Even in the Park walking has lost much of its charm. The motor car which has wrought so many changes in our social life has done much to abolish walking for health and pleasure. Except in the Central Park Ramble and on the Island of Nantucket there is no place left to walk. All over Long Island, where, if anywhere, one could walk abroad and recreate himself of old, the motor car competes with the motor cycle in covering the pedestrian with dust and startling him almost out of his senses.

Mr. WINDMULLER'S society of men of ripe years who intend to walk in order to induce others to walk, and thus revive the lost art of using one's legs, will primarily be a society for testing the nerves. Experience shows that it is possible for humanity to adapt itself to any possible set of conditions. "Don't let the automobiles frighten you," urges Mr. WINDMULLER. "Learn to dodge, as I have." That's the point. Mr. WINDMULLER has learned to dodge the automobiles. He has made dodging an art. He and his associates are going to teach us not so much to walk as to dodge. This is a new Dodge Club he is forming.

The rest of us have been dodging, meanly, hopelessly, inartistically, without comprehending that the time has come when potent, skillful dodging is necessary. We are to wake up. Let us dodge nobly, artistically, and be men again.

SUBWAY DEBITS AND CREDITS.

The World said yesterday that $11,135,000 "is the total amount which the "Interborough is allowed to make every "year before the city can begin to re"ceive anything from its investment of "$70,000,000 or more." That is to say, the Interborough "makes" all it takes in fares. Yet the Interborough is under contract to turn over the subway to the city when its obligation matures, to turn it over free of incumbrance, and expects to do this by paying all interest, costs, and amortization from the fares. In other words, The World commits itself to an absurdity when it makes the assertion quoted above.

It is something worse than absurd to omit from the calculation what the city makes by the pending contract. The papers have not yet been signed, but the city is already collecting taxes on a billion of valuation created in anticipation of the benefits of the dual subway, and it is moderate to say that another billion will be created by the speeding up of travel on 600 miles of rapid transit road. If the opponents of the contracts should succeed in their campaign what would become of these valuations? Mr. MCANENY has said that the city would collect ten millions of taxes through the operation of the dual subway, and that the straphangers would save three millions in fares. Here is $13,000,000 annually in profits to the city and its people of which the party of obstruction refuses to take any notice.

SAFETY LAST.

If there is a "safety first" movement in progress on the railways of the United States, it is neither helped nor sanctioned by the great brotherhoods of employés who have been striking, are striking, and will be striking for higher pay. That in substance is the statement of JAMES O. FAGAN, whose letter to THE TIMES appears in another column. Mr. FAGAN is a qualified witness. He originated this movement when he proposed eight years ago to the managements of several railroads that "we, the men in the operating depart"ments, should be invited to band to"gether in a Safety League."

But the leaders of the brotherhoods of employés had always frowned upon and discouraged any such democratic relationship between employés and managers as such a banding together would form. That would entail frank and intimate co-operation with their employers. Most happily for the service and for the people, the officials and managers of the railroads were not discouraged. Despite the antagonism of the unions, the safety campaign was started, and it is now being conducted on all sides with vigor and enthusiasm. By means of lectures, literature, practical demonstrations, and liberal advertising, the simple, yet pitiful, story of the preventable accident has been presented in its true colors not only to thousands of individual employés, but also in countless homes.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Science Is Beyond Humiliation.

When it was announced, a few months ago, by some of the world's most eminent physicists, that the "philosopher's stone" had been found, at least to the extent of changing one "element" into another, scientific circles were deeply stirred, for it was realized that what the very highest authorities long and unanimously have accepted and declared to be impossible had been accomplished.

Now members of the same group of investigators proclaim that they have done something which may be a duplication of the previous achievement, and, on the other hand, may be something so much more remarkable that even the most hopeful of the old alchemists never dreamed of doing it. "Perhaps," they say in effect, and with much cautious emphasis on the word, "perhaps we have caused and "observed the changing of pure energy "into matter."

That is a perfectly simple statement, but its lucidity decreases rapidly the moment one tries to define what he means, or if he means anything, when he uses the term "energy" in the "pure" sense—without any idea, that is, of a material something in motion. Yet it is toward that abstraction that the theories of scientists have been moving for some time, and for them, at least, it would not be particularly startling if the assumption of an essential difference between matter and force were to be attacked and destroyed.

Even that would not involve, as is commonly supposed and often stated, any admission as to the fallibility of science. No true scientist, when talking carefully, ever claimed any nearer approximation to absolute truth than is possessed by a hypothesis which co-ordinates all the known facts relevant to it. He is, or ought to be, always ready to revise his hypothesis or to replace it with another when observation proved the existence of facts incompatible with it, and he can do this without either embarrassment or confusion.

The scientific right of to-day may be the scientific wrong of to-morrow, but the present rightness is none the less real. So the surgery of the civil war period would be criminal malpractice now, but no old surgeon is or need be ashamed of what he did then. While there were many and good reasons for believing the elements to be immutable and none for disbelieving it—that they were not born and did not die—doubt would have been absurd. When a fact came along that disproved the theory, of course it had to be dropped, at once and forever, but science had no cause to blush.

We Are in Need of Teachers.

We Americans are not now quite as firmly possessed as we used to be by the delusion of our superiority to the rest of the world in either wisdom or virtue, and most of us are willing enough to admit the possibility of learning a few things from other peoples. It is not much of a shock, therefore, to be told by representatives of the American Association for Labor Legislation that in the matter of guarding workers from the so-called occupational diseases we have made little more than a poor beginning, and that many foreign countries are so far ahead of us in this particular manifestation of common sense and common decency as to be almost out of sight.

The statement is made that each year we have 13,000,000 cases of these diseases—practically every one of them preventable and most of them easily and cheaply preventable—and that thus there is directly caused to the Nation an annual money loss of $750,000,000. The "roundness" of the figures warrants more than a slight suspicion of their absolute accuracy. As a guess, however, they are not incredible, and even if the exact truth required a considerable cutting down, more than the difference could be made up by adding indirect losses by death and reduced efficiency.

Were it not for the general and familiar shortsightedness of humanity, and its preference for immediate profits to those in the future, no matter how much larger, one could feel astonishment that attempts to decrease this drain on our resources keenly interest only a few persons and encounter actual opposition, some of it from the very people whom an improvement of working conditions would most benefit in the end. Strikers nowadays usually include a demand for sanitary quarters among others made upon their would-be employers, but they are rarely definite in telling what they want, and they are not at all exigent as to safety devices on the machinery they use.

As for the employers, all except the most enlightened resent interference with their established customs, no matter how deadly the consequences of following them, and can see only that changes would cost money. When compulsion is threatened they reply with a menace of removal of their plants to States where they can do as they please. The fight to stop the use of phosphorus in its poisonous form went on for years before victory was won over the match companies, and there are dozens of industries almost as dangerous in which nothing has yet been done.

Terminals Are a Nuisance.

Underlying the grievance expressed in the letter from ARTHUR CURRAN, printed yesterday, is the fact that we assume that every car used for urban transportation must be run back and forth between two terminal points, and that a change to another car must be made by the passenger whose ultimate destination is off that particular line.

There is, of course, no such necessity, and in these days of great combinations such changes are not even essential to corporate convenience or profit. The distinction between urban and suburban lines could easily be broken down. To change cars involves delay and discomfort, and the length of one's daily journeys is counted by minutes, not by miles. The passengers from a distance are well enough served when they are brought into the city, but the suburban traffic suffers severely from the enforced use of several lines. Few suburbanites take less than three, morning and evening, and this is enough easily to double the number of minutes spent "on the road" between business and home.

The multiplicity of terminals does more than waste the time of passengers; it keeps idle the rolling stock and the operating force of the companies for a considerable fraction of each day, when they could as well be kept in practically continuous motion The worst of our blunders is in treating bridges as separate units, and their ends as places for changing cars. There is no excuse whatever for this, as a bridge is only part of a road, like any other part, so far as the traveler is concerned, and no journey ends on it.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The anti-suffragists have lately made much of the fact that if women got the vote they would lose all the privileges which they now have.

The dower right headed the list which Mr. Levy enumerated in the Senate. The suffragists, on the other hand, have always maintained that no privilege was safe without the vote. Senate Bill No. 7, introduced by Senator Walter R. Herrick, seems to prove this, for in that bill, which reads, "A widow shall be endowed of all the lands whereof her husband was seized of an estate of inheritance, (at any time during the marriage,)" the clause "at any time during the marriage" is stricken out, and the clause "at the time of his decease" is added. In other words, a man may dispose of his real estate any time during his life or a day before he dies, and his wife will have no share in it.

Miss Chittenden's argument that we would lose our privileges if we got the vote is therefore undermined, as we are losing our privileges before we get the vote. We hope that the anti-suffragists will wake up to this fact, and will join in the fight for equal rights while there is yet time, or our privileges will have vanished, and they will find themselves without privileges and without votes.

A Musical Servant.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A letter of mine in THE TIMES the other day, entitled "The Servants' Happy Lot," brings me this diverting tale:

My friend, himself a native of the Antilles, but for a long time a resident of New York, has had in his household until recently a very efficient West Indian mulatto girl. A visitation of German measles, however, sent her to the hospital, and the family laundress also a West Indian, undertook to supply the deficiency with one of her kind. This substitute was by no means as competent as the missing "pearl," and her evident abstraction being noted to her sponsor, enlightenment was evoked thus: "You know, Sah, she am a violinist, and you must make allowance foh de peculiarities ob dose ob musical temperment."

Safety Razor Superior?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

For the information of your correspondent, "W. J. L.," whose letter appears in this morning's TIMES, I beg to say that there are several reasons why a man uses an "old-fashioned" razor rather than a safety. One is that he can shave in half the time required by a safety. This, to a man who shaves every day, means a saving of many, many hours in the course of a year.

Another reason is that the cost of keeping an old model razor in shape is practically nothing, when you learn how, and the knowledge is easily acquired. A. J. B.

Parcel Post Mistakes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I received by parcel post this morning one dozen eggs from Sullivan County, N. Y., which were a precious gift from a friend. But because the parcel had written on one end, "Please send empty box back by parcel post," the Post Office decided the writing was a communication and charged double first-class rate. The Post Office had stuck on $1.44 worth of stamps, which I had to pay in order to get the parcel and my gift. Mrs. F. B. MILLER.

"SAFETY FIRST"

Sacrificed by Railway Union Leaders, Mr. Fagan Says.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The so-called "Safety First" movement which is now becoming so popular on American railroads has more social and industrial significance than is generally supposed.

For one thing, it will be noticed that not a particle of assistance has yet been received from the great brotherhoods of railroad men acting collectively, or from their leaders. Of course, it is absolutely necessary in the interests of safety on railroads that the brotherhoods should be drawn or pushed into this "Safety First" enterprise. A glance at the annual report of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, dated Dec. 16, 1912, will bring out this point with considerable emphasis. It reads:

> The most disquieting and perplexing feature in the problem of accident prevention is the large proportion of train accidents caused by dereliction of duty by the employes involved. Of the eighty-one accidents investigated up to Sept. 1, fifty-two, or more than 63 per cent. of the whole number, were caused by mistakes on the part of employes. * * * The most numerous failures were by trainmen or enginemen.

While management and hosts of individual employes have the safety problem well in hand, its further development is now blocked by the leaders of the big brotherhoods. This statement, of course, calls for a prompt explanation. The leaders I speak of are not employes of any railroad. They are in receipt of handsome salaries. Their duties consist specifically and in the main in boosting wages and bettering conditions. They also act as the medium for arranging schedules and settling disagreements. But in carrying out the details of this programme we find these labor leaders not only indifferent, but lined up most emphatically in opposition to the "Safety First" principle. To be sure, they have not made any statements to this effect. They are men of deeds, not words. In fine, it is their recognized mission to agitate, foment and engineer a strike on any railroad where any kind of a grievance can be unearthed and dragged to the surface.

To be still more specific, these leaders are now playing the payroll and its influence over the men against the safety movement. The control of this payroll, that is to say, the dominant power in drawing it up and arranging its provisions, is vested in the leaders of the brotherhood. Railroad men are human, and when their leaders come to them and say, "Look here, boys, what do you say to a little more money?" the whole situation resolves itself into a payroll proposition. Now, the fomenting and engineering of strikes is a recognized and necessary feature of the campaign of the brotherhoods to increase the wages and better the conditions of employes. At the same time, as I look at it, there can be no possible fellowship or understanding to-day between a strike of enginemen, firemen, or trainmen and the "Safety First" movement.

For example: As I am writing these lines I read in the newspapers that "Shut down or take your chances with a lot of new and inexperienced men" is the ultimatum of the brotherhoods to the management of the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad in Maine. Several accidents have already been reported at the hands of these new men, and right here in this connection it should now be clearly understood by the public that, all things considered, there are in the industrial world no better conditions, no better wages and no fairer treatment than such as obtain to-day on American railroads.

A strike, therefore, for the purpose of adding a few cents to the daily wage of a worker is simply an insult to that goodwill and sentiment of the people which have consistently assisted the railroad man's cause and have finally succeeded in placing railroad labor on a very high and satisfactory basis. The railroad strike is also a direct insult to the multitude of people who are now working early and late to uplift the worker in other industries, with the idea that satisfactory conditions and liberal wages will ultimately be returned to society in terms of satisfactory service. But now, to-day, not only on the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad in Maine, but practically on all railroads, the people and their interests are threatened with a "tie-up" in the name of more money and less work. Look where you will, the excuse for a strike on railroads is nearly always said to be in the interests of so-called uniformity.

Carefully nursed and interpreted by the leader of the brotherhood, this uniformity is a shifting, flexible scale of wages of the will-o'-the-wisp variety. It keeps bobbing up in unexpected quarters all over the country and is continually being adjusted in terms of its highest level. Consequently, on the railroads, so far as the payroll is concerned, the expressions, to make it uniform, to standardize, and to boost, have one and the same significance. Meanwhile the traveling public is made the victim of this surprising industrial situation, and is coolly invited to suffer in general or to walk in particular.

The way out of this tangle is simplicity itself. In a word, the employes can be trusted if we can get rid of the machine that is working them. And this machine would die a natural death if only it were deprived of its weapon, the payroll. In this way also the dilemma of the manager in dealing with discipline, the safety problem, and the wage issue, in the same breath as it were, would be dissolved once and forever. That is to say, when the Inter-State Commerce Commission is given authority to license the men and regulate the payroll, "Saf ty First" will finally come into its own.

In the natural course of events, and in the name of the people, the Inter-State Commerce Commission now finds itself heir apparent to all this industrial muddle. In the interests of safety and reasonable management, it will soon be called upon to show its hand and explain its understanding of the labor situation in relation to safety. In the twenty-sixth annual report of the Commission some five pages are devoted to information relating to the investigating of accidents. Under the law of May 6, 1910, we read that "valuable information respecting the causes of railroad accidents" has been secured and it indicates the need of more effective measures than have thus far been taken to secure safety of railroad travel. In the main, such matters as rails, ties, the track, carelessness, excessive speed, the responsibility of the traveling public are the principal features of this safety discussion. To any one either on the inside or out, however, who pretends to have the slightest knowledge of the situation, it will surely seem passing strange that the simple words Labor Union, Brotherhood, Schedule or Grievance Committee do not appear in this report nor are they referred to or hinted at in any way.

When one comes to consider that the railroad itself, safety problem included, is to a very great extent directed and controlled by the contents of the schedule and the action of the Grievance Committees, it is surely reasonable to expect that two years and a half of investigation would be sufficient to get a word or two about these fundamental factors in the safety situation into the annual report. In the absence of information from every side of the accident problem, the matter of responsibility must remain more or less in the air.

Meanwhile the Inter-State Commerce Commission has very definite work in hand in relation to the "Safety first" movement It should examine and license the employes in the train and engine service and in this way eliminate so far as possible the careless and inefficient workers. In the second place, it should regulate wages and in this way eliminate the "strike." In doing this, as I take it, the Commission will take the labor situation on railroads by the horns. I'm quite aware there will then be something doing, but never mind. Let the influence and power of the Inter-State Commerce Commission be extended to include the regulation of the payroll and then the people at large will immediately get an inkling of what the country has to face and expect in the matter of Government ownership. Sooner or later the Government must get acquainted with these Brotherhoods and, as I look at it, in the interest of safety on railroads, the sooner the better.

THE GULF STREAM PLAN.

War Department Reported Favorably on the Proposed Experiment.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Washington special in THE TIMES which quotes Secretary Stimson's reply to a question "about a report that the War Department had approved the Riker scheme for modifying the climate of Labrador and abolishing icebergs" is incorrect, both as to the "scheme" and as to the action of the War Department. Little-informed persons are prone to treat the proposal with levity and derision. The report that the "Riker scheme" has been approved by the War Department is founded upon a letter written by Brig. Gen. Bixby, Chief of Engineers of the United States Army and the head of the scientific branch of the War Department. Gen. Bixby's letter is presented below. It should be read as it is, and for what it is worth, as an opinion of the "Riker scheme."

F. S. GARDNER, Secretary,
New York Board of Trade and Transportation.
New York, Feb. 6, 1913.

[ENCLOSURE.]

The accompanying bill, H. R. 28,239, Sixty-second Congress, Jan. 25, 1913, third session, provides for the appointment of a commission to investigate and report on certain matters with respect to the Labrador current and the Gulf Stream, and makes an appropriation to defray the cost of such work. The experiments and investigations provided for may result in the acquisition of useful and important data.

Section 1 of the bill provides that the commission shall consist of one competent officer of the United States Navy, with two other competent persons appointed by the President. It is believed that the Coast and Geodetic Survey and the Corps of Engineers of the army are the branches of the public service best fitted by knowledge and experience to co-operate in this important work, the former by reason of having charge of ocean surveys and deep-sea soundings, and the latter on account of its long connection with the planning and construction of jetties and breakwaters.

It is suggested, therefore, that the bill be amended so as to provide that the commission shall consist in addition to an officer of the navy, of an officer of the Corps of Engineers, United States Army, and one official of the Coast and Geodetic Survey. The suggested amendment is indicated in red on a copy of the bill herewith.

W. H. BIXBY,
Chief of Engineers, United States Army.
War Department, Jan. 27, 1913.

Respectfully returned to the Chairman, Committee on Naval Affairs, House of Representatives, inviting attention to the foregoing report of the Chief of Engineers, United States Army, and to the accompanying copy of amended bill referred to.

The department concurs in the views expressed by the Chief of Engineers.

ROBERT SHAW OLIVER,
Assistant Secretary of War.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a partial answer to the complaint and query contained in the letter published about two weeks ago concerning rock blasting along the line of the Catskill Aqueduct during all hours of the night, I beg to say that Joseph Johnson, Fire Commissioner, is also head of the Explosive Commission, and is the officer who grants permission for blasting in this borough. I have this day addressed a complaint to him, in regard to the same trouble at Shaft 11, Morningside Avenue and 121st Street. If a sufficient number of sufferers will make complaint to him, we may get relief.

Old Razor Blades.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will "W. J. L." kindly tell me what he does with his safety razor blades? I do know what to do with books, about which he writes you, but safety razor blades are not so easily loaned. Being under the impression that "W. J. L." is the Southern philosopher who never shaves, I am all the more interested in his solution of this somewhat vexing problem. These thin, sharp, and double-edged cutters are not safely left lying around, and by the same token it is not wise to throw them away carelessly. C. W. P.

TO-MORROW'S SUNDAY TIMES.

The great natural advantages belonging to New York early indicated very clearly the city's right to supremacy as a seaport. The development of commerce has all been toward this end, until now the spacious harbor is stretched to the limit of its capacity to accommodate the shipping. Among the most important of contemplated improvements—the extension of the pier head line on North River—has been indorsed by the War Department, and when completed the largest of ocean liners will find ample accommodation. Details of the plans, sketches, and views are given in to-morrow's Sunday TIMES.

It is often the men who are not at the head of important offices, and who may be almost unknown to the public, who are nevertheless—through their personality or their work—of prime importance in the world of affairs. The man chosen by Mr. Wilson to fill the office of Secretary to the President will bear out the historic tradition attaching to the position. An entertaining sketch of Joseph Patrick Tumulty is given in to-morrow's Sunday TIMES.

Whence came wheat, "The King of Grain"? The original "wild wheat," the prototype of the most precious of our cereals, has been sought far and wide by scientists, and success has at last rewarded the search. The discovery of this primitive grain has just been made in Palestine by a young Rumanian agronomist, Aaron Aaronsohn. What this discovery means not only to science but to all mankind interested in obtaining lower prices for the necessities of life, forms the theme of an absorbing article in to-morrow's Sunday TIMES.

In spite of all that is written about him, it is probably truer than ever that popular interest in the great martyr President, Abraham Lincoln, never flags. This year marks an exceptional achievement in the high quality of the "features" in celebration of Lincoln's Birthday appearing in the Sunday TIMES. Thus, there will be published to-morrow in the Sunday TIMES a sixteen-page supplement containing the biography of the great war President told in pictures, forming a collection of historic illustrations quite unparalleled in the annals of pictorial art. Besides this feature, there will be pages in the regular Sunday TIMES Magazine describing, in word and text, the new $2,000,000 memorial to be erected by the Nation in honor of Lincoln, and an account of certain facts attending the assassination of Lincoln that have not been known until now. Of allied interest is an illustrated article giving the plans of the reunion of the veterans of the North and South on the battlefield of Gettysburg.

TICKET SPECULATORS.

Col. Savage's Fight Against Them Was Not Supported by the Public.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Taking your inquiry in regard to the ticket speculation as evidence of a bona fide interest in the theatrical business, even though it be not germane to the question of the fairness of some of our critics, let me say, first, that my connection with any theatre is simply that of a producing manager, who is not in control of the theatre's policy and cannot dictate the disposition of tickets.

When I did control a theatre—the Garden—some years ago, during the run of "The College Widow," I spent hundreds of dollars in a three weeks' fight against ticket speculators, and was successful. But this fight was received with polite incredulity by most of the papers and with more scoldings than support from the public. HENRY W. SAVAGE.

MISS MARLOWE'S RETIREMENT

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have noted the suggestion, frequently made, that should Julia Marlowe, the Shakespearean actress, retire as announced at the close of the present season we have no actress competent to assume her commanding position on our stage. Is it possible that we are so barren of dramatic intelligence? I don't think so.

For many years Robert Mantell has carried the banner of Shakespeare into every city, town, and hamlet of consequence in the United States, and this year we have William Faversham with his excellent co-stars in the persons of Fuller Mellish and Frank Keenan, Robert D. Maclean-Odette Tyler-Charles B. Hanford combination, Annie Russell, John E. Kellerd, the Coburns, Greets, and we are now promised John Drew. Surely there is a plentiful supply of material. Save for the Sothern-Marlowe combination, Robert Mantell has been the only standard Shakespearean attraction, and while his leading women have at all times been notable, this year he is supported by Florence Rockwell, who, in her own name and by her own talents, has come to be recognized as one of the most distinguished classical and standard actresses on the boards. Surely so long as Miss Rockwell continues to delight and satisfy by her interpretations of roles that range from Lady Macbeth to Rosalind, and Juliet to Desdemona, we need not look far for a thoroughly competent, youthful, talented, and delightful artist. A Recipient of Lamptonian Favor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am the saloon keeper referred to in the letter written by one W. J. L., which appears in the columns of your newspaper to-day.

Sure I gave him a look when he handed me the book. Why shouldn't I when I never saw or heard of him giving anything away before? I was certainly struck dumb to have him hand it to me, and I sure did ask him what I was to do with it. Its name was "Tame Animals I Have Known."

I have been handed many things both wild and tame in my experience, but never anything in the book line. I am a busy man, anyway, but I know a book when I see it and I don't need any loiter to come around my place handing me something funny and then going around telling lies about how I looked when I got it. I can promise W. J. L. that I'll hand him something the next time he steps into my place, and it won't be a book. P. O'C.

The Times and Its Workshop.

From The Pittsfield (Mass.) Eagle.

THE NEW YORK TIMES gives evidence of prosperity by adding a handsome new workshop to its equipment. THE TIMES has demonstrated that the people will support a newspaper that is enterprising yet clean and honest—a newspaper that prints the news and tells as near the truth as it knows how. More than this no reasonable reader could ask.

From The Savannah News.

In the new operating plant of THE NEW YORK TIMES are presses which in thirty-three hours' running time could print enough papers to girdle the earth with a band of paper two pages wide and printed on both sides. Seconds are valuable in newspaper plants, and the improvement of machinery for saving seconds has kept abreast of the demand. THE TIMES'S plant can print papers at the rate of twelve and a half miles a minute. That is speed.

From The Springfield Republican.

THE NEW YORK TIMES has transferred its mechanical department to its new annex building, where it is splendidly housed, with every convenience adequate to the production of a great newspaper, such as THE TIMES has become. In 1904 THE TIMES could print 54,000 sixteen-page papers an hour, and with its present equipment it can print 372,000 per hour. Its manager and its editor are to be congratulated upon the acquirement and opening of a newspaper producing establishment like this.

THE ENCHANTRESS.

When we go to visit relatives in far-off Kankakee,
Or take a trip to Oshkosh for a lark,
We are never quite contented if we do not rush to see
The City Hall, the Court House, and the fountain in the park.

'Tis with awe we view the library—a full two stories high.
At night we go to see the sight of sights,
For the Business Men's Commercial League has progress in its eye,

We are very much enraptured by the wonders of the town;
They form the major subject of our talk.
After we have spent the evening walking slowly up and down,
They ask if we have anything just like it in New York.

No, in sober truth, we haven't; but we have a lot of things,
And we do not think them wonderful at all,
For we show that cold indifference that intimacy brings;
But down deep we are responsive to the Wonder City's call.

And the harbor dons her sable robe of night,
Then the spirit lamps of evening dot the towers floor by floor,

From the pyramid volcano that surmounts the Bankers' Trust
To the cloud-capped tip of Woolworth, sharp and spare;
And between the mellow Singer, like a candied giant thrust,
The night eyes teem as jeweled dust suspended in the air.

And behind the amber brilliance lies the throbbing, thrilling soul
Of the City with ten million joys and woes,
That is drawing prince and pauper to the consecrated goal—
To the throne where lie the laurels that Endeavor's hand bestows.

No; she can't compare with Oshkosh and the rest;
She's the softest and the sternest that the aeons ever grew;
And perhaps she is the baddest, but withal she is the best.

BERMUDA AT HEIGHT OF SOCIAL GAYETIES

Queen's Regiment Officers Give Clever Vaudeville Show in Gymnasium Theatre.

GOVERNOR TOASTS BRIDE

Notable Gathering at Wedding of Miss Florence M. Wainwright to the Rev. E. W. Martin.

Special Correspondence THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERMUDA, Feb. 3.—With the weather at its best and every indication of Spring's coming, Bermuda is filling rapidly. Among arrivals by the Arcadian were Mrs. E. L. Wyckoff of Elmira, N. Y., who was here last year, and is now staying in Paget; Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Goodrich, who have taken Sharon, Mrs. W. Bluck's house, with one of the finest views in the Islands; Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Graves, and Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Vanderveer.

A military wedding this week has aroused much interest. Miss Florence Mary Wainwright, daughter of Masson Wainwright, ex-Mayor of Hamilton, was married in St. John's Church, Pembroke, to the Rev. E. W. Martin, Chaplain to H. M. Forces in Bermuda. The church was decorated with roses and fern in great quantities. Instead of the ordinary choir and organ, there were a military band and a choir of soldiers whose scarlet uniforms made a fine bit of color in the church.

The bride, whose family is an old one here and well known to Americans, wore white satin with lace veil which was thrown back during the ceremony. Her sister, Miss Julia Wainwright, was bridesmaid, in pale blue crêpe de chine. Capt. Smythe, R. G. A., was best man. The Bishop, Archdeacon Davidson, and Canon Marriott performed the ceremony. The ushers were Lieuts. Jesson, Bethel, and Kempe-Welch, Messrs. S. P. Wadson, E. Gosling, and Darrell Wainwright.

The guests included the Governor (who proposed the bride's health at the breakfast), Lady Bullock, Miss Bullock, Capt. Lawrence, A. D. C., Sir Thomas and Lady Wadson, the Chief Justice and Mrs. Sheriff, Hon. C. V. and Mrs. Ingham, Hon. Henry and Mrs. Lockyard, Mrs. W. H. Allen, Miss Helen Schuyler Allen, Mrs. Addison, and Miss Julia Addison, Stamford, Conn., and Mrs. Thomas Murphy, New York.

On Friday Mrs. C. V. Ingham gave a large At Home at The Cedars. The guests included Gov. and Lady Bullock, Mrs. C. H. Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Greene, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lentihon, Dr. and Mrs. Campbell, New York; Mrs. Wheeler and Miss Elliot, Mr. and Mrs. W. McClure, Admiral and Mrs. Upshur, Mrs. Stuart Hamilton, Miss Okden, Mrs. T. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. J. Stillman Ells, Mrs. Duncan, Miss Edna Waterman, Mrs. W. H. Allen, Mrs. Edgar Wilkinson, and Major and Mrs. Crofts. Tennis and bridge were played during the afternoon.

Many dinner parties are given at the hotels before the balls, although it is becoming much the fashion to go to the grill room for supper afterwards. The Princess grill room is after the manner of an old Flemish restaurant, with dark oak furnishings and much quaint Delft ware. That at the Hamilton is lined with exquisite bits of Bermuda scenery, well painted.

A notable dinner this week was given by Mrs. W. C. Daney of New York for Mr. and Mrs. Garratt, who are on their honeymoon. The table decorations were dolphins holding quantities of the wild white narcissi, now in profusion here. There were twenty-two present, including three débutantes of this season—the Misses Helen Allen, Helena Gosling, and M. Waddington. Also the Misses Preston, Belle Ogden of Toronto, Edna Waterman of Cleveland, Muriel Abbott, and M. Ingham, and Messrs. Poller, A. Hulbert, Major Clarke of H. M. S. Melpomene, and Lieuts. Ravenshaw, Williams, Furze, Kempe-Welch, and Henriquez of the Queen's Regiment, and T. W. Gosling of Bermuda.

Mrs. J. Stillman Ells of Cleveland gave a large garden party on Saturday for tennis at the Casuarinas. Among the guests were Mrs. Cummer, Mrs. Siler, who is staying with her mother, Mrs. Norton, in Paget; Lord G. Seymour, Lieuts. Ravenshaw and Peplow of H. M. S. Melpomene, Mrs. W. H. Allen and Miss Helen Schuyler Allen, Mrs. Roger Lutz, who has taken Carberry Hill Cottage again; Miss Nel Lighbourne, Mrs. W. M. Conyers, and Mrs. Duncan.

Two good performances have been given at Prospect Camp this week by the officers of the Queen's Regiment in the theatre in the gymnasium. The presentation of vaudeville is quite new in Bermuda. Nearly all the acts were clever and above the amateur average. A dummy automobile, driven by Capt. Lawrence, A. D. C., was the chief object in a very funny scene. He also imitated Harry Lauder cleverly. Miss Bullock, daughter of the Governor, sang, and a little English girl, Lillie Arnold, brought down the house with her song, "I'm a Naughty Little Girl." Lieut. Boyd gave an exhibition of trick bicycle riding, assisted by Lance Corporal Williams. A performance much applauded was the tattoo by the "Drums and Fife." Clad in full uniform of scarlet and gold, the players made a fine picture.

Governor and Lady Bullock and all the military and naval society were present, and among the visitors were Mrs. and Miss Josephine Gibson of New York, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dana, Clinton Cushing, Mrs. E. M. Bicknett, L. Stewart and Dudley Gautier, Miss Edna Waterman, Mrs. Gautier, Miss Edna Waterman, Mrs. Howard Browne of Albany, Miss Kiddy, Col. and Mrs. and Miss Moncure Robinson.

Officers of the Queen's received their friends afterward in the mess, where the beautiful table silver, including the famous centrepiece, was displayed. The Queen's is an old regiment with a record dating back to 1660, when it was raised to defend Tangiers, part of the dowry of Charles II.'s Queen, whose crest of a "Lamb and Flag" has always been borne as that of the regiment.

Dr. and Mrs. Shelley of St. George's gave a dinner party at the Hotel St. George to Col. and Mrs. Brookes-Smith, Major and Mrs. Robinson, and the Rev. L. I. Havard.

Fishing at St. George's is very good. A recent half day's sport was had in Castle Roads by Mr. Ross and Mr. Christopherson of New York, and A. P. Thompson. Eight minutes after dropping anchor Mr. Ross struck an amberjack of about thirty pounds. During two hours, one bag amounted to three amberjacks, eight bonitas and one barracoota. Among recent visitors to the hotel are: Mr. and Mrs. Noyes, Cincinnati; P. E. Beardsley, Waterbury; A. Smith, Detroit; Mrs. M. A. Jenkins and the Misses Dwyer, Baltimore; Charles Burgess, Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Boss, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Johnstone, Pittsburgh; Mr. and Miss Vilsack, Pittsburgh.

The German warship Bremen is here. Her officers were at the Hamilton dance on Saturday. Other new arrivals are W. F. Hay and G. F. Heuris, Philadelphia, at the Hamilton Hotel; A. G. Bullock, Boston; and H. Turnbull, New York, at the Princess.

A very charming idea was carried out at Mount Royal, Paget, by Mrs. Clara Woodsome of Everett, Mass., in giving a tea party to about thirty people. Mrs. Sarah D. Cropley, the writer, assisted in receiving the guests.

Mrs. F. Harrison Higgins of Olean, N. Y., has given a cup to be sailed for in three races. Winsome II. won the first on Wednesday.

BRIEUX PLAY ON MARCH 9.

Private Performance of "Damaged Goods" in Aid of Eugenics Movement.

Arrangements are being made for a private performance of Brieux's play, "Damaged Goods," on the night of Sunday, March 9, at the Astor Theatre, under the auspices of the Sociological Fund of the Medical Review of Reviews. Richard Bennett, Wilton Lackaye, Constance Collier, and Mary Shaw are among the actors who have volunteered their services. It will be the first production of the play in this country. A private performance was given in London, and it was produced publicly in Paris.

The audience will be restricted to legislators, doctors, settlement workers, ministers, and others who may be in a position to help in the cause which led Brieux to write the play. The aim in view is to awaken public interest in the eugenics movement and bring about definite action in regard to legislation.

Mr. Bennett will be in direct management of the production and a committee of men and women has been formed to arrange the details. Among them are Mrs. Richard Bent, former President of the Legislative League; Dr. William J. Schieffelin, Chairman of the Citizens' Union; the Rev. John Haynes Holmes of the Church of the Messiah; Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes, Dr. William J. Robinson, President of the American Society of Medical Sociology; Cosmo Hamilton, author of "The Blindness of Virtue"; Dr. Ira S. There will be no tickets sold at the theatre, and admission to the performance can be obtained only by becoming a member of the Sociological Fund of the Medical Review of Reviews, the fee for which is $2, and application should be made at the offices of the publication.

The German stock company at the Irving Place Theatre gave the first performance last night of a farce by Julius Horst and Arthur Lippschitz called "Das Lauschiges Nest," freely translated, "The Cosy Nest." The piece tells the story of a young married couple who suddenly discover that a clause in the wife's "dowry contract" makes it possible for them to acquire half a million marks. This clause reads that if they are separated the wife is to receive that sum.

They plan to pretend to be very unhappy, get a separation, and then remarry, when they will have the money to their credit. To carry out the plan it is necessary for the husband to live apart, and he engages an apartment described as "the cosy nest." The fact that his father-in-law had rented the same apartment for an establishment of his own provided most of the comedy.

Last night's audience enjoyed the piece very much and applauded liberally. Christian Rub proved himself again a capable comedian in the leading rôle, while Iffi Engel was delightful as the young wife. Ferdinand Martini had a nice old Foxy Grandpa rôle to play, and Gustav Olmar acted a character with a recurrent phrase into which he put so much variety as to relieve it of monotonousness. Otto Stoeckel was the stage director.

GIVES ITS APPROVAL TO MODERN DANCES

THE TURKEY TROT IS BARRED

Graceful Dancers Reproduce at Delmonico's All the Steps in History from the Minuet to the Two-Step.

There was a large gathering at the annual meeting of the Committee on Amusement Resources of Working Girls at Delmonico's yesterday afternoon to pass on the propriety of modern dances. The spectators, judging by the applause, approved of the dances highly. The turkey trot was barred, but the aeroplane waltz, the tangle, and the Viennese dip were performed for the enlightenment of the committee.

These were preceded by a review of the dances from 200 years back, from the minuet to the two-step, and Mrs. Charles H. Israels, Secretary of the committee, told the audience in her opening address to take notice.

"Different dances brought different manners," said Mrs. Israels, "and I want you to see where modern dancing is tending."

A sylph-like damsel in a gauzy black evening gown, the narrow skirt arranged around the feet to give freedom of motion, danced with a Mr. Quinn, who is said to teach society the terpsichorean art. They glided through the mazes of the aeroplane waltz, the tangle, and the dip, to the delight of those who saw them. Mrs. Israels said later that she thought these dances were all right.

The dancing on the first part of the programme gave the audience some real thrills. In it Oscar Duryea showed the dances of the great-grandmothers, the grandmothers, and on down through different generations, each set of dances with the appropriate music of its time. After the minuet, quadrille, lancers, and Virginia reel had been passed, the round dances came in; the schottische, the waltz of different periods—the hop, the corkscrew and the glide, the Boston, the gallop, and the polka, which brought in the polka-dotted gown.

"The polka had a greater furor than the turkey trot ever did," said Mr. Duryea.

The varsovienne, Yorke, and redowa followed, leading up to the two-step which has put all the dances but the waltz on the shelf for the last ten years. As Mr. Duryea and a pretty young woman in mauve performed the different dances, those in the Delmonico Ballroom could be seen tapping the floor with their feet and humming the tunes. They were the dances that had been popular in the days of their youth. Miss Bertha Schedley assisted in giving the illustrated history of dancing, and Mrs. J. Rumsey danced the three modern dances.

Mrs. Israels told of the work done by the Amusement Committee in investigating dance halls and excursion boats in the year. Five visits are made to each place after a complaint. Some of the worst places were closed or made respectable.

The work is only limited by lack of funds to carry it on. Slips were given out asking for subscriptions.

Stenographer	Ethel Davies

The hand of the skillful melodramatist is apparent in Mr. Royle's latest play, which makes all the more regrettable the fact that he has not chosen a happier theme.

"The Unwritten Law" is almost unrelieved gloom. Such light as comes is due chiefly to the presence of a precocious kiddy of the "tough" type and played as the part is by Tommy Tobin, a very clever child, it adds a few bright moments to the evening.

Dan, the kiddie, can lick any boy in his class, is an unprincipled young grafter, and wants to be a saloon keeper when he grows up. And his ambitions have been largely fostered, it appears, by the presence in the neighborhood of one Larry McCarthy, a ward politician, who for a time seems to be the good angel of the family, but is ultimately revealed as a betrayer of women and a man of generally shady character. Danny's father, once a District Attorney, has taken to drink and forsakes his family, after vainly praying for a miracle which will restore his self-respect. And ultimately the wife allows McCarthy the run of the house, finally killing him when he refuses to marry her and make good the promise he has repeated many times.

By one of those fortuitious coincidences which melodrama admits, the husband staggers in just as the murder is committed and presently, his wife's memory having played her false, he proclaims himself as the murderer.

The fourth act serves to clear him through a hypnotic demonstration carried on before the members of the Grand Jury. And that happiness for all may be assured the youthful prosecutor, who is engaged to marry the daughter of the murderess, brings word that the foreman of the jury has whispered that the verdict will be in accordance with the ideas involved in the unwritten law.

For the greater part a rather depressing play, "The Unwritten Law" contains several scenes of considerable power, but there is little freshness in the inspiration. The second act is wholly unnecessary to the development of the story, which, indeed, it merely serves to retard.

The acting is excellent in several important particulars. Mr. George Farren makes a really pathetic figure of the backsliding husband, and Mr. Frank Sheridan is altogether admirable as the debasing salon keeper, whose unpleasant instincts are skillfully concealed until his object is attained.

As the wife Miss May Buckley provides an appealing figure and plays with a considerable show of sincere emotional variety. Jean Mercet, John Stokes, and Frederick Burton are others whose acting adds to the general value.

YALE HOCKEY TEAM ROUTED AT ST. NICK'S

Dartmouth Surprises the Elis by Capturing Game Near Its End by Score of 3 to 2.

The Dartmouth hockey team gave Yale a big surprise at St. Nicholas Rink last night by defeating the Elis in a closely fought game by a score of 3 to 2. With only a few minutes left to play in the second half, and with the score at 2 to 2, Johnson, the big Dartmouth cover point, broke down the ice, bowling the Yale players over like ten-pins, and, after dodging past the Yale players, smashed the puck into the net for the goal which won the game.

It wasn't much of a hockey game, but there was an abundance of lively scrimmaging and rough checking, which made the contest lively and at times exciting. Dartmouth suffered in the rough scrambles which unintentionally resulted in the wild rushes for the possession of the puck, Wanamaker, the rover, and Johnson both being badly cut on the forehead by hockey sticks.

There was an absence of clever team play and passing, the players employing all their efforts to playing the men instead of the puck. The defense on both sides was stubborn, and the goal tending of both Schiller of Yale and Donahue of Dartmouth prevented the score from piling up. By individual rushes the puck was brought within easy reach of the nets often, but most of the random drives were turned aside by the goal guardians.

For a quarter of an hour the teams see-sawed up and down the rink in a futile attempt to break through each other's offense. The first goal went to Dartmouth after fifteen minutes of play, when Wanamaker carried the puck within striking distance of the Yale net and made a shot which Schiller turned aside. Frost, the Dartmouth left wing, was waiting in front of the cage and caught the rebound on his stick and drove the disc in for a count.

A few minutes afterward Yale tied the score when Harman, the Yale rover, captured the puck in a scrimmage in the middle of the rink and skated down the side alone, making a pretty side drive past Donahue. The first half ended with the score tied, 1 to 1.

Neither team in the second half tried any combination play. They depended entirely upon individual effort, but the defensive play of both sevens was so strong that the many attempts to score failed. Wanamaker brought the crowd to its feet with a nice rush toward the Yale goal, and just as he drove the puck at the net there was offside play, and his fine effort was of no avail.

When the second half was about three minutes old, Wanamaker again broke loose for a long run through the Yale skaters. His drive was shot back by Schiller just in time for Tuck to smash it in for the Green Mountain boys' second goal. Tuck's drive was successful because Schiller left his post in front of the Blue goal in his effort to bang the rubber out of reach. On the next play Johnson was sent sprawling on the ice, and in the scrimmage which followed he was cut on the forehead with a stick. He resumed play after the cut was plastered.

Heron of Yale gave Mason a bad check and sent the Dartmouth man down in a heap, for which the Yale wing was sent off the ice for two minutes. Heron repeated the trick soon after and was ruled off again. These were the only two penalties of the contest.

Yale tied the score again after ten minutes of play in the second half. Cox carried the rubber into Dartmouth territory and made a pretty shot which was bounded back by Donahue. Ordway, the Yale centre, caught the disc on the rebound and scored.

Wanamaker, the Dartmouth rover, was tumbled in a rough scrimmage in front of his own goal and he was badly cut over the left eye, but resumed play.

Johnson saved the game for Dartmouth toward the end of the second period, when he got the rubber behind his own goal and after a speedy dodging journey down the rink, during which he slid elusively past the Yale defense, he caged the puck for the winning goal. The line-up:

Cutler Hockey Team Wins.

After twenty-nine minutes of dribbling and passing of the puck L. Post of the Cutler School caged the single goal which defeated the Stuyvesant team yesterday morning at St. Nicholas Rink by the score of 1 to 0. The stubborn defense put up by both teams prevented either side from shooting a goal earlier. The line-up:

Pennsy on Dartmouth Schedule.

These changes are contained in the Dartmouth schedule for 1913, which was announced to-night. Dartmouth will play nine games. Football relations with the University of Pennsylvania are resumed after a lapse of sixteen years. Carlisle will be met for the first time, the game to be played on the Polo Grounds, New York, on Nov. 15, closing Dartmouth's season. The schedule follows:

Princeton-Harvard Hockey.

Judging from the splendid playing qualities of the hockey teams of Princeton and Harvard, one of the most thrilling games of the season is expected when the teams clash to-night at the St. Nicholas Rink. Princeton has piled up victories over the strongest amateur teams of the country, the only seven which forced them to defeat being the Harvard squad in the first game of the series played at Boston.

Wells Succeeds Garcelon at Harvard.

Mr. Garcelon, who for nearly a dozen years has been the principal factor in the management of all Harvard's athletic contests, recently tendered his resignation owing to the press of business affairs. The resignation takes effect Aug. 1.

RIVALS IN BASKET BALL.

Columbia's Superior Playing Easily Vanquishes New York University.

Columbia University basket ball team started out with a new dash last night after a two weeks' rest, and in their annual game with the New York University team on the Morningside Heights Court scored a victory of 23 to 10. The wearers of the Violet proved to be no match for the Blue and White aggregation, which scored freely throughout the contest and gave their opponents little chance to cage the ball.

Meenan, Columbia's fast forward, after a few seconds of play, made a spectacular angle shot and the Blue and White rolled up a score of ten points before the visitors began to find themselves. Then the N. Y. U. lads braced temporarily, only to have their aggressive tactics quickly broken up by the close guarding of the home players. The score at the end of the first half was 17 to 6 in favor of Columbia. The line-up:

Columbia.	Position.	N. Y. U.
Benson	Right forward	Stewart
Roberts	Centre	Dutcher
Lee	Right guard	C. McLaughlin

Goals from field—Lee, (3,) Stewart, (2,) Helifant, (2,) Meenan, (2,) Jacques, Veeder. Goals from fouls—Benson, (8,) Helifant, McDonald, Lee. Substitutes—Reynolds for Benson, Veeder for Roberts, J. McLaughlin for McDonald. Referee—F. L. Quigg, New York A. C. Umpire—J. H. Deering, Manhattan College. Time of halves—Fifteen minutes.

Rochester Beats Princeton Five.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 7.—University of Rochester defeated Princeton University at basket ball here to-night, 23 to 12. The local collegians had previously beaten Cornell and Pennsylvania, on the home court. Princeton used a couple of second strin gplayers in the first half, which ended 13 to 5 in favor of Rochester. Even when Princeton relied on its full strength in the second half, the local 'Varsity had a point the better of the argument. The passing of the lighter Rochester players was too speedy for their Tiger opponents. Neary and Dewitt did the best all-around work for their respective teams. The first half had progressed four and one-half miniutes before either team was able to score. Line-up and summary:

Rochester.	Position.	Princeton.
Schoen	Right forward	Gill
Hale	Right guard	Dewitt
Neary	Centre	Briggs
Carey	Left guard	F. Trenkman

Substitutions—Salmon for Gill, McLanahan for Briggs, E. Trenkman for F. Trenkman. Goals from field—Neary, 4; Schoen, 2; Carey, 2; Foulds, 1; Hale, 1; Gill, 1; Delaraeucille, 2; Dewitt, 1. Goals from fouls—Neary, 3 in four attempts; McLanahan, 2 in four attempts; Salmon, 1 in one attempt; Gill, 1 in one attempt. Referee—A. G. Crawshaw, Syracuse Y. M. C. A. Time of halves—Twenty minutes each.

Rutherford Makes Record Score.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., Feb. 7.—Rutherford High School's basket ball team ran up the record score of the season when they defeated the Paterson High School five in the Rutherford City Hall auditorium this afternoon by the score of 95 to 4.

Other Basket Ball Results.

Sensational basket ball playing by Capt. Bel Evans of the Orange High School team gave his team a victory over the East Orange High quintet yesterday afternoon at East Orange by the score of 35 to 24, and Evans had the distinction of having made every one of the points for his side.

Carteret Academy's basket ball team yesterday afternoon defeated the South Orange High School in the second game between those schools this season, winning by the score of 25 to 23.

The Beard School for girls defeated the South Orange High School girls' basket ball team in the South Orange gymnasium yesterday afternoon by the score of 22 ot 18.

Although playing without the services of her two star guards, Kisscck and Shultze, the Poly Prep School basket ball team defeated the Peekskill Military Academy quintet yesterday afternoon on the former's court in Brooklyn by the score of 21 to 9.

Substitute Bouts in East New York.

The much talked of bout between Arthur Read, an amateur, and Battling Green, which was to have taken place at the East New York A. C. in East New York last night, failed to materialize. The management of the club stated that Read never agreed to box the professional boxer Green at their club. Murray Allen defeated Young Lundy in a ten-round bout. Allen forced the fighting from the start and showed his superiority in every round. He did effective work with a left jab. The main bout was to have been between Bull Anderson and Al McCoy, but as Anderson was injured in his bout on Monday night at the Royale A. C. with Young Kurtz, Al Phiel was substituted. The bout furnished plenty of action, and McCoy did most of the leading and proved a better boxer than his opponent.

NOTES OF THE BOXERS.

Sixty rounds of boxing are on the card for the usual week-end show of the Fairmont A. C., in the Bronx, to-night. The feature event will bring together Dave Cronin of Harlem and Walter Brooks, a New York boy who has made quite a record during the last few months. Joe Jackson and Willie Brown, local bantamweights, will come together in the other ten-round bout.

The entry list for the amateur boxing tournament to be conducted on Monday and Tuesday nights by the Queensborough A. C. closes to-day. Bouts will be conducted in the 108, 115, 125, and 135 pound classes. Entries close with M. J. Flynn, 274 Radde Street, Long Island City.

Leon Ketchel, brother of the former middleweight champion, is training at Woodlawn Inn for his New York debut against Danny Ridge at the Olympic A. C. of Harlem on Monday night. Ketchel is being assisted in his training by Matty Baldwin of Boston, Young Wagner, and Packey Hommey. Baldwin is instructing Ketchel in all the finer points of the game, and is enthusiastic about the youngster's chances of making a name for himself in the lightweight division.

Manager Billy Gibson of the Fairmont A. C. will stage a special show at the Fairmont next Wednesday night, when the main bout will bring together Jim Coffey, the Dublin giant, and Ned Carpenter, a heavyweight who arrived in New York a few days ago from Wisconsin. Carpenter has shown so well in his workouts that he was immediately picked for the star bout of the show. In another ten-round bout Young Mike Donovan, who has been winning with regularity, will try his skill against Joe White of Boston.

The amateur tournament of the City A. C. will be concluded to-night, when the semi-finals will be decided in three classes and some special bouts put on for boys under 125 pounds, the low class in the tournament.

WHY GIANTS DO NOT BUNT THE BALL OFTEN

They Must Depend Upon Slugging to Offset Their Erratic Fielding.

During the past two seasons Manager McGraw of the Giants has practically abandoned the sacrifice hit as one of the features of the New York Club's attack. There's a reason, and Manager McGraw explained it yesterday.

The sacrifice hit, according to the Giant manager, is useful enough in pushing the runner along a base or two in the process of the production of a run. But, McGraw went on to explain, a run or two isn't enough to assure the Giants of a victory because the team is such a poor fielding aggregation that it is liable at any time to make a costly "boot" or "muff" and lose the game. So Manager McGraw has to resort to the hit-and-run game and speed on the bases to harvest enough runs to assure the club of victory.

Next to Boston, the Giants were the poorest fielding club in the National League last season. The best fielder on the club was Herzog, and he ranked seventh among the National League third sackers. Merkle, according to the figures, was the most erratic of the fielding first basemen; Doyle was tenth among the second sackers, and Fletcher ranked eleventh among the shortstops. Fletcher, however, covered as much ground as any shortstop in the League and he had more assists per game than any other shortstopper.

The Giant outfielders made lots of errors, too. Devore ranked as low as thirty-fifth among the fielders and Snodgrass wasn't much better, he being twenty-sixth among the out-gardeners. Becker ranked nineteenth and Red Murray was the best gatherer of fly balls on the New York Club, ranking ninth.

With such a shaky, erratic aggregation of fielders as this to contend with, Manager McGraw finds it necessary to pile up as many runs as possible in order to offset the constant possibility of Giant errors giving the opposing clubs a big advantage. Most ball clubs are willing and satisfied to win games by a run, but Manager McGraw never feels comfortable unless he has his team two or three runs in front.

So that's the reason the New York Club doesn't use the sacrifice hit. It is often very useful in getting a runner around, but McGraw relies more on the aggressive hit-and-run attack, which, with wide-awake, daring base running, has been the Giants most successful system of counting runs.

Wilbert Robinson, the Giant coach, joined Manager McGraw here yesterday and the two veterans had a long talk about the Giants' training plans. Robinson is going to be the busiest man in the Marlin camp. He won't have a thing to do all day but try out the young pitchers. Robinson will give much of his time to Demaree, Kirby, Bader, and the real giants, Perryman and Hanley. It will be on Robinson's advice after the training season is over that Manager McGraw will decide on what pitchers to keep.

Teddy Goulait got in from Indianapolis yesterday and is ready to join the party which starts for Marlin by way of St. Louis a week from to-morrow. There will be a general round-up of players here early next week to mingle with the baseball throng which will attend the League meetings here.

Manager Frank Chance of the Yankees is trying to buy Outfielder Ralph Capron from the St. Paul Club of the American Association. The New York manager was tipped off to Capron by Russell Ford, the Yankee pitcher, who says that the St. Paul player is going to be a major league star. Capron two years ago was one of the best college baseball and football players in the West. He was quarter back on the Minnesota eleven and was also a baseball star. Capron was signed after his college career by Pittsburgh, but the Pirates never gave him a chance, and he was sent to Milwaukee. Milwaukee sent him back to the Pirates, who then sold him to St. Paul. Last season he played the outfield in eighty-eight games and had a batting average of .276.

Pitcher Maurice Kent signed a contract with the Brooklyn Club yesterday. Kent played with the Dodgers for a time last season and was sent to Toronto, where he showed much improvement. Manager Dahlen says that Kent will be on the regular staff this season.

It is stated that one of the big trades which will take place during the league meetings here next week will have Pitcher "Buck" O'Brien of the Red Sox for a star feature. O'Brien, it is said, had a serious "run in" with Joe Wood and Manager Jake Stahl during the World Series last Fall, after O'Brien made a balk and forced in a run. Since that time President McAleer has feared that the incident might disturb the harmony of the club during the coming season and is contemplating a big trade.

The application of Orval Overall, former pitcher for the Chicago National League Club, for reinstatement has been received at the headquarters of the National Commission in Cincinnati. Overall refused to report to the club in the Spring of 1911, saying he had finished with baseball. President Ban Johnson of the American League and member of the National Commission would not predict what would be the outcome of Overall's appeal or when it would be acted upon.

A Japanese may be the successor of "Red" Gallighan, official bat boy for the Chicago National League Club for ten years, who has declared his intention of following Frank Chance to New York. Sugimoto is seeking the position and President Murphy is considering his application.

Dol Howard, one of the leading batters in the Pacific Coast League, has been engaged as scout for the Chicago National League Club in the Far West. Howard formerly was a member of the Chicago Nationals.

Charles (Chic) Fraser, a former member of the Chicago National League baseball team, has signed a contract to manage the Pittsfield, Mass., Club of the New England League.

Evansville Club's Financial Tangle.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 7.—The National Baseball Commission in a finding handed down to-day ordered a complete adjustment of the claims of various Evansville, Ind., business men who are creditors of the 1911 Evansville Club of the Central League. The claims amount to $2,142.95. The sale of the Evansville franchise and territorial rights to the K. I. T. League is declared forfeited on account of a default in payment. In its finding the commission also states that the receipts of the Evansville Club in 1911 exceeded its disbursements by $5,000 and this has not been accounted for. The Central League took over the Evansville franchise in 1911.

Fined for Striking Umpire.

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—It is illegal to strike a baseball umpire in Illinois. This view was held by the Appellate Court to-day in sustaining a decision of the municipal court, rendered on Nov. 21, 1908, by which Robert Cantwell was fined $75 and costs for assaulting Umpire Kerin of the American League. The assault took place at the local American League Park late in the Fall of 1908 after a heated game. Cantwell is known as an ardent follower of baseball.

Williams May Play Racquets.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 7.—Chairman W. H. T. Huhn of the Athletic Committee of the Racquet Club was indignant to-day at the published assertions that Charles Williams had refused to play Jock Soutar for the world's professional racquet championship because the wreck of the Titanic, on which he was a passenger, had cost him his nerve. Such a statement is absurd, said Mr. Huhn, as no letter has yet been received from Williams, and all that has been heard from him is that he has cabled that his letter in reply to the challenge is on its way.

M. F. PLANT IN BASEBALL.

New York Yachtsman Buys New London Club in Eastern Association.

Morton F. Plant has become interested in professional baseball and has bought the franchise of the New London, Conn., club of the Eastern Association. Mr. Plant's Summer home is at New London, and he has taken over the club and the baseball park and will give that city a pennant next Summer if such a thing is possible.

Mr. Plant has already given New London a woman's college, and is now desirous of putting the city on the baseball map. For the past two seasons he has backed a semi-professional club in New London, and now wants to make the city known in organized baseball. The Eastern Association is the rejuvenated Connecticut League and is made up of Connecticut and Massachusetts cities.

Mr. Plant has incorporated the New London Baseball Club with a capital stock of $10,000, and has named as his associates George B. Prest and Charles B. Whittlesey. Jack Burns, the old major league player, has been appointed manager and will have free rein to build a winning ball club. New London is a prominent Summer resort, and in the early days of the old Connecticut League had some good ball clubs.

The New York yachtsman has bought the Armstrong Park in New London, where many old-timers in the national game became prominent. Among these were Tom Tucker, Tom Bannon, Ben Kinney, Pete Woodruff, Fop Rising, and Charley Armbuster, all of whom were well known as members of the famous Whalers in the old days.

It is merely his strong interest in the game that has prompted the yachtsman to enter professional baseball.

Mr. Plant is a member of the New York Yacht Club, and is the owner of the yachts Elena and Thelma.

For the first time in its history the Eastern Association is coming to New York next week for its annual meeting at the Hotel Victoria. Manager Burns will be among those present in the interest of Mr. Plant and will pick up any available players to strengthen his team.

$150,000 INSURANCE ON CUBS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 7.—Connie Mack's much vaunted $100,000 infield pales into financial insignificance in comparison with the valuation placed upon a trio of Chicago Cub stars by President Murphy. The Chicago club's President to-day insured Manager Johnny Evers and Catchers Jimmy Archer and Roger Bresnahan to the extent of $50,000 each, the three policies calling for the sum of $150,000 in the event of the death of the players.

"I decided to insure these men to-day," said Mr. Murphy. "It will be a straight life policy for one year and the amount of the premium is small enough when one considers that none of the three could be replaced in case he died or was killed."

George Pierce, former catcher of the St. Paul club of the American Association, was the agent who persuaded the Cub owner to take out the insurance. When the documents are made out it will be the first time in the history of baseball that three men in the same club were insured for such a sum.

The experience of being insured for $50,000 is not a new one to Bresnahan, who during his regime as Manager of the St. Louis Cardinals was insured for the same amount by the late Stanley Robison.

"It may appear as a gamble," remarked President Murphy to-night, "but I do not think it a bad scheme. Pierce put the idea into my head, and after considering it I arrived at the conclusion that the proposition was one which ought not to be turned down."

St. George A. C. Road Race.

More than a dozen athletes braved the wintry blasts last night and took part in the St. George A. C. road run from Sixteenth Street to Columbus Circle and return. The race was won by Arthur Roth, the Mohawk A. C. cross-country runner. His time was 27:05. Roth lead from the start and finished more than a minute ahead of H. Nye of the Mohawks. There was a lively race between John Worncke of the St. George A. C. and Harry Young, unattached, for fourth place. Worncke won by ten seconds.

Janowski in Simultaneous Chess.

Thirty-one opponents tried their skill against the masterly tactics and experience of David Janowski of Paris, chess champion of France, at the rooms of the Manhattan Chess Club in the simultaneous performance given by him against all-comers and concluded early yesterday morning. Among those who sat down at the tables was James W. Osborne, former assistant District Attorney. Mr. Osborne drew his game. Victory crowned the efforts of W. W. Young, at one time a member of the Princeton intercollegiate team, who played brilliantly in a Petroff defense. Other winners were F. P. Beynon, M. J. Keys, E. Garcia, W. Apfelbaum, and S. Auerbach. Drawn games were played by A. Cohen, P. S. Laverty, J. Liebleing, A. G. Lynn, J. W. Osborne, C. H. Parker, R. Redlich, J. Sattels, R. Stutz, H. B. Truran, and W. W. Witt. Janowski's total score comprised 14 wins, 6 losses, and 11 drawn games.

White Again Loses at Billiards.

A handicap of 65 points was too great for Charles E. White to overcome when he was defeated last night in continuation of the amateur handicap 18.2 balk line billiard tournament at Keeney's Academy, in Brooklyn, by Dr. H. D. Jennings by the score of 195 to 146. This is the second time White has endeavored to overcome large handicaps and failed. White was playing for 260 points, while his opponent had only to score 195. Jennings finished his string in 33 innings for an average of 5 30-33, and he had high runs of 44 and two of 13 points. White average 4 11-33, with high runs of 36, 28, and 22.

Taylor a Billiard Victor.

In last night's game of the amateur handicap three-cushion carrom billiard tournament at Doyle's Academy, James Taylor defeated Dr. Nettles by the score of 20 to 14 in forty-six innings. Both contestants were playing for twenty points, and each made the high run of 4 points.

Maupome Loses Again with Cue.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Feb. 7.—Frank Jones of Philadelphia defeated Pierre Maupome of St. Louis here to-night in a National Three-Cushion Billiard League game, 50 to 45. Each had high runs of 4. One hundred and twenty-two innings were played.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 7.—First honors in the Lake Worth golf championship tournament to-day went to the Metropolitan district as Walter J. Travis of Garden City, N. Y., went through the field with little or no trouble, finally defeating R. H. McElwee of Chicago, the Florida amateur champion in the 18 hole final by 8 and 6. Travis played perfect golf and all but duplicated his wonderful round of last year when he scored a 62. His medal card was 64 this morning and with the numerous bunkers put in since his last appearance this score stands as a record.

Although the tournament officially opened yesterday, it will not conclude until to-day, when the majority of the boys will compete, and the final result be announced. Of the cards turned in yesterday De Witt Clinton High School is leading with three of its marksmen tallying the best scores. A. Grossman is high gun, with a total of 135 out of a possible 150. H. Dutton ranks second, with a score of 134, and L. T. Morbay stands third with 130. Morris High School is second with S. Iscoil and J. Furia, each having a score of 129. TO REVISE REFEREE LIST.

Some Competent Officials Unintentionally Dropped to be Reinstated.

When the State Athletic Commission meets next Tuesday it is likely that a revision will be made in the list of referees which was decided upon at the meeting last Wednesday. A few additions to the original list will likely be made, and it would not be surprising if some of the original selections were dropped so as to conform with the number originally decided upon.

The reason for the change is that the commission, in choosing its list of officials on Wednesday, overlooked some officials who have been officiating regularly at some of the smaller clubs of the city. It was not the intention of the Commissioners to deprive any regularly employed official of his position unless he was found incompetent and the majority of the revocations of licenses were due to the belief that the men were inactive. When the list was announced and referees who have been working steadily learned that they had been dropped they were quick to get into communication with the commission.

Billy Moore of the New Polo A. A. was one of the officials whose license was canceled, and he called at the commission's headquarters yesterday to learn the details. Moore has been one of the most active local referees since the Frawley law went into effect and for several months before that time while the old membership system was in vogue. He has been the regular official at the New Polo A. A. and he was also employed regularly during the last few months that the Fordon A. C. was in operation. He has also officiated at the Irving A. C. of Brooklyn and as a substitute official at the Olympic A. C. and the St. Nicholas A. C. He is anxious to be retained as a referee and is indorsed by most of the club managers of the city, as he has demonstrated that he is a competent official. His name will most likely come up for consideration at next week's meeting, together with two or three other officials who will be forced to give up positions unless their names are added to the list.

The Atlantic Gardens A. C., which was denied a license at the last meeting of the commission, will carry their petition higher in the hope that the decision of the commission will be reversed. The attorney for the club made a visit to the commission office yesterday and examined the application which Motors Responsible for 456 Deaths from 1907 to 1911—Horse Vehicles for 1,147.

NEW RHODE ISLAND ROADS

More Than $500,000 to be Spent on Highways in That State This Year.

There is a widespread impression that automobiles cause an undue proportion of accidental deaths. Frederick L. Hoffman, statistician of the American Museum of Safety, has brought forward a series of figures which are quoted in the Journal of the Automobile Club of America, to show that from 1907 to 1911 456 persons were killed by automobiles in New York, while in the same period 1,147 persons were killed here by wagons. This is a yearly average of ninety-one deaths by motor car to 230 by wagon. This table shows the cause of the fatal accidents in this city for five years.

Deaths by conflagration	478
Deaths by burns	1,854
Deaths by explosions	44
Deaths by steam railways	546
Deaths by electric railways	977
Deaths by elevated railways	66
Deaths by horse cars	12
Deaths by Subways	78
Deaths by cars (not specified)	81
Deaths by automobiles	456
Deaths by wagons	1,147
Deaths by other vehicles	67
Deaths by falls on sidewalks, &c.	370
Total accidental deaths	18,383
Accidental deaths per annum	3,660

On the subject of safety in the streets W. W. Miller, Chairman of the Law and Ordinance Committee of the club, has written this letter to Alderman Folks, Chairman of the Special Committee of the Aldermen, investigating the speed question:

The figures set forth in the report of your committee will doubtless suggest to you that the speed of vehicles operated on rails in the streets of this city requires regulation as much as that of any other kind of vehicle. True, their course is a fixed one, but neither can they dodge a person who may fall before them, as can an automobile, for example. You have found that in general the total number of accidents to pedestrains caused by automobiles exceeds the total number of similar accidents caused by surface street railway cars. But the statistics set forth in your report do not give the total number of automobiles in use in this city as against the total number of surface street railway cars being operated, a very vital fact in a comparison of this kind.

I am informed by the Public Service Commission for this district that the total number of surface street railway cars in daily operation in the greater city is approximately only 2,700. There are at the same time in excess of 40,000 passenger and 5,000 commercial automobiles in this city alone, to which must be added the thousands from outside the city that use our streets every day.

The State Board of Public Roads of Rhode Island plans to expend more than $500,000 in building new highways and in maintaining them this year. The $255,000 left of last year's appropriation of $600,000 will be used entirely for construction. A special appropriation of $200,000 for repairs and upkeep will be required in addition to the State's income from the automobile taxes, which amount to some $100,000.

In the near future the Old Boston Post Road to New Rochelle, long closed to motorists, will be available for use once more, according to the touring department of the Automobile Club of America. Sub-grading has been practically completed.

MAINE CORN TO BE HIGHER.

Labor and Cans Cost More and Supply Is Smaller, the Packers Say.

Maine corn is going to be higher this year. The opening prices already made by packers in Maine are considerably higher than they were last year. Maine corn is the favorite in the market for the better trade, and to have an advance made on it is a matter which affects seriously a good many dealers who handle it.

The advance is caused, the packers say, by the increased cost of labor, the higher price of cans, and the difficulty of getting sufficient acreage at a reasonable price. Farmers will not grow corn in large enough quantities to satisfy the regular requirements of packers unless they are assured of a higher price for their raw material. Other varieties of corn are selling at substantially the same future prices as prevailed last year.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Vestments Trimmed with Venetian Lace Cannot Be Classed as Regalia.

The Board of United States General Appraisers overruled a protest dealing with the classification under the Tariff Act of 1909 of vestments trimmed with Venetian lace. Collector Loeb assessed duty at the rate of 60 per cent. ad valorem under paragraph 402, as manufacturers in chief value of lace. F. Pustet & Co., the importers insisted the merchandise should be free of duty under paragraph 661 as church regalia. Judge Hay holds that the rocrd in the case makes it impossible to determine whether the articles fall properly within the provision for regalia.

A protest by Neuss, Hesslein & Co., relating to scalloped fabrics was sustained. Collector Loeb exacted duty under paragraph 339, Act of 1897, as embroidered articles. The merchandise was declared dutiable under paragraph 346 at the applicable rates according to the weight per square yard and count of threads per yard.

The Board took favorable action on protests filed by T. Alsonso and others, relating to the duty on barrels and half-barrels of Almeria grapes. Duty was assessed at twenty-five cents per cubic foot on the capacity of the barrels under paragraph 276 of the Act of 1909. It was asserted that the customs authorities assessed on an excessive measurement. Judge Somerville directs Collector Loeb to reliquidate the entries on a lower duty basis.

The American Express Co. failed to receive free entry for flax waste claimed to be fit only for paper-making. The merchandise was returned by the Appraiser at Boston as of a grade suitable for use otherwise than for paper-making.

259 Business Failures This Week.

Bradstreet's reports 259 business failures in the United States during the week, against 361 for the previous week, and 323, 291, 249, and 211 for the corresponding weeks of 1912 to 1909. The Middle States had 78, New England 32, Southern 65, Western 45, Northwestern 11, and Far Western 28. Canada had 41, against 25 for the preceding week. About ninety per cent. of the total number had capital of $5,000 or less, and 5 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

Although all classes of merchants are operating conservatively for actual wants, business in the wholesale dry goods trade in the West is decidedly better than it was a year ago, and shows no signs of slowing down.

According to a prominent manufacturer, white and tan hosiery is in strong demand for Spring. White goods were scarce last Summer, and buyers are looking ahead this year and ordering accordingly.

Orders for brass bedsteads have not been particularly heavy since the prices were advanced at the beginning of the year, for buyers have been expecting a break in this market. So far there has been no indication of reductions being made, however, and an improvement in the demand is looked for shortly.

RETAIL PRICES HOLD STRONG.

Special to The New York Times.

"Buyers have been in the market in much larger numbers than during the corresponding week a year ago. All sections of the country have been well represented, the attendance being especially heavy from Iowa, Wisconsin, and Minnesota. Immediate business from our traveling representatives is large. Shipments are good and collections normal.

"Shadow laces and all-overs, in both cotton and silk, from narrow widths to twenty-seven inches, are in vogue at present, and lace buyers are all keen for this type of merchandise. Widths from twelve to twenty-seven inches are in most demand. Valenciennes are in greater demand than for a number of seasons. Venise all-overs, bands and edgings are selling in a larger way than during the last few months.

"Salesmen on the road with blankets and outing flannels are sending in large orders, and, although the cost of manufacturing is much higher than a year ago, merchants are pleased to find the new merchandise heavier and better than during previous seasons and marked so that standard retail prices may be maintained."

GOOD CROCKERY ORDERS.

More activity was noted in the local crockery and glassware trade last week. Out-of-town buyers were in the market in large numbers, and in most instances placed good sized orders. In some cases buyers have been operating along rather conservative lines on account of the uncertainty of tariff revision, but on the whole the volume of orders booked to date is considerably larger than it was at this time last year. Salesmen on the road have been sending in nice orders from various parts of the country and this end of the business has generally been satisfactory.

According to the Crockery and Glass Journal's reports, domestic pottery is moving well. Orders have been plentiful, and the potteries are working to full capacity to keep up with the demand. The call for the better grades of tableware has been unusually good. Manufacturers of glassware in the Pittsburgh district report a good demand for their products, with enough orders on hand to keep them busy for some time.

BELDING BROS.' ANNIVERSARY

Gifts to Surviving Members to Mark Fifty Years of Business.

To commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the firm of Belding Bros. & Co., silk manufacturers, the Directors and employes of the firm recently presented Milo M. Belding and Alvah N. Belding, the two surviving brothers, handsomely illuminated portfolios containing the signatures of the officers, Directors, managers and employes, numbering over 3,000. On the outside of each of the portfolios is a gold plate bearing the recipient's name and the dates 1863-1913. At the same time the New York store presented each of the brothers with a gold-headed cane suitably inscribed.

M. M. Belding, Jr., the President, was presented with a large silver loving cup, bearing the names of the officers, managers and Directors of the company, the Belding Brothers' crest and the dates 1863-1913. Two of the employes, who have been with the firm for almost fifty years, received gold souvenirs of the occasion.

FEATHER IMPORTERS BUSY.

Ostrich, Numidi, and Fancy Varieties Are All Selling Well.

Importers and manufacturers of flowers and feathers have been unusually busy during the week. Retail buyers have come to the local market much earlier than is customary on account of the early Easter this year, and buying has been well up to normal in most sections of the trade.

The demand centres around novelties of all descriptions, and various combinations of bright colors are in great demand. The bulk of the orders so far call for small effects in both flowers and feathers, as the shapes that are expected to be in demand during the early part of the season are generally small.

Ostrich, numidi, and fancy feathers of all kinds are selling well, and there has been a good demand for domestic and imported flowers, particularly in small cluster effects. Among the popular colors are the so-called Bulgarian shades, Empire green, coque de Roche, Pompadour blue, cerise and gold.

SALE OF FLOOR COVERINGS.

Good Orders for Oilcloths and Linoleums—Carpet Mills Behind.

The situation in the local floor covering trade has changed little during the week. In oilcloths and linoleums business has been fairly brisk, for retail buyers have been coming to the market in larger numbers almost every day and placing good sized orders. The jobbers selling to the smaller retail stores throughout the country have apparently done well, for they are re-ordering liberally. Manufacturers seem well pleased with the outlook. The business booked to date compares very favorably with that of last year in most instances.

Manufacturers of rugs and carpets are now busily engaged in filling their Spring orders. The mills are running to full capacity, but complaints are heard that the goods are not being shipped out on time. Jobbers are sending in re-orders in fair volume, but on the whole, little activity is reported so far as new business is concerned.

HAS REPORT ON CAN STOCK.

Governor Receives It from President of Stock Exchange.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 7.—Gov. Sulzer said tonight he had received from President Mabon of the Stock Exchange a letter containing a report on the investigation of the recent activity in the shares of the American Can Company. When the Committee of Stock Exchange Governors was here last week, Gov. Sulzer asked concerning the manipulations of that stock. Mr. Mabon said he had started an investigation and would report when he had finished the inquiry.

Gov. Sulzer will not make the report public at present.

ACCUSES SOUTHERN PACIFIC.

F. S. Groves Says Its Steamship Lines Made War on Independents.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The House committee which is investigating the alleged Shipping Trust resumed its hearings to-day, first calling F. S. Groves, President of the Philadelphia and Gulf Transportation Company.

Mr. Groves testified that Charles Wagner of Philadelphia had been employed by the Southern Pacific lines to obtain from employes of the Groves line information regarding manifests, so that the Southern Pacific could get in touch with the independent shippers. Meantime Wagner also was employed by the Philadelphia and Gulf Company, an independent, to find out what the "combination" was doing to block its business.

Mr. Groves charged that Wagner took copies of the manifests of the independent company to New York and sold them to J. L. Spence, traffic manager for the Southern Pacific, at $10 each. He alleged that when the Southern Pacific rebated to its own shippers the independent broke the rebating up by meeting it with an open rate. The Southern Pacific, he said, held over the shippers as a club a threat that they would suffer if they did business with the independents.

Mr. Groves also testified that those who have been operating the Chesapeake & Delaware Canal, between Baltimore and Philadelphia, since the defalcation in its funds of about $800,000 some years ago, "have been forcing my line to pay exorbitant rates, which have resulted in loss in the operation of the ships."

MORE COPPER METAL.

Stocks on Hand Increased 17,885,750 Pounds in February.

The Copper Producers' Association reported yesterday stocks of refined copper on hand on February 1 of 123,198,332 pounds, an increase of 17,885,750 pounds during the month. For the sixth consecutive month the report showed an expansion of surplus copper supplies in the country, bringing the total increase for the half-year up to about 76,500,000 pounds.

The output from smelters in January was 143,479,625 pounds, something over 125,000 pounds more than was turned out in December, 1912. Domestic deliveries showed a gain of 6,718,000 pounds in the period, a total nearly offset by a falling off in shipments abroad of approximately 5,330,000 pounds. Complete deliveries amounted to 125,593,875 pounds for the month.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

The Daily Consular and Trade Report notes the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information concerning them may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of the item referred to:

10,358. LARD.—An American Consul in a European country reports that he has been requested by a resident of his district to be placed in communication with a first-class American firm handling lard for export. The inquirer furnishes bank references.

10,359. AGENCY FOR AUTOMOBILES.—An American Consular officer has forwarded a copy of a letter from a person who has secured certain mail contracts from a foreign Government, and desires to substitute automobiles generally for horses and carts for carrying rural mails. His company also desires to deal in automobiles, availing itself of the mail service as an advertising medium. As motor spirit is an expensive item in the country in question, the firm wants a make which would be economical in that respect. If it can obtain cars run on kerosene which can be depended upon this will be a controlling factor in making selections.

10,360. SALT-MILLING MACHINERY.—A report from an American Consul in Italy states that a resident of his district desires to receive from American manufacturers catalogues and price lists of salt-milling machinery, especially machinery for producing fine table salt.

10,361. SHOOKS, NAILS, AND WAX PAPER.—A merchant in Arabia informs an American Consulate that he would like to hear from American firms prepared to furnish shooks, nails, and wax paper for packing dates. Correspondence may be in English.

10,362. GREASE WOOLS.—A South African produce dealer informs an American Consulate that he wishes to correspond with American wool buyers desiring to purchase South African grease wools. He furnishes bank references.

10,363. MACHINES FOR ADJUSTING MATRIXES.—An engraver in France informs an American Consular officer that he desires to enter into business relations with American manufacturers of machines for the adjustment of matrixes used in the printing trade.

10,364. CLAM BAIT FOR FISHERMEN.—An American Consular officer in Portugal reports that a business firm in his district desires to get in touch with American sellers of clam bait for the codfisheries. This concern furnishes supplies to a number of the vessels going to the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, and is anxious to extend its business by supplying clam bait to the fishermen. References can be furnished. English or Portuguese may be used in correspondence.

10,365. WOOD AND VULCANITE FIBRE TURNERS.—Supplementing a previous report, which appeared as Foreign Trade Opportunity 10,080 in Daily Consular and Trade Reports for Dec. 18, 1912, an American Consular officer writes that the inquirer is anxious to communicate with American wood and vulcanite fibre turners with a view to securing agencies in the United Kingdom for such firms. He is of the opinion that he can make good sales of their products.

10,366. CARBORUNDUM PRODUCTS.—According to the report of an American Consul, there is a good and increasing sale of carborundum manufactures in the country in which he is located. American products, though slightly higher in price, are regarded with great favor. Two commercial travelers, who until recently represented an American manufacturer of these products, have severed their connections with the firm, and are now desirous of entering into relations at once conjointly with an American manufacturer of first-class carborundum wares, who is willing and able to export to the country in question. These men are said to be thoroughly familiar with their special work through many years' experience, and have built up a strong clientele.

10,367. HAMMERS AND KINDRED ARTICLES, WASHBOARDS, AND CLOTHESPINS.—An American Consul has forwarded a copy of a letter from a business man in his district asking to be put in touch with American manufacturers of hammers and kindred articles, washboards, and clothespins. This firm states that it can do a business of $50,000 to $50,000 annually in these lines if it can get good American connections.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Quiet and Prices Generally Firmer—The Gold Outflow.

Discussion of matters having to do with the stock market centred yesterday principally on the Union Pacific plan, but in banking quarters a good deal of attention was given to the continuance on a large scale of the gold outflow. We have now sent out since the beginning of the year over $23,000,000 gold and this loss of reserve money must, it seems to many, soon impress itself upon the money market in the shape of hardening interest rates. Indeed some quarters of the money market already begin to show a firmer tone and there are yet no indications that the gold export movement has about run its course. Whether we are called upon to send out much more gold will depend in large measure upon the celerity with which the political situation in Europe is cleared up. So long as the Balkan problem remains unsettled it can hardly be expected that Europe's hoarded gold will flow back into banking channels. The amount of gold which has been hidden away on the Continent is large and the loss of this gold from money market use has naturally served to give the European markets an unusual incentive each for itself to shift the gold demand to other markets. Ours has been the market which, since the beginning of the year, has been able to spare the metal with the least inconvenience. The question is presenting itself to many whether the continuance of this movement unabated will not disturb us at least to the extent of rendering more difficult the large amount of financing which has to be done for railroads and other corporations during the next few months. Part of this necessary financing consists of provision for maturing short time obligations of which large amounts have been held abroad. This latter has been one of the factors which have given Europe easy access to our surplus gold supply. In addition to its concern over the political situation Europe has confronting it a large amount of financing of its own, and so the demand for gold may remain keen even after peace has been restored. As to this latter eventuality the markets are clearly reflecting confidence in an early ending of the hostilities which have been resumed between the Balkan States and Turkey.

Only slight response was made by the market to the formal announcement of the plan for the separation of the Southern lines from the Union Pacific and for the sale to the latter of the Central Pacific. Southern Pacific was the more active and yielded something less than a point, while Union Pacific made a fractional net gain. The large increase in the market supply of Southern Pacific stock was still the dominant factor in shaping the view which traders took of the plan. Largely for this reason the Stock Exchange found little reason to look upon the plan as offering any exhilaration to the market. For the moment considerations in respect to the strong position in which the treasuries of the two companies are placed by the terms of the plan and other similar matters were left in the background of market discussion. In his formal statement Mr. Kruttschnitt expressed it as his opinion that the net earning capacity of the Southern Pacific will not be diminished by reason of the adoption of this plan. It is understood that the Southern Pacific management, in estimates submitted to the committee of this company's stockholders, placed the probable earnings on the road's capital stock this current year at 11 per cent.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Financing in Dull Times.

The improved bond market for which a great many corporations have been waiting for various periods of time has yet to come. There has been a constant demand for first-class issues bearing attractive interest rates, but this condition obtains even when the general security market is flat, as the bond dealers say. As for what might be called the second-rate issues, which are recommended for the investment of business men and others who are not absolutely dependent upon their income, there has been practically no market at all. Yet even in a poor security period the country's power of absorption of new securities is very great. A banker who had been bemoaning the absence of a real investment demand began to count up the new financing arranged so far this year, in which his firm had participated, yesterday, and was surprised to find the total well over $300,000,000 without taking into account the smaller issues handled. If the subway bonds are released soon and the Chinese loan goes through the total amount of the first half year's financin, will reach very respectable proportions.

The Chinese Muddle.

The American bankers have been working at a great disadvantage throughout the protracted and confusing Chinese loan negotiations. They have had a big geographical handicap to overcome in arguing with the English, French, and Germans as to the policy to be followed in the Far East, and it is said that the cable tolls to date have absorbed a large share of the profits in sight from the flotation of the new bonds. The Europeans are better fitted by training and temperament than the Americans for dealing with the Chinese and with one another. They expect delays when there is no real occasion for putting a matter off, and hair-splitting when big questions are at stake. The American bankers like to settle all details in two or three conferences, and get their desks clear for another undertaking. Most of the bankers interested in the United States' portion of the international financing have been weary of the word gabelle since the end of the first month of negotiations. One of them said yesterday that he had supposed nothing remained but to affix signatures to the agreement for a good many days, but he was not one to object to allowing the Europeans to enjoy to the tumost the pleasures of argument.

Business in the Northwest.

President Howard Elliott of the Northern Pacific Railway said yesterday that so far this Winter there had been an oversupply of snow from the Rockies westward and a deficiency from the mountains east, but that there was still plenty of time for further snows to put the land in condition for next season's crops. The Northern Pacific's earnings are leading those for last year by a big margin. The gain in January's gross revenues was approximately $1,000,000. In the first six months gross earnings have been about $3,000,000 ahead of those for the first half of the big year 1909, while net has been almost the same amount as in that year. Only steadily increasing efficiency, as shown in the growing trainloads, has enabled the company to meet the higher costs of labor, supplies, and taxes.

"Delayed in Transit."

A break of 110 points in Standard Oil of Kentucky on the curb yesterday stirred up, in a reversed fashion, the gossip of Broad street heard last summer, when explanations were sought for the rise of this stock to $1,000 a share. It was reported on the former occasion that a broker sold several shares, expecting to make delivery on his contracts with stock which was in transit to him from another city. The stock was delayed, and, in order to complete transaction, he had to go into the open market for it and pay the price. To give a plausible variation to this "delayed in transit" theory as applied to yesterday's decline it was necessary to suggest that the steady bidding up of the shares early in the week had persuaded venturesome traders of the dire need of someone for the stock, as before, and they had gone short with the idea of covering when the delayed securities reached the market. As a matter of fact, the decline resulted, in the words of a Standard Oil specialist, from the inability of a number of buyers to hold on any longer to the shares they had bought at a very high price.

***

Good Coke Business.

Soft coal companies have been making money on their sales of coke ever since steel making got under real headway last Fall. A year ago the product sold around $1.60 a ton. The quotation is now $3, and producers have placed large contracts at that figure to extend over the whole of 1913. An officer of one of the larger soft coal companies said yesterday that his books held the best orders in the company's history.

***

Increase in Copper.

The Copper Producers' Association reported an increase in supplies in January, which was just far enough below the forecast of 20,000,000 pounds, to give a little comfort to producers, but not low enough to stimulate any buying. Production was practically on the same scale as in December, and domestic deliveries scored a fair advance, but a dearth of foreign orders, due to the Balkan war, was clearly reflected in the accumulation of supplies on hand.

MELLEN ON CO-OPERATION.

New Haven Head Tells Why He Will Meet Employes Monthly.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Feb. 7.—Charles S. Mellen, President of the New Haven Road, had this to say to-night about his new policy to meet his employes at stated periods:

"I have agreed to meet our men's representatives once a month; to devote a day to them, if need be; to receive their suggestions, the result of their observations, and to profit by them, I hope, to our mutual advantage. I can ill spare the time, but know of no better use for it.

"I believe there must be better co-operation on the part of officials and labor organizations, or the result will be worse for both. I am earnestly desirous of promoting that closer co-operation by all means in my power.

"Personal conferences with employes or their representatives are most beneficial. Personal acquaintance is most important. Through personal contact many erroneous impressions are dissipated. Fewer differences arise where there are opportunities for discussion of matters of mutual interest.

"The President of a large business enterprise should not be unknown to those who are working to make that enterprise a success. The employes should see the personal side of the man at the top, not hedged about by what their imaginations have surrounded him with, but as a human being like themselves—with all their frailties, prejudices, and limitations. They can grow to like him, and he them, and both can do better work in consequence."

INVENTORY OF CITY'S $100,000,000 STOCK

Prendergast Carrying on the Work That Has Not Been Done for the Last Hundred Years.

POWER PLANTS AND TOOLS

And Everything Between These Extremes — City's Paintings Hard to Appraise, but Cost About $200,000.

Controller Prendergast has put a new plan into operation to prevent waste and theft of property belonging to the city. For the first time in the city's history all its personal property is being inventoried. It is estimated that the value of this property is something like $100,000,000, and for a hundred years no one has ever kept track of it. In that time, it is estimated that many thousands of dollars worth of material has been stolen or wasted.

The Controller put his inventory plan into operation on Nov. 19, and it is now about completed. He acted under Section 149A of the charter which provides that "every officer and employe of the city shall, in the manner directed by the Controller, formulate a report of the facts relating to all of the property of the city."

Some of the city departments opposed the plan, and the Controller appealed to Mayor Gaynor who ordered that the work be done. The Controller provided each department with printed forms explaining just how the work should be done and what should be inventoried. The forms fix the difference between equipment which has not been inventoried in the past with that which has been kept track of. The former classification is described as being "anything from an electric power plant or ferry boat to a small hand tool used in a repair shop. A portable house is equipment, but a brick shed would be classified under real estate. Small articles such as electric fans or brackets set on tables, attached by wire cords, are equipment, as are also all cupboards, cabinets, racks, &c., which are not actually nailed or otherwise fastened to the walls, or which are purchased and installed separately and not included in the cost of a building."

Office, household, medical and surgical scientific, educational and recreational, and general plant equipment, as well as wearing apparel, are specified as articles which must be inventoried in the future. Live stock, not including stock purchased for slaughter or laboratory equipment purposes, is made a class by itself.

Office equipment is held to include such things as tables, chairs, coat-trees, bookcases, clocks, waste paper baskets, rugs, curtains, cuspidors, and safes. Household equipment includes beds, carpets, rugs, and window hangings, silver plate, cutlery, brooms, mops and pails. Law libraries, dictionaries, and other books of reference have a cla s of their own. Under general plant equipment is included fire-fighting and fire-prevention equipment, life-saving apparatus, road, street and sidewalk cleaning machinery and park equipment. Educational equipment includes all materials used in schools and libraries. Scientific equipment takes in all hospital and laboratory materials.

Special and miscellaneous equipment includes handcuffs, shackles, straitjackets, morgue and burial appliances, small arms and accoutrements, rifles, carbines, swords, revolvers, etc., ballot boxes, ticket choppers, flagstaffs, portable houses, tents, and awnings.

Wearing apparel covers all uniforms and clothing worn by inmates, patients, and employes of hospitals, prisons and other institutions, also helmets, boots and all parts of uniforms, such as buttons, shields, and badges. Under the live stock classification there are beasts of burden, such as horses, mules and asses; produce yielding animals, such as cows, heifers, bulls and bull calves, sheep, goats, and swine.

The inventories already turned in include that of the Dock Department, which heads the list with $18,000,000. The Fire Department has reported 800 pieces of apparatus, of an average value of $2,500; ten fireboats, of an average value of $75,000; 600,000 feet of hose, of an average value of $1 a foot; 1,400 horses, of an average value of $300; 4,500 outfits of "domestic supplies," of an average value of $20, the total being $4,760,000.

The public libraries of Manhattan, the Bronx and Richmond, reported an equipment which cost $1,015,838.56, and which is now worth $600,752.99. The books cost $874,871, and have a present value of $524,922.60.

The portraits and paintings in the city buildings proved an exceedingly difficult item of appraisal. The Municipal Art Commission, however, finally agreed that the canvasses had cost $200,000. What they are worth now is a matter for speculation, but it is certain that their value has more than doubled.

THIRD AVENUE LINE GAINING.

Fixed Charges Met and Adjustment Bond Interest Partly Earned.

The first annual report of the Third Avenue Railway Company, covering the calendar year 1812, was issued yesterday. It shows that the operating revenue of the entire Third Avenue system was $9,547,529 and the operating expenses $5,849,143, leaving net operating revenue of $3,698,386. Deducting taxes of $675,607 and adding interest revenue of $51,478, the gross income was $3,074,257. After paying interest on all the bonds of the subsidiary companies and on the 4 per cent. refunding bonds and after setting aside the depreciation fund, the net earnings of $1,318,910 remained.

Ordinarily, President Frederick W. Whitridge says, this would have been sufficient to pay the interest upon the 5 per cent. adjustment bonds, but it was not a normal year. Large expenditures were necessary for the completion of the reorganization. These absorbed a large part of the net earnings. The cash on hand amounts to $2,556,757, of which $558,719 is in the current account. Unpaid bills for paving reduce the amount of cash on hand, but enough remains to pay an installment of interest on the adjustment bonds on April 1, amounting to 1½ per cent., which Mr. Whitridge recommends be done.

"The rails," says Mr. Whitridge, "have not been replaced to the extent originally intended. It has been found that the surface of the rails laid within a year or two have become corrugated after very short use, which creates an odious noise much complained of by the public, and for which our only present remedy is to plane the surface of the rails. Similar conditions are apparently universal, and conventions of engineers in Germany, Belgium and in this country have led to wide discussions and the greatest possible diversity of views among engineers and manufacturers as to the cause of this defect. One of the experts of the Public Service Commission once expressed to me the view that there seemed to be a kind of disease in the metal of which the rails were made. While this is neither scientific nor an explanation, it is a reason why as few new rails as possible should be laid until after the secret of the 'disease' has been discovered."

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Of the present conditions of trade Dun's Review says:

No important change has taken place in the business situation during the past week. The leading industries and trades are still prosperous, and the undercurrent of conservatism that exists in some quarters has not retarded to any measurable extent the steady broadening of industrial and mercantile activity. The Balkan situation has caused some financial strain abroad, and part of the heavy European gold requirements have been shifted to this side. This, in connection with the demands occasioned by our increasing domestic trade, has imparted a slightly firmer tone to the money market. The open Winter, while somewhat unfavorable to retail trade, has afforded a stimulus to various branches of industry. Building and allied lines, for example, have been generally active, and the unusual weather has added materially to the already large traffic of the railroads, whose gross earnings during four weeks of January increased 13.9 per cent. The heavy orders for cars, rails, and other equipment have in turn contributed largely to the great activity of the iron and steel industry, which, in most of its divisions, is operating close to the limits of capacity. Notwithstanding the strike in the clothing industry, the important textile trades are prosperous, while the shoe trade is also doing exceedingly well. Recent snow has improved Winter wheat conditions. The record of foreign commerce continues to be one of the striking features of the business situation.

Bradstreet's says:

Trade is expanding, visiting buyers are increasing their purchases as the season progresses, and in consequence February opens auspiciously. Spring shipments are going forward in volume, retail dealers continue to press jobbers for goods, colder weather, combined with clearance sales, has imparted zest save in a few lines, merchants display no parsimonious distribution, industrial operations are as active as heretofore. Winter wheat, is in good shape, money is in active demand, and, ticular apprehension over prospective tariff changes. Real wants rather than sentimental factors, of which there are a number, at least on the surface, govern the situation.

NEW BALLOTS PUZZLE WOMEN'S FEDERATION

CELEBRATE TENTH BIRTHDAY

The New York City Federation of Women's Clubs, with delegates present representing 80,000 members, held its annual convention at the Hotel Astor yesterday. The tenth birthday of the organization was celebrated with a cake, and for the first time officers were elected under a ballot system. The convention and the birthday cake were a success, but the new form of ballot was said to have confused many of the voters. Therefore, though the polls closed at 4:30 o'clock, the result was not known at 10:30 last night.

While the voting was in progress the convention went on with its work, and settled many serious matters in the day and evening. One of the subjects considered was a resolution dealing with dower rights for women.

"We are not asking privileges, we are simply asking rights," said Miss Ida Craft, who is Colonel of the Pilgrim Army which will start on a hike to the inauguration at Washington next week. "Let us waive our rights and have equal dower rights for men and women. Dower rights don't amount to anything, any way."

Another woman agreed with her, but Mrs. Priscilla D. Hackstaff, who is a suffragette, was on her feet immediately.

"I protest against the curtailment of any privileges that we have until we have full rights," she said.

That attitude suited a majority of the delegates, and they clapped and cheered for some time.

The delegates sent a letter to Gov. Sulzer yesterday asking him to retain Dr. Fritz Reichman as Commissioner of Weights and Measures, and they voted to write to Superintendent of Schools Maxwell asking to have lectures on the evils of narcotics and alcohol and textbooks for the school children above the third grade.

The women will appeal for women Deputy Fire and Health Commissioners to work without pay; they want all chauffeurs to have references from a reputable person as to character and sobriety before receiving a license; they would prohibit the carrying of red flags in any procession, and they want the wages of men prisoners to go to their families.

There were several blind women at the convention, and one of them, Mrs. J. L. Austin of Brooklyn, spoke in favor of the appointment of a State Committee to consider the needs of the adult blind in matters of self-support.

The second event of the convention which brought great applause was a call for reports from the anti-suffragists after the suffragists had spoken, and it was announced that both anti-suffrage societies which had joined the Federaton had gone out of existence.

Miss Florence Guernsey was elected President of the Federation, Mrs. Francis Yawger First Vice President, Mrs. A. M. Palmer Second Vice President, Mrs. Grace Greenwood Wollenbeck Third Vice President, Mrs. Charles D. Hirst Recording Secretary, Mrs. Thomas J. Vivian Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. May Barrett Treasurer, and Mrs. North McLean Historian.

BOY HAS UNEXPECTED TRIP.

While Playing on Plymouth Here She Starts for Newport.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Feb. 7.—Louis Zwicker, 15 years of age, who lives at 124 Washington Street, New York, was turned over to the Newport police when the Steamer Plymouth of the Fall River line arrived early this morning from New York.

The police officials made the boy's stay in Newport agreeable by giving him money for food and for his return fare to New York to-night by the same steamer.

The boy told the police that he was playing hide and seek with other lads, on the Plymouth, while she was moored to her dock. He was in a life boat waiting to be discovered by his chums when he found that the Plymouth had sailed and was in the stream bound for Newport.

The boy's mother was notified that he was safe and would return home to-night.

FERRYBOATS ICEBOUND.

DETROIT, Feb. 7.—The recent cold weather has seriously hampered Winter navigation on the Great Lakes, and at least three steamers are frozen in the ice with no immediate prospect of release.

The car ferry boat Chief Wawatam has been ice-bound in the Straits of Mackinaw since Tuesday night. The ferry St. Ignace went to her rescue Wednesday forenoon and she, too, is held fast. Several of the Chief Wawatam's passengers walked ashore to Mackinaw, but others preferred to remain aboard rather than endure the hardship of the tramp over the ice. The St. Ignace has no passengers. Dynamite may be used to release the two vessels.

At Muskegon, the Goodrich steamer Alabama has been fast in the ice near the harbor since Wednesday. No passengers are aboard, and the crew, with provisions and coal to last two weeks, is awaiting a favorable wind and warmer weather for release.

BOTSON TO BE PEACE CENTRE

BOSTON, Feb. 7.—Headquarters of the World Peace Foundation are to be established permanently in this city. An estate on Beacon Hill, which was purchased to-day by Edwin Ginn, is to be the home of the society, and possibly of an international school of peace. Mr. Ginn has announced his intention of establishing such a school, to be equipped with a staff of lecturers, writers, and teachers.

As a means of promoting peace among the nations, Mr. Ginn some years ago said that he would contribute $50,000 a year for the rest of his life, and that he had set aside $1,000,000 for the same purpose, to be conveyed in his will.

COLD SNAP STARTS ICE CROP.

From Six to Eight Inches Thick and Cutting Will Begin Monday.

NEWBURG, Feb. 7.—For the first time this Winter the mercury dropped to zero this morning, and the outlook now is that the harvesting of ice from lakes in this vicinity will begin early next week.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, N. J., Feb. 7.—Unless the weather predictions fail, the icemen of this region will be at their long-delayed task of filling their houses by next Monday. The ice was six inches thick this afternoon, and will probably be thicker than eight inches by morning.

Kansas Legislature for Referendum.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 7.—A bill to provide the initiative and referendum in Kansas passed the State Senate to-day by a vote of 31 to 6. A similar bill passed the lower House of the Legislature last week.

TO REOPEN GUGGENHEIM CASE

Illinois Takes Formal Action to Set Aside Divorce on Ground of Fraud.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—The State of Illinois made a formal request to-day that the decree of divorce granted to Mrs. Grace Brown Wahl Guggenheim from William Guggenheim, the wealthy copper man, be set aside, on the grounds that it was obtained by "collusion and fraud." The motion in behalf of The People of the State was made by Assistant State's Attorney Malcolm B. Sterrett, representing State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne.

None of the Guggenheims was in court. Mr. Guggenheim was represented by Abraham Benedict of New York, a partner of Samuel Untermyer; Chester Cleveland, Salomon O. Levinson, Jacob Newman, and Stephen S. Gregory. The copper man's first wife was represented by Charles J. Tramor and J. J. Lordan.

A strenuous effort was made by Mr. Gregory to exclude the State from the case.

"No officer of the court has any right to interfere or meddle in private matters without sanction of law or direction of the court," he said. "It is, therefore, your Honor's duty to turn out the Assistant State's Attorney just as it would be your Honor's duty to turn out a meddling private citizen."

"The State's Attorney is represented here with the permission of this court and, therefore, we will not argue the matter," interrupted Judge Heard.

Mr. Sterrett asked that Mrs. Guggenheim's original bill of complaint be dismissed, because Gov. Edward F. Dunne, then sitting in the Circuit Court, filed affidavits to the effect that the decree was entered without jurisdiction. He also alluded to Judge Heard's decision, in which he held that the original decree had been fraudulently obtained.

Mr. Gregory argued that there could be no impeachment of a decision handed down eight years before, and made a plea for the family relations since entered into by Mr. Guggenheim.

Judge Heard asserted that fraud had been perpetrated, and that the only question for the court to decide was whether or not it had jurisdiction to set aside a decree after the original term of court in which it was entered had passed.

If the divorce decree is set aside, and the entire proceedings expunged from the records of the court, a complicated situation will present itself. Nine months after she obtained her divorce Mrs. Guggenheim married agin. Three or four years after the divorce Guggenheim also remarried.

MOVE VANDERBILT CHARITY.

Home for Friendless Girls Will Probably Go to Flushing.

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt and other wealthy women who two years ago established the Home for Friendless Girls at Great Neck are said to be planning to move that institution to Flushing. Two sites in the upper part of Flushing are under consideration.

At the present time there are about twenty girls in the home and their ages average about 16 years. When the home was started, W. K. Vanderbilt gave the use of a small cottage on his estate at Lakeville. This was destroyed by fire about a year ago and the girls moved to a small cottage in the vicinity of Westmoreland, but the work of the women has proved such a success that it has become necessary to seek larger quarters, it is said.

Mrs. Vanderbilt and others have a movement on foot now to raise sufficient money to build a large home and it is understood that they will in all probability select a site near Broadway, in Flushing.

HAD STOLEN $10,000 BILLS.

Man Arrested in St. Louis Suspected of Cuban Bank Theft.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 7.—A man who presented two $10,000 bills at the foreign exchange window of the Third National Bank here to-day was taken into custody by a Post Office inspector, who will inquire where the man obtained the currency.

The teller noticed that the numbers on the bills corresponded to those of two stolen in the theft of the $200,000 package of currency from the Havana-New York mail on Oct. 12, 1912.

While the man, who seemed to be a foreigner, waited the teller telephoned to a private detective agency and to the Post Office inspector. The detectives and the inspector speedily arrived and arrested him.

He is not accused of the theft, but the officers think that by tracing the history of the bills they may capture the thief. It is thought that the man who presented them at the bank window came into possession of the currency innocently.

MERIT PLAN FOR GUARDSMEN.

Governor Insists That It be Basis of All Promotion.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 7.—Promotions in the National Guard must be made on merit only, according to Gov. Sulzer, who discussed to-day the case of First Sergeant Samuel Littman of the Forty-seventh Regiment. Littman complained opportunity for promotion to a second lieutenancy had been denied to him by Col. Henry C. Barthman. As stated in THE NEW YORK TIMES, the case has been referred to Adjt.-Gen. Henry Dewitt Hamilton.

"I did not receive a formal complaint," the Governor said. "As I recollect, I received a letter. I sent for the Adjutant-General and told him I would not stand for discrimination in the National Guard on account of race, religion or previous condition.

Attorney General Rules on Reduction of the Highway Forces.

ALBANY, Feb. 7.—When it becomes necessary to reduce the force of employees in the State Highway Department, veterans and exempt firemen are entitled to preference in retention, according to an opinion to-day by Attorney General Carmody.

He holds that there is no statutory preference distinguishing between veterans and firemen, but says the order given in other matters by statute and the Civil Service Commission "should have some weight with officers having power of removal." This order is: Civil War veterans, Spanish-American War veterans and exempt firemen.

GRAZED BY FALLING BOTTLE.

Mrs. Hine Endangered by Walking in Thirty-fourth Street.

Mrs. William S. Hine, whose husband is an insurance broker at 123 William Street, was hurrying through West Thirty-fourth Street toward Sixth Avenue at noon yesterday when, as she was passing the Marbridge Building at 47, a falling milk bottle grazed her hat and broke into pieces at her feet. The bottle had fallen from a window sill on the top floor.

When Mrs. Hine told her husband of the happening he said it only went to show the need for a law, such as his partner, Joseph M. Sanford, recommended, which required that window sills should have a slope of at least 45 degrees so that nothing could be put on them.

Dr. Van Dyke Going to California.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 7. Mr. and Mrs. Henry van Dyke left here with their family to-day for California, where they will spend the next three or four months. Dr. van Dyke will fill many academic engagements on the coast and will deliver the Founders' Day address at Leland Stanford University the coming Spring. On Sunday, while en-route to the coast, he will address the men's Sunday Night Club at Chicago.

SHOE LAST TRUST DISSOLVED BY COURT

A CLUB THE INSTRUMENT

Decree Dissolves Club and Declares Contracts Unlawful—Many Firms Affected.

DETROIT, Feb. 6.—"The Boot and Shoe Last Trust," which fixed, it is alleged, the price of practically every last sold in the United States, was dissolved here to-day by the Federal Government. Immediately after the filing of a civil anti-trust suit against the Krentler-Arnold Hinge Last Company and numerous other last manufacturers with whom it was allied by agreements, United States District Judge Arthur J. Tuttle entered a decree, previously agreed upon, terminating license agreements in so far as they fixed the price of unpatented lasts and dissolving a club through which the alleged violation of the Sherman law was accomplished.

The decree, in effect, lays down the broad principle that it is unlawful to tie together patented and unpatented articles so as to fix the price of the unpatented commodity. Neither the Government's petition nor the decree questions the right of a patentee to fix the price of a patented last.

Defendants to the suit were named as follows:

Krentler-Arnold Hinge Last Company of Detroit, Krentler Bros. Company of Detroit, Crawford, McGregor & Canby Company of Dayton, Ohio; Rebhun Company of Cincinnati, St. Louis Last Company, Chicago Last and Die Company, Boston Last Company, Rochester Last Works, Woodward & Wright Last Company of Campobello, Mass.; George E. Belcher Last Company of Stoughton, Mass.; Mawhinny Last Company of Brockton, Mass.; Golbert Last Company of Worcester, Mass.; Marlboro Last Company of Marlboro, Mass.; New York Last Company, John Pell & Sons of Newark, N. J.; Stewart & Potter Company of New York City, R. S. McNeill Company of Brooklyn, Philadelphia Last and Pattern Company, Vulcan Box Toe Process Company of Portsmouth, Ohio; Nathaniel E. Arnold and George T. Atwood of North Abington, Mass.; Thomas W. Gardner, H. K. Gardner and H. L. Wood of Lynn, Mass.; Frederick Drew and Augustus A. Delano of Brockton, Mass.; George H. Van Pelt of Chicago, F. W. Stuart of Beverly, Mass.; W. E. Bigelow of Worcester, Mass.; C. C. Kempen, C. C. Redifer, Oscar Redifer and William C. Root of Philadelphia, L. C. Wadleigh and J. H. Hovey of Haverhill, Mass.; Edwin O. Krentler of Detroit, William H. Crawford of Dayton, Ohio; Charles S. Dennis of Chicago, and Frederick Drew of Brockton, Mass.

The defendants manufacture, it is asserted, 75 to 80 per cent. of all shoe and boot lasts in the United States, and thus dominate and control, so far as price is concerned, the entire inter-State commerce.

Instead of manufacturing its patented lasts and their parts exclusively, the Krentler-Arnold Hinge Last Company issued license agreements to other manufacturers in which the latter agreed, it is said, to maintain the prices of all lasts in accordance with a schedule of prices furnished by the former. The purpose of these agreements, it is charged, was to fix arbitrarily and unfairly high the price of both patented and unpatented lasts, the latter forming about 50 per cent. of the business, so as to enable the Hinge Last Company to exact an abnormal price for its patented lasts.

Prices are fixed, and unreasonably high profits obtained, it is declared, largely through an organization known as the Cary Club, composed entirely of the licensees of the Krentler-Arnold Hinge Company.

By the decree agreed upon, in which the defendants disclaim all intention of violating the Sherman law, they are restrained from continuing the alleged unlawful features of their agreements and from further maintaining the Cary Club.

The Government's petition, signed by Atty. Gen. Wickersham, James A. Fowler, Assistant to the Attorney General, and Malcolm A. Coles, Special Assistant, was filed by United States Attorney Clyde D. Webster.

STATE NEWSPAPER INQUIRY.

Massachusetts Progressive Questions Accuracy of News Reports.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Feb. 7.—Arthur D. Hill, Chairman of the Progressive Party Legislation Committee, was heard by a Legislative committee to-day on his bill for the appointment of a committee of five by the Governor to investigate the extent to which newspapers and periodicals are publishing news items in a false and misleading manner, or intentionally suppressing them for political purposes or other ulterior motives, and also the advisability of establishing a State newspaper.

"We have got to form opinions on knowledge acquired from the facts we get from the newspapers," he explained. "It is of the last importance that people should get the facts not distorted, but no one will pretend that the press gives us that to-day."

He thought there was no need to go into the causes; they did not rest on wickedness, he believed, for in the main the men who ran the newspapers wished to do their business honestly and fairly, to give the news in the way they thought the public wanted it.

"But you can't get the facts," said Mr. Hill, "by reading any single paper, and then they are too often destroyed by misleading headlines. This, to a certain extent, is due to carelessness, to a certain extent to a desire to distort the real facts for some ulterior purpose.

"The main trouble," he continued, "is not with the reporters. It is what occurs in the counting room after the report comes in, and nobody knows that better than my friends of the press. This matter is of importance because the power of the newspaper to influence public affairs is stronger than ever before."

Mr. Hill said the object of the bill was to find out how the newspapers got their revenues; to show how they are controlled, and the methods by which the facts were stated or misstated. That would serve as a basis of legislation, or if it could be found that no legislation was necessary, it would lead to a better and healthier press.

William Sleight, Hit by Train, Dies.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Feb. 7.—William Sleight, 64 years old, living at Grove and Linden Strets, Bogota, was struck by a West Shore passenger train this morning opposite the Bogota station and sustained internal injuries that caused his death in the Hackensack Hospital this afternoon.

IN NEW JERSEY.

NEWARK.—Judge Simon Hahn, in the First Criminal Court, fined three moving picture managers each $50 and costs for exhibiting without a license.

NEW BRUNSWICK.—Two hundred and fifty girls employed in the hemstitching department of Herman Aukam & Co., handkerchief manufacturers at South River, struck for higher wages. They want 10 to 15 per cent. increases.

NEWTON.—The Sussex County Historical Society voted to accept the nine monuments offered by Freeholder John J. Van Sickle to mark historical spots. Four of the monuments will mark the sites of forts erected before the Revolutionary War.

MEN AT WELLESLEY DANCE.

For First Time in College History—No Chaperons for Week-End.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Feb. 7.—Wellesley College's first dance to which men have been invited, was attended to-night by about 105 Harvard men and other collegians and the same number of Wellesley seniors.

After the first dance number the girls took their seats under placards which bore the letters of the alphabet, Miss A sitting under "A," Miss B under "B," and so on.

The dance ended at 12 o'clock, and the men were permitted to escort the girls to their dormitories unchaperoned. A large number of Harvard students will spend the week-end in Wellesley attending the Glee Club concert to-morrow and the "Open House" Sunday.

"Open House Sunday" at Wellesley means that students are permitted to receive callers and to go driving, motoring, sleighing, or canoeing, as the weather permits, without chaperons. The usual rule is that such things are quite forbidden, the offense being sufficient to expel a girl from student government privileges.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Builders Buy Plot of Seven and One-half Lots on St. Nicholas Avenue as Apartment House Site—Business Building on West 125th Street Sold to an Investor—Bronx and Suburban Deal.

Continued activity on the upper west side, which has furnished a number of prominent investment and operators deals within the last few days, was shown yesterday in the sale of a plot comprising about seven and a half city lots, forming the northwest corner of St. Nicholas Avenue and 164th Street. It was sold by the Charles Buek Construction Company to the Albion Construction Company (Isaac Krulewitch and Reuben Weinstein.) The builders are having plans prepared to immediately improve the site with a six-story apartment and a building loan of $230,000 has been obtained from the New York Title Insurance Company.

The deal has the additional interest of being a straight cash transaction. The property acquired fronts 133.5 on St. Nicholas Avenue, 171.5 on 164th Street, and 125 and 99 feet respectively on the rear lines. Henry H. Uhlfelder was the broker in the transaction. Only a few days ago the church of St. Rose of Lima bought the opposite northeast corner for improvement with a parochial school.

Builders Secure Apartment House Site.

Another sale in the same vicinity that foreshadows an immediate high-class improvement was reported by J. Romaine Brown & Co., who sold for Charles M. Rosenthal a plot 63 by 100 feet on the south side of 152d Street, 140 feet east of Riverside Drive.

The buyer is the Philrose Construction Company. Plans are being made for a seven-story apartment house to cover the entire plot.

Investor Buys 125th St. Building.

The four-story business building, 63 and 65 West 125th Street, has been sold by Mrs. N. Thomson to Salo Cohn for investment. The building which occupies a lot 25 by 100 feet, between Fifth and Lenox Avenue, is leased to one tenant for a long term. A. E. Thomson was the broker.

Another Lexington Avenue Deal.

Another Lexington Avenue sale in the vicinity of Seventy-fifth Street, where there has been considerable speculative activity during the past couple of months, was announced yesterday by Heinrich C. Kayser who sold to Irving I. Bachrach 1,085 Lexington Avenue, a five-story flat on lot 20 by 95, adjoining the new French Church of St. Jean the Baptist at the southeast corner of Seventy-sixth Street.

Reputed Sale in Sixty-Third Street.

A syndicate is reported to have purchased as a site for an apartment house 2 to 6 East Sixty-third Street, three four-story dwellings, on plot 50 by 100.5, owned by the Sinclair Estate. The property was offered at auction last month by Joseph P. Day, and was struck down for $187,500.

Old Pike Street Building Sold.

The Children's Aid Society has sold to the Cheva Adas Wolkowisk, a Jewish congregation, 28 Pike Street, a three-story building on lot 25 by 85, adjoining the southeast corner of Henry Street.

The building was formerly used as a school, and will now be utilized as a place of worship. Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company negotiated the sale.

Bronx Borough.

Heller & Sussman have sold for Meisel & Druzin 1,718 Washington Avenue, a five-story new law house, on plot 41.9 by 109, located about 135 feet south of 174th Street.

The thirteen-acre estate of the Princess del Drago, formerly Mrs. Josephine Schmidt, fronting on Broadway, Tarrytown, held at $150,000, has been purchased by Jacob Ruppert, Jr.

E. E. Slocum has sold the S. W. Eddy farm at Simsbury, Conn., together with portions of the Baldwin and Shepard farms adjoining, making a tract of 200 acres. The buyer is a New York merchant, who will improve the property with a dwelling and outbuildings.

Francis de R. Wissman is the purchaser of the thirty-five foot plot at 9 East Ninety-sixth Street, sold Thursday by Isaac H. Clothier. As announced in these columns yesterday, the buyer will erect a private dwelling to replace his present home at 707 Fifth Avenue.

Stores for Broadway Theatre.

Plans have been filed for putting in new store fronts in the Broadway Theatre building on the south side of Forty-first Street, between Broadway and Seventh Avenue, at a cost of $10,000. The Broadway and Forty-first Street Realty Company of Philadelphia, Penn., is the owner. William H. Hoffman is the architect.

Plans were filed yesterday for erecting six one-story frame school houses in the Bronx, the estimated cost of which, according to C. B. J. Snyder, the Board of Education architect, will be $1,700. BANKS WON'T BENEFIT BY TREASURY CHECKS

MacVeagh Denies Charge That Clearing System Will Add $200,000,000 to Clearing System.

GLASS SUSPICIOUS OF PLAN

Hints That It Has Been Adopted to Embarrass New Regime — No Such Object, Says Treasury.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—For a short time to-day a real National sensation appeared to be promised by the publication of charges made by Rudolph Spreckels, the San Francisco banker, that the Treasury Department's recent order for the deposit of customs receipts in National banking depositaries was in reality a plot to embarrass the incoming Democratic administration through the concentration of hundreds of millions of Government money in National Banks, mostly in New York. To-night the atmosphere has cleared a little after an explanation by Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh.

The Spreckels charges, which are aimed at Treasury Order No. 5, issued on Jan. 9, and became effective on Feb. 1, were made in New York and are as follows:

"This circular directs that customs money be deposited with National banks. If this order be not promptly rescinded we will witness a marked and unusual increase of deposits, principally with the New York National banks, amounting to more than $200,000,000 in gold annually in New York alone. As the Government accepts only gold in payment for duties, the entire sum involved is gold. When the new Administration takes charge of the Treasury it will be obliged to demand the return of these funds to the Government. The effect of the withdrawal of so many millions of dollars is bound to cause financial difficulties. Congress should investigate the matter and bring out the facts."

Mr. Spreckels further said that this money would find its way through the usual channels into Wall Street, to be loaned out at call, and that in the event of the sudden recall of all these millions by the Treasury it would force the withdrawal of enormous sums.

Mr. Spreckels asserted further that the order was illegal, and that if President Wilson rescinded it for that reason a financial panic might be caused. All that Mr. Spreckles charged was denied by Secretary MacVeagh of the Treasury.

The incident has assumed a wider significance to-night through the belief that the allegations made by Mr. Spreckels have impressed Gov. Wilson.

In a letter sent to-day to Congressman Carter Glass of the House Committee on Banking and Currency, Secretary MacVeagh of the Treasury writes:

"The new plan does not involve an increase in the amount of the bank deposits of the Government to any appreciable extent. I mean by this that the increase will not exceed in the aggregate $2,000,000 or $3,000,000 if it reaches that sum. The income and outgo of the Government are just about equal at the present time. That is to say the Government collects, approximately, $2,000,000 a day and pays out approximately $2,000,000 a day. The Government now receives practically all its revenues in bank checks, and the purpose of the new plan is to have its collections and disbursements clear each other in the banks from day to day instead of first converting the receipts into actual cash in the Sub-Treasuries and then making its payments in cash over the counter. The Treasury receives almost no gold from customs or internal revenue, and gold is not involved in the problem at all.

"It may be stated that a Government deposit does not increase the loaning power of a bank. The regulations of the department strictly prohibit a bank holding funds of the Government in excess of its authorized deposit.

"The only problem presented by the new plan is that of so directing and distributing the Treasury receipts that they will meet the disbursing officers' checks in the depositary banks. To accomplish this it has been necessary to reduce the balance of a number of the depositary banks, and to add depositary banks in each of the Sub-Treasury cities. This readjustment has resulted in additional deposits being made to the extent only of $350,000."

Representative Glass, in commenting today on the new Treasury check system, says:

"It is exceedingly doubtful whether a change of this revolutionary nature in the business methods of the Treasury Department should be put in effect in the closing days of one Administration to the possible embarrassment of the succeeding Administration."

ENRICH SENATE VOCABULARY.

Martin and Nelson Contribute "Platitudinarian" and "Whangdoodling."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The Senate to-day was puzzled and amused by two words, new to the Senate—platitudinarian and whangdoodling—and considerable debate was devoted to an effort to unravel their meaning for those who had never heard them. An inquiry from Senator Thomas S. Martin of Virginia, the minority leader, as to the status of the Clayton anti-injunction bill, started the trouble. He wanted to know where the bill was and why the Committee on Judiciary had not reported it. He was informed that hearings on the measure would begin to-morrow.

"The Senate is tired of nothing but platitudinarian assurances," retorted Mr. Martin, "and I am going to move to discharge the committee from further consideration."

"I don't know what 'platitudinarian' means," interrupted Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota, "but on a bill of this kind we don't want too much whangdoodling haste."

"I don't know what 'whangdoodling' means," answered Mr. Martin, "but it seems to me that for a bill of this kind there is too much whangdoodling delay."

Mr. Martin then offered a resolution discharging the committee and placing the bill upon the calendar, but on objection from Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, who had endured the verbal acrobatics of his colleagues as long as he could, the resolution went over till another day.

FIRST AUTO CONVICTION.

Chauffeur Who Drove Car While Intoxicated May Get a Year.

The first conviction to be obtained under the new amendment to the Callan law, making the punishment for driving an automobil while intoxicated a fine of $500 and one year's imprisonment in the Penitentiary, was obtained before the Justices of Special Sessions yesterday.

The defendant was John O'Brien, a chauffeur of 227 West Eighteenth Street, who was arrested on Feb. 4 for driving his automobile while intoxicated. He was arrested at Thirty-third Street and Fifth Avenue by Policeman Kennedy of Traffic Squad C, who testified that the defendant was so intoxicated that he was incapable of driving a machine. O'Brien was remanded until Tuesday for sentence. Until recently the punishment for this offense was a fine of $25, but at the request of District Attorney Whitman and Justice Collins of Special Sessions a new bill was drawn and an amendment made to the Callan law.

Buy $6,000,000 Norfolk Southern.

Harris, Forbes & Co. have purchased $6,000,000 first and refunding mortgage 5 per cent. bonds of the Norfolk Southern Railroad. The proceeds will be used to complete the construction of the mileage between Raleigh and Charlotte, with branches, including the retirement of $5,456,000 notes. The extension through to Charlotte is expected to be completed around July 1, and with this mileage the Norfolk Southern Railroad will have a total of about 914 miles.

The bonds are secured on the entire property of the Norfolk Southern by the deposit of all of the securities of the John L. Roper Lumber Company, which owns around 500,000 acres of timber and agricultural lands.

KNOX TAKES A HAND IN BEAUPRE'S CASE

ATTEMPT TO EVADE ISSUE

Representative Soto, Named as Editor of Abusive Sheet, Immune Under Law.

HAVANA, Feb. 7.—Arthur M. Beaupré, the American Minister to Cuba, acting under direction of the State Department at Washington, to-day presented to Secretary of State Sanguily a peremptory note insisting that immediate measures be taken for the prosecution and exemplary punishment of the persons responsible for the recent attacks upon the American Legation by the newspaper Cuba.

The note intimates that should the Cuban laws be insufficient for the protection of foreign diplomats, the United States will insist that means for their protection be found promptly.

The newspaper Cuba this afternoon continued its attacks upon Minister Beaupré, by reiterating the charges previously made against him. It also announced that Representative Soto, whom it described as the editor of Cuba, would present a bill to Congress demanding that President Gomez submit to the House copies of all the notes presented the Government by Mr. Beaupré and Hugh S. Gibson, Secretary of the American Legation.

The announcement that Señor Soto has assumed the editorship is taken here to indicate that the actual editor, José Maria Villaverde, will atempt to take shelter behind Soto who, as a Representative, is immune from prosecution without the consent of Congress.

There is rising indignation among Americans here over the failure of President Gomez to punish Villaverde by deportation—a course which he adopted last year when Cuba assailed him. Later he permitted Villaverde to return.

RURAL HEALTH MEN BLAMED.

State Control Urged in Hearing Before Governor's Board.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 7.—Evidence in support of the contention that local Boards of Health in rural communities of the State were inefficient and ineffective in their work was heard to-day by the Governor's Public Health Commission. Nicholas Hansen, employed by the Charities Aid Association, presented facts concerning Boards of Health in parts of Dutchess County to prove that laxity and neglect were responsible for epidemics in sparsely settled localities. Mr. Hansen said that of Boards of Health in Dutchess County, fifty-seven members were farmers, thirteen clerks, nineteen merchants, nineteen butchers and bakers, eleven laborers, sixteen managers, three florists, six watchmen or policemen, four druggists, two lawyers, and one was a minister. Members of those boards were paid in fees for attendance at meetings, he testified, and the minutes showed little work of importance was taken to prevent disease. In rural communities, he said, paid $100,000 a year for those meetings of the Health Boards in 1,200 places, and when epidemics occurred there was an added expense for quarantine and regulatory supervision.

Mr. Hansen told the commission that some of the members of local Boards of Health did not know whether they were members and others did not know whether they had sanitary codes. Half the towns and villages of Dutchess, he added, had no codes.

DEAD, WIFE SHIELDS BODY.

Granger, a Waiter, Stabs Himself—Woman Held as Witness.

Henry W. Granger, a waiter, was found dead yesterday in the room occupied by himself and his wife since last Tuesday at 315 West Twenty-first Street. The body, showing a knife wound near the heart, was found by the police on the floor beside the bed on which his wife was lying. She was dazed. Detectives Rein and Upton questioned her and she made this statement:

"My husband awakened me and said: 'Maude, I've stabbed myself.' I don't know what time it was. He came and lay down on the bed; that's all I know." Mrs. Granger would not permit the police or Mrs. McNulty, from whom she rented the room, to enter, but they went in through a window and heard the story of the suicide from Mrs. Granger.

She was locked up in the West Thirtieth Street Station and will be called at 10 o'clock to-day at the Coroner's inquest.

OPPENHEIM BACK AT BAR.

Court Restores Lawyer Who Was Disbarred in 1901.

The Appellate Division restored Benjamin Oppenheim, disbarred in March, 1901, to practice yesterday. A number of vouchers found in an old trunk showed that the legal department of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company had paid witnesses against Oppenheim, who had incurred the company's enmity by winning an accident case against it. These witnesses confessed that the case against Oppenheim, on which he was disbarred and on which the verdict for his client, a little girl, who lost one of her legs under a street car, was set aside, had been perjured.

Ex-Judge Henry A. Gildersleeve, as official referee appointed to investigate the case on the new evidence, found Oppenheim was not guilty of the offenses charged against him, and was the victim of a conspiracy. He recommended that Oppenheim be exonerated and restored to practice. In this recommendation the Bar Association concurred.

BAIL DENIED MYLIUS; JAMES 'MYSTIFIED'

Writes The Times He Cannot See Why Castro Is Out and His Friend Still In.

NOT TRUE TO OUR REPUBLIC

To Accord This Treatment to an English Republican—Favoritism at Ellis Island Charged.

The application for a writ of habeas corpus to release from Ellis Island Edward Mylius, who was convicted in London and served a sentence of one year's imprisonment for libelling King George V., was postponed for another week when it came yesterday before Judge Ward in the Federal District Court.

Simon O. Pollock, his attorney, withdrew his original petition asking for a writ, and agreed to draw up a new one. He made an application for the admission of his client to bail pending the decision of his appeal, but the Court refused to grant this. Meanwhile the sentence of deportation is stayed.

Edward H. James, editor of The Liberator, in which was published the article, who has come to this country to do what he can to aid Mylius, wrote yesterday this letter to The Times:

National Arts Club, Feb. 7, 1913.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

This afternoon (Friday) application was made in the Federal Court to admit to bail Edward F. Mylius, now detained at Ellis Island. The application for bail was refused.

I came from France to do what I could to help my friend Mylius, and when I heard, a few days ago, that Mr. Castro had been admitted to bail by the Federal Court, I hoped and felt that the same measure of justice and liberality would be accorded to my friend Mylius. I do not know upon what principle the Federal Court admits some persons who are detained at Ellis Island to the privilege of bail, while it denies the same privilege to others. I do not criticise the court. I am only mystified.

I am informed that when Mr. Castro was detained at Ellis Island he was given a private room and other comforts which are denied to Mr. Mylius and other aliens detained there. I am glad for Mr. Castro that he enjoyed these comforts, but I cannot help feeling that, had I the control of Ellis Island, I should endeavor to have an equal distribution of such comforts as the institution provided made to all persons whom I should find placed under my authority.

I am an American and I have always "stood up" for my country at home and abroad. I believe in Republican principles of government, and for six years I have advocated those principles in foreign countries. I believe that they are based upon equality and justice to a greater extent than are those governments which maintain Kings and aristocracies.

Mylius has advocated those principles with me in a foreign country with great sincerity and bravery, and I cannot remain silent when I see those principles of equality violated here upon American soil.

Mylius has been described throughout America as a "libeler of a King." By what right? In England, where the King is the Government and where the King's honor is the Government's honor, Mylius was tried for and convicted of a "crime involving moral turpitude." But must we brand this English Republican with moral turpitude because the King's Court in England branded him with it?

The American immigration laws are made to protect the Americans. They are not made to protect the English. In an English Court, where the King was concerned and where the truth could not possibly be made known so long as the monarchy stands, Mylius was convicted of "libel."

This is not sufficient proof to justify the American press in attaching to Mylius the infamous name of libeler. He was not given a fair trial in England. He was convicted by a chain of illegalities, and by perjured evidence, as I have proved in my journal The Liberator.

Can we not be just in America? Can we not be true to ourselves and our Republic? The English republican who comes bearing the flag of the Republic to the American shore will not be forgotten. E. H. JAMES.

The application of Mylius for a writ of habeas corpus has now been adjourned three times. The first time it came up it was put over for a week by consent of both sides. The second time it was called Mr. Pollock was not in court and Judge Lacombe set down the hearing peremptorily for yesterday, and now Mr. Pollock has decided to try the matter on a new statement of facts.

STOLE FROM PARCELS POST.

Policeman Benner of the Mulberry Street Station saw a man loitering about a parcel post box at Broadway and Bleecker Street early yesterday evening and was watching him when Policeman Fitzgerald came up. Presently they saw him steal a package and arrested him.

In the possession of their prisoner they found eight packages of mourning stationery, a box of silk socks, several skeins of silk floss, a pair of slippers, and a cloth bag with a draw-string. He had also some fifty bits of paper on which were parcel post stamps and from these the policemen decided that he had stolen as many packages and removed their contents and the stamps which had been upon them.

The parcel which he had taken from the post box was addressed to the Western Badge & Novelty Co. of St. Paul, Minn., and was from G. Hirsch's Sons, 653-655 Broadway, composing the Broadway Novelty Co.

In the station house the prisoner said he was John Burke, a clerk, living at 325 West Forty-seventh Street. He refused to say anything more about himself and was locked up.

INNOCENT MAN SAVED.

Farren, If Convicted, Might Have Gone to Prison for Life.

What was regarded by many persons in and around the County Court House, Brooklyn, yesterday as a remarkable case of mistaken identity, developed at the trial of William Farren before Judge Dike, on an indictment charging him with robbery, assault and larceny. Against the testimony of seven witnesses, who positively identified Farren as the man who held them up at the point of a revolver in the vicinity of New Utrecht Avenue, and Seventy-first Street, Bath Beach, on the night of Nov. 9, four reputable citizens testified that he was at an entertainment on that night at the hour the crimes were committed. The testimony of the latter with that of two character witnesses proved an alibi for him, and saved him, if he were convicted of all the offenses charged against him he would have received prison sentences which would have kept him in jail all his life.

Farren had three indictments against him. There were nine counts altogether charging him with robbery, assault and grand larceny. The aggregate terms in prison for these offenses amount to eighty-four years. After listening to the testimony in the case Judge Dike decided there was a reasonable doubt as to the guilt of the defendant in view of the conflicting testimony and directed the jury to acquit him.

Marriage Bill Aimed at Japanese.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Feb. 7.—The Senate to-day passed a bill prohibiting the intermarriage of members of white and colored races, unless both parties to a marriage are citizens of the United States. The bill's purpose is to prevent Japanese from marrying white women.

ASKS STATE TO BUY ROAD.

HARTFORD, Feb. 7.—Government ownership and operation of the New Haven road at cost were advocated in a resolution introduced in the General Assembly to-day. The resolution recited that the railroad was the principal means of travel, communication and transportation in the New England States, that the health, comfort, happiness and "even the very existence of millions of people" were dependent on its proper management and control, and urged that steps be taken immediately. The resolution favoring Government ownership and operation of the coal fields also was put in.

An investigation of the New Haven road, its relations with its subsidiary lines and the issuance of stocks and bonds by the company was proposed in a resolution introduced by Representative L. W. Wilson of Bridgeport in the House of Representatives. The resolution would direct a committee of nine to inquire into the merger in 1907 of railroad lines in the State and whether it resulted in suppression of competition, excessive capitalization or watering of stocks. Interlocking directorates also would be investigated. The resolution was tabled on motion of Mr. Wilson to permit him to file a bill of specifications.

LURED HUSBAND TO DEATH.

Missouri Woman Tells of Man Slaying Him with Her Aid.

WEBB CITY, Mo., Feb. 7.—Mrs. Lige Gillmore confessed to the police to-day that she and James Lynn of Galena, Kan., had murdered her husband here last night. Both are under arrest charged with first degree murder.

Mrs. Gillmore said that cruelties inflicted by her husband in the course of twenty-two years of married life had become unbearable. She said she and Lynn planned the murder at Miami, Okla., last Summer.

AT 80, DR. J. G. JOHNSON WEDS

Prominent Brooklyn Physician Marries Miss Roe, 50 Years His Junior.

Dr. John G. Johnson, eighty years old, a physician and surgeon of Brooklyn, and Miss Emma B. Roe, who is fifty years his junior, were married yesterday afternoon at the home of the aged bridegroom, 153 Joralemon Street, that borough. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Frederick H. Handsfield, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Atonement, Brooklyn, who is an old friend of Dr. Johnson. Mrs. Handsfield, the wife of the clergyman, and Mrs. Harmie W. Roe, the mother of the bride, were the witnesses.

For some years Mrs. Roe has been housekeeper for Dr. Johnson, and her daughter has made her home there with her.

It was Dr. Johnson's second marriage. His first wife, who died several years ago, was Miss Elizabeth C. Ludlow. She was a prominent member of St. Ann's Protestant Episcopal Church and was well known as a church worker in Brooklyn.

ARCHITECTS IN COSTUME.

Beaux Arts Society Dines and Enjoys a "Hysterical" Melodrama.

The Beaux Arts Society of Architects gave their annual entertainment last night at the Fine Arts Building, 215 West Fifty-seventh Street, which consisted of a costume dinner, spectacle, and bal masque.

A hysterical melodrama entitled "Without a Flaw," in three acts, was given after the dinner, with music. Kenneth M. Murchison wrote the music and Mr. Chappell the book. The programme stated that it was produced with apologies to Bayard Veiller and Richard Wagner.

The audience got a lot of enjoyment out of the production. It was also announced on the programme that during Act I. the curtain would be lowered for one minute to denote the passing of forty-eight years. Miss Danforth, who took the leading part, had her gowns made by a well-known construction company, also according to the programme.

The costume dance followed the play.

EDDY SUITS SETTLED; $2,000,000 TO CHURCH

Decrees and Bay State Enabling Act Allow Scientists to Accept Founder's Bequest.

HEIRS AND TRUSTEES AGREED

Drop Suits Under States Laws Which Restrict Church Legacies.

BOSTON, Feb. 7.—Litigation over the bequest of $2,000,000 left to the First Church of Christ Scientist of Boston by Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy ended to-day when her natural heirs joined with the Trustees of the church in proposed decrees entered in the several courts involved.

Coincident with this action the Massachusetts House concurred this afternoon with the Senate in an enabling act which, when signed by the Governor, will permit the Mother Church to accept the money and use it for the advancement of Christian Science as directed by its founder.

Four stipulations compose the decrees, which were entered simultaneously in the State courts of Massachusetts and New Hampshire and the Federal Court for the District of New Hampshire. The Attorneys General of the two States join in the decrees. In these George W. Glover of Lead, S. D., and E. J. Foster Eddy of Waterbury, Vt., son and adopted son of Mrs. Eddy, abandon their suits for a share in the estate and renounce their claims to any part of the money left to the church. The Trustees on their part consent to the administrator of the estate paying the sum of $5,000 for the assignment of the sons' contingent right to renew in their lifetime the copyrights upon their mother's published works. They further consent that the Trustees holding the fund of $175,000 (which is the trust fund portion of the $290,000 settled on them by Mrs. Eddy in 1909 in lieu of their share of the estate) shall not further claim that their rights in that fund were forfeited by their action in subsequent court proceedings.

In the contest now brought to a close the plaintiffs, Glover and Foster Eddy, were represented as chief of counsel by Former United States Senator William E. Chandler of New Hampshire. Mr. Chandler was in Washington to-night. His associate counsel, Herbert Parker, former Attorney General of Massachusetts, said:

"The stipulations from the viewpoint of the heirs finally and conclusively terminate all present litigation and preclude the possibility of further litigation or controversy by them with respect to the disposition of the estate of the late Mrs. Eddy. The termination of this litigation has been brought about amicably and voluntarily on the part of the heirs, and all parties have joined in mutual consent to the entry of the proposed decrees in the several courts."

It is maintained by both parties to the agreement that no consideration other than that shown in the stipulations influenced the retirement of the heirs from a contest that has occupied the courts for more than two years.

Mrs. Eddy's home was at Concord, N. H., but a few years before her death she removed to Newton, in this State, where she died on Dec. 4, 1910. Her will, which disposed of an estate of about $2,500,000, left approximately $2,000,000 to the First Church of Christ Scientist of Boston as a trust for the advancement of Christian Science. The two sons had already been provided for a year before her death, when they received $290,000 from Mrs. Eddy in satisfaction of all future claims against her estate.

In January, 1911, Glover and Foster Eddy attacked the will, invoking the statutes of New Hampshire and Massachusetts, which limit bequests to churches to sums returning an annual income of not more than $5,000 and $2,000 in the respective States. Soon afterward a friendly suit was instituted in Massachusetts, where also a copy of the will was filed, and eventually, through various litigations, the question of the validity of the will reached the Supreme Court in both New Hampshire and this State.

In New Hampshire the will was upheld. The Supreme Court of Massachusetts ruled that the $2,000,000 bequest could not be received by the Mother Church, but at the same time submitted that the wishes of the testator should be respected. That this might be accomplished the Trustees of the church obtained the introduction in the Legislature of the enabling act passed to-day.

VOTES FOR HARDER DIVORCE.

Nevada Assembly Passes Amendment for Year's Residence.

Special to The New York Times.

CARSON CITY, Nev., Feb. 7.—By a vote of 30 to 32 the Assembly, amid great excitement, passed to-day the amendment extending the six months' residence necessary to divorce to a year in the State and six months in the county. The amendment is to be effective Jan. 1 next, if adopted. It goes to the Senate next week. It was substituted for a bill providing for an immediate change in the law. None of the seven grounds for divorce was altered.

The vote followed a vigorous effort to amend the substitute to make it effective Dec. 31, 1914, which was lost by a tie vote, 26 to 26. By a previous decision of the Assembly, speeches by representatives of the anti-divorce and pro-divorce factions were barred. The legislators were limited to brief arguments, only five addressing the House.

The Speaker had ordered that no demonstration be permitted, but there was an uproar when the vote was announced. Special trains and automobiles had brought throngs of supporters of each side of the question to the Capital. An hour was consumed in carrying the day for the anti-divorce faction.

UNDERPAID LABOR COSTLY.

Boston Lawyer Says It Checks Up $5,500,000 a Year in Massachusetts.

Discussing the progress of minimum wage legislation in Massachusetts before a meeting of the Business Men's Group of the Ethical Culture Society, held in the society's auditorium, Sixty-fourth Street and Central Park West, H. La Rue Brown, a Boston lawyer, and a member of the Massachusetts Minimum Wage Commission, said that his State expended each year $5,500,000 in addition to private or semi-public charity funds, for the relief and control of delinquency and dependence resulting chiefly from the evil of underpaid labor. If the return for a woman's toil was not sufficient to keep her alive, he said, the difference was made up by her in such a way that the people generally met the cost.

"She pays and we pay in flesh and blood, in the health and life of our people, in the ruined physiques, and in the shattered nerves of those who should be the mothers of American citizens," said Mr. Brown.

In his opinion Gov. Wilson was wrong when he contended that a minimum wage would tend to level wages. The speaker thought such could not be the effect in the case of women because their wages had already been leveled.

Shawl Collar, Convertible Collar, English Ulster and Motor Coats. In Chinchillas, Shetlands, Vicunas, and plaid-back Tweeds and Shetlands. Designed for street and storm service.

The fabrics throughout are the choicest creations of leading weavers here and abroad. Among them all the new shades and mixtures are represented. And the tailoring—
Well, the tailoring is of the kind that has made the name Hackett-Carhart synonymous with the FINEST OF FINE CLOTHES for more than half a century.
Men-who-know—even those who have several overcoats in their wardrobe—are securing these garments for future wear.
For so advanced are they in fashion—so recently from the tailor's hands—that they will be "good style" for seasons to come.
You cannot afford to delay your visit much longer. Make it to-day, if you can.
